Producing Public Television, Producing Public Culture Barry Dornfeld, 2021-02-09 From 1989 to 1991 Barry Dornfeld had an unusual double role on the crew of the major PBS documentary series Childhood As a researcher for the series he investigated the relationship between children and media As an anthropologist however his subject was the television production process itself examining for example how producers developed the series negotiated with their academic advisors and shaped footage shot around the world into seven programs He presents the results of his fieldwork in this groundbreaking study one of the first to take an ethnographic approach to the production of a television show as opposed to its reception Dornfeld begins with a broad discussion of public television's role in American culture and goes on to examine documentaries as a form of popular anthropology Drawing on his observations of Childhood he considers the documentary form as a kind of imagining in which both producers and viewers construct understandings of themselves and others revealing their conceptions of culture and history and their ideologies of cultural difference and universality He argues that producers of culture should also be understood as consumers who conduct their work through an active envisioning of the audience Dornfeld explores as well how intellectual media professionals struggle with the institutional and cultural forces surrounding television that promote entertainment at the expense of education The book provides a rare glimpse behind the scenes of a major documentary and demonstrates the value of an ethnographic approach to the study of media production Public Television For Sale William Hoynes,2019-09-16 Public television is uniquely positioned in our country to contribute to the invigoration of democratic public life because ostensibly it is neither driven by the market nor dominated by the state In this comprehensive analysis of the forces that shape our public television system sociologist William Hoynes finds that public television increasi
