More Than Refuge Changing Responses To Domestic Violence:

More Than Refuge Suellen Murray, 2002 Women's refuges in the 1970s were lonely voices speaking out about violence in the home. They provided crisis accommodation and refuge staff worked with women to empower them to take control of their lives. But refuges did more than deliver these important services; they worked to politicize domestic violence. Politicians and bureaucrats began to take notice from the 1980s and over time service responses have improved. Significantly too, women's tolerance of violence has decreased. In this book, Suellen Murray traces these changing responses to domestic violence using Nardine Women's Refuge in Western Australia as a case study. She also reminds us that domestic violence flourishes within an environment of unequal gender power relationships and that for this reason its elimination will take more than refuge.

Working with Domestic Violence Deborah Walsh, 2018-12-20 This textbook equips social workers and human services practitioners with the knowledge and skills to work effectively with both the victims and perpetrators of domestic violence. Written to address the needs of the social work and human services student learner, the book covers a range of domestic violence issues that will prepare the student for practice. With an underlying structural feminist conceptual framework that works towards empowering service users whilst challenging the structures that perpetuate violence, Working with Domestic Violence includes 18 chapters covering the broad spectrum of issues that arise from working with domestic violence. A clear practice framework for applying theoretical knowledge when working with individuals and families in domestic violence contexts. Practice tips, key facts, case examples, activities, and reflective questions designed to enhance the reader's engagement with the ideas, debates, and practice challenges introduced in the text. An extensive index and glossary to support student understanding of the material. A user-friendly and engaging style that will find application as an entire course book as well as for students or lecturers interested in selecting individual chapters for certain modules. Working with Domestic Violence is essential reading for students undertaking undergraduate and postgraduate coursework courses in social work and human services and those completing a postgraduate counselling qualification. The book will also be a valuable resource for students of community work, youth work, education, nursing, and other allied health courses, community services, disability, and welfare studies.

From the Margins to the Mainstream Jacqui Theobald, Suellen Murray, Judith Smart, 2017-11-13 In the aftermath of the 2015 Victorian royal commission, billions of dollars of government funds have been committed to improving responses to women and children experiencing domestic violence. Such attention was unimaginable forty years ago when feminists in Victoria and across Australia first established women's refuges. At that time, domestic violence was not publicly acknowledged or tackled in any coherent way at a Commonwealth or state government policy level. While services that provided accommodation to women and children in crisis had certainly existed for a long time, the refuge movement of the 1970s made explicit the link between domestic violence and the need for refuge, framing domestic violence as a manifestation of gender inequality and an imbalance of power between men and women. This book illuminates how the women's domestic violence services movement in Victoria emerged how members organised amidst diversity and worked towards achieving their goals made sense of their experiences and dealt with the obstacles they encountered while undertaking action to create significant change for women

Feminism and the Making of a Child Rights Revolution Isobelle Barrett Meyering, 2022-02-01 When Australian women's liberationists challenged prevailing expectations of female domesticity they were accused of being anti mother and anti child Feminism and the Making of a Child Rights Revolution provides a much needed reassessment of this stereotype Drawing on extensive archival research and personal accounts it places feminists at the forefront of a new wave of children's rights activism that went beyond calls for basic protections for children instead demanding their liberation Historian Isobelle Barrett Meyering revisits this revolutionary approach and charts the debates it sparked within the women's movement Her examination of feminists ground breaking campaigns on major social issues of the 1970s from childcare to sex education to family violence also reveals women's concerted efforts to apply this ideal in their personal lives and to support children's own activism Feminism and the Making of a Child Rights Revolution sheds light on the movement's expansive vision for social change and its lasting impact on the way we view the rights of women and children
