More Than Memory:

Deeper Than Memory Pamela Harr-Ratney, 2017-01-27 My name is Pamela Harr This is my story This is my story of my experiences when my husband Harvey Ratney was in the last stages of Alzheimer's Disease as told through email messages to friends and family As clearly as I could I told how I felt while Harvey and I experienced our lives as the days and months passed I will take you on a day to day journey with me as I struggle to balance life with other family members with my husband's and my business and daily activities all the while seeking the best available care for my husband While Alzheimer's is a tragic disease my story is not tragic Every day brought moments of intense love times of joy and unexpected humor In seeking to understand how I could best care for my husband I met new friends and helpers strengthened my relationship with friends and family in our isolated eastern Montana community and found a support group who will remain with me through the remainder of my life I am aware that often my fears my frustrations and my helplessness my love colored my observations and my perceptions I mean no offense to anyone I appreciate the gentleness and dedication of the caregivers who worked with us I appreciate the care and support of my friends Sacraments of Memory Erin Michael

Salius, 2022-10-04 This book argues that Catholicism informs a major genre of African American literature in ways and with a significance that has gone largely unrecognized Sacraments of Memory thus proposes a new framework for understanding the revisionist aims of these works contextualizing the skepticism they exhibit towards historical realism in terms of a Catholic counter tradition in American literature that has long been associated with superstition and irrationality

Superior Memory John M. Wilding, Elizabeth R. Valentine, 1997 This book examines the nature and causal antecedents of superior memory performance The main theme is that such performance may depend on either specific memory techniques or natural superiority in the efficiency of one or more memory processes Chapter 2 surveys current views about the structure of memory and discusses whether common processes can be identified which might underlie general variation in memory ability or whether distinct memory subsystems exist the efficiency of which varies independently of each other Chapter 3 provides a comprehensive survey of existing evidence on superior memory performance It examines techniques which underlie many examples of unusual memory performance and concludes that not all this evidence is explicable in terms of such techniques Relations between memory ability and other cognitive processes are also discussed The remainder of the book describes the authors own studies of a dozen memory experts employing a wide variety of short and long term memory tasks These studies provide a much larger body of data than previously available from studies of single individuals usually restricted to a narrow range of tasks and rarely involving any systematic study of long term retention The authors argue that in some cases unusual memory ability is not dependent on the use of special techniques They develop some objective criteria for distinguishing between subjects who demonstrate natural superiority and those strategists who depend on techniques Natural superiority was characterised by superior performance on a wider range of tasks and better long term retention The existence of a general memory ability was further supported by a factor analysis of data from all subjects omitting those who described highly practised techniques This analysis also demonstrated the independence of initial encoding and retention processes The monograph raises many interesting questions concerning the existence and nature of individual differences in memory ability a previously neglected topic their relation to other cognitive processes and implications for theories concerning the structure of memory Report of the President of Harvard College and Reports of Departments Harvard University,1910 Ape, Primitive Man, and Child Essays in the History of Behavior A R Luria,L.S.

Memory and Representation in Contemporary Europe Dr Siobhan Kattago,2013-01-28 Why do certain places and not others symbolically capture the past and freeze time Likewise why does the process of memory as a fluid and changing activity seem to prevent its own solidification Memory and Representation in Contemporary Europe reflects not only on the persistence of the past as a theme linked to modernity media and time but also discusses the politics of memory within a changing Europe Drawing on the theoretical work of Hannah Arendt Isaiah Berlin and Zygmunt Bauman Siobhan Kattago uses examples from both Germany and Estonia in order to address the multiple layers of Europe s totalitarian past Through reflecting on the legacy of totalitarianism and the revolutions of 1989 it becomes clear that the issue is less of whether one should remember but rather how to internalize the various lessons of the past for the future of Europe Memory and Representation in Contemporary Europe thus offers the reader occasions upon which to take stock of different but overlapping contours of past and present in contemporary Europe Handbook of Learning and Cognitive Processes

(Volume 1) W. K. Estes,2014-06-20 From the Foreword Is it possible at present to identify a core cluster of theoretical ideas concepts and methods with which everyone working in the area of learning and cognition needs to be familiar Would it be possible to make explicit the relationships that we feel do or must exist among the various subspecialties ranging from conditioning through perceptual learning and memory to psycholinguistics and to present these in a sufficiently organized way to help specialists and non specialists alike in relating particular lines of research to the broader spectrum of activity These questions were posed to a substantial number of investigators who are currently most active in developing the ideas and doing the research Their response constitutes this Handbook First published in 1975 Volume 1 of this Handbook attempts to present an overview of the field and to introduce the principal theoretical and methodological issues that will persistently recur in the expanded treatments of specific research areas that comprise the later volumes Deferring to the current Zeitgeist rather than to chronology they begin with the present state of cognitive psychology then introduce the comparative approach and conclude this volume with a rapid three chapter review of the evolution of ideas from conditioning
