Punishment The Supposed Justifications Revisited:

Punishment Ted Honderich, 2005-11-20 Ted Honderich's Punishment is the best known book on the justifications put forward for state punishment. This enlarged and developed edition brings his writing to a new audience. With new chapters on determinism and responsibility plus a new conclusion, the book also remains true to its original realism about almost all talk of retribution and proportionality. Honderich investigates all the commonsensical notions of why and when punishment is morally necessary, engaging with the language of public debate by politicians and other public figures. Honderich then puts forward his own argument that punishment is legitimate when it is in accord with the principle of humanity. Written in a clear sharp style and seasoned with a dry wit, this is the most important work on the reasoning behind our penal systems. It is a pleasure to read for philosophers and non philosophers alike. Ted Honderich is Grote Professor Emeritus at University College London and author of numerous books on philosophy including After the Terror (Edinburgh University Press 2002), How Free Are You (Oxford University Press 2001), Terrorism for Humanity (Pluto Press 2003) and Conservatism (Pluto Press 2005). He is also the editor of the Oxford Companion to Philosophy.

the Limits of the Law Erik Claes, Wouter Devroe, Bert Keirsbilck, 2009-04-21 Many legal experts no longer share an unbounded trust in the potential of law to govern society efficiently and responsibly. They often experience the limits of the law as they are confronted with striking inadequacies in their legal toolbox with inner inconsistencies of the law with problems of enforcement and obedience and with undesired side effects and so on. The contributors to this book engage in the challenging task of making sense of this experience. Against the background of broader cultural transformations such as globalisation, new technologies, individualism and cultural diversity, they revisit a wide range of areas of the law and map different types of limits in relation to some basic functions and characteristics of the law. Additionally, they offer a set of strategies to manage justifiably law's limits such as dedramatising law's limits, conceptual refinement, constructivism, striking the right balance between different functions of the law, seeking for complementarity between law and other social practices.

Rethinking Punishment Leo Zaibert, 2018-04-19 The age-old debate about what constitutes just punishment has become deadlocked. Retributivists continue to privilege desert over all else, and consequentialists continue to privilege punishment's expected positive consequences such as deterrence or rehabilitation over all else. In this important intervention into the debate, Leo Zaibert argues that despite some obvious differences, these traditional positions are structurally very similar and that the deadlock between them stems from the fact they both oversimplify the problem of punishment. Proponents of these positions pay insufficient attention to the conflicts of values that punishment even when justified generates. Mobilizing recent developments in moral philosophy, Zaibert offers a properly pluralistic justification of punishment that is necessarily more complex than its traditional counterparts. An understanding of this complexity should promote a more cautious approach to inflicting punishment on individual wrongdoers and to developing punitive policies and institutions.

Confronting Penal Excess David Hayes, 2019-11-14 This monograph considers the correlation between the relative success of retributive penal policies in English-speaking liberal democracies since the 1970s and the practical evidence of increasingly excessive reliance on the penal State in those jurisdictions. It sets out three key arguments. First, that increasingly excessive conditions in England and Wales over the last three decades represent a failure of retributive theory. Second, that the penal minimalist cause cannot do without retributive proportionality at least in comparison to the limiting principles espoused by rehabilitation restorative justice and penal abolitionism Third that another retributivism is therefore necessary if we are to confront penal excess The monograph offers a sketch of this new approach late retributivism as both a theory of punishment and of minimalist political action within a democratic society Centrally criminal punishment is approached as both a political act and a policy choice Consequently penal theorists must take account of contemporary political contexts in designing and advocating for their theories Although this inquiry focuses primarily on England and Wales its models of retributivism and of academic contribution to democratic penal policy making are relevant to other jurisdictions too
