More Than Sympathy Richard Lansdown,1980 The Special Educational Needs Co-ordinator's Handbook Garry Hornby,Gregan Davis,Geoff Taylor,2013-11-05 In September 1994 the Code of Practice on the Identification and Assessment of Special Educational Needs came into force and with it a major increase in the expectations placed on teachers in mainstream schools in particular on the SEN coordinators This handbook discusses the implications for schools and gives practical guidance on how to implement the code effectively Throughout the book provides Further information expanding upon that given in the Code Examples Ideas for dealing with SEN in schools Checklists Proformas for photocopying and direct use in schools The book begins by explaining and expanding on the Code of Practice setting it in the context of recent developments including the Education Reform Act and OFSTED criteria for evaluating policy and provision for children in SEN It then goes on to provide guidelines for implementing the Code of Practice at each of the five stages which it specifies and discusses issues which are raised by this Specific chapters cover Identifying and assessing SEN within the school Liaison with outside specialists Statemnting Annual reviews Knowledge needed by classroom teachers of children with SEN Implications and issues at different stages of the education system Parental involvement Future challenges The book will be of particular interest to special needs coordinators but will also be of value to anyone else working with children with SEN including class teachers heads advisers governors educational psychologists and education welfare officers The Psychology of Childhood Illness Christine Eiser,2012-12-06 The pattern of childhood illness has changed significantly during this century Many frightening conditions such as polio and tuberculosis have essentially been eradicated Other conditions that were once fatal have now achieved the status of chronic disorders for example leukemia cancer and cystic fibrosis Technological advances which have resulted in the medical treatment of these conditions have however created a gamut of psychological problems for the children and their families Recognition of these problems has lagged behind other advances in pediatric medicine The emergence of a specialist area of pediatric psychology Wright 1975 has largely been responsible for the mushrooming of research in the area In much early work the emphasis was on the impact of chronic illness on children and their families Reactions at times of greatest trauma especially diagnosis or death were particularly well documented Issues relating to day to day aspects of child care involving questions of discipline or protectiveness have received much less attention As far as the sick child is concerned there has been much investigation of academic and intellectual development as well as of personality changes that might accompany illness Children's Communication Skills Belinda Buckley,2003 This book uses a clear format to set out the key stages of communication development in babies and young children Parents as Educators Keith J. Topping,2025-08-05 Modern practice in the 1980s was to involve parents increasingly in the education of their children and was supported by legislation Particularly when children had special needs parents required structured training and support to ensure they affectively sustained their vital role as educators at home Many large scale programmes to provide this had been developed throughout the world at the time for example Home Start Portage Home Visiting Projects and Paired Reading Projects However not all of these had been thoroughly evaluated and the existing literature was scattered and difficult to access Some projects demonstrated spectacular results and high cost effectiveness while others proved more disappointing Originally published in 1986 this book critically analyses over 600 international English language research reports on the effectiveness of parent training programmes In addition a detailed guide to the practicalities of planning projects is provided together with a comprehensive directory of useful resource materials After an introductory overview the evidence on the effects on child progress of parental involvement in school activities is reviewed as is research on the impact of schemes of regular structured communication between home and school Programmes designed to train parents to accelerate the development of their children at home are considered in the subsequent chapters starting with ordinary children Much of the book reviews projects targeted on children with some sort of special educational need from children whose special needs stem from a widespread difficulty such as poverty or second language learning systematically through to children whose needs stem from rarer and more severe issues Each chapter has its own summary for ease of reader use while an overall summary chapter points out best buys and directions for future developments This volume will be of major interest to teachers psychologists social workers community health personnel community educationalists researchers many others working with parents and children and to some parents themselves This book is a re issue originally published in 1986 The language used is a reflection of its era and no offence is meant by the Publishers to any reader by this re publication Care of the Child Helen Lewer, Leslie Robertson, 1987-11-11 This new edition has been updated throughout to reflect recent changes in how the family and society care for children The book follows a health to ill health continuum in the care of the child and his family Current trends in treatment of children s disease and related policies are clearly explained and there is more information included dealing with child abuse The book also reinforces the importance of appropriate application of nursing models in structuring care plans and the nursing process Two specific models of nursing care Roper et al and Orem are included in this new edition Each of the numerous care plans in the text now also include a complete section on evaluation and its importance in the nursing process

Language Development and Disorders W. Yule, M. Rutter, 1987 Communication disabilities are common although their precise nature and degree of severity vary greatly among individuals They are among the most handicapping of disabilities because they isolate a person and in so doing restrict social educational and occupational opportunities One of the purposes of this book was to bring together theoretical practical and clinical knowledge from several disciplines that bear on language and communication into some reasonably accessible form The intent is to provide a broad and multi faceted view of language development and language disorders Thus contributions from education linguistics psychology pediatrics psychiatry neurology neuropsychology and speech therapy are included They describe our current knowledge of language development suggest classifications for language pathology outline what is known of the epidemiology of language difficulties consider assessment and therapy alternative communication systems and the impact of the new technology on communication aids The variety of perspectives that it provides will make it particularly useful to the range of specialists who are concerned with the development of communication skills and language disorders Give Sorrow Words Dorothy Judd, 2018-05-01 Though there has been much written about dying and bereavement in recent years the particular stress of terminal illness in childhood as it affects both the families and the professionals is only beginning to be better understood In this book Dorothy Judd a child psychotherapist who has worked with ill disabled and dying children and adolescents for many years places her clinical experience in the context of a full understanding of death the moral and ethical issues raised by some of the treatments for life threatening illness and the current research into new developments in approaches to terminal illness At the heart of the book is a very moving diary of Judd's work with Robert a seven year old suffering from leukaemia Judd's account of therapeutic work in the hospital setting away from the privacy of the consulting room will be of special interest to mental health professionals Give Sorrow Words combines great sensitivity to the experience of terminal illness with an astute awareness of the more theoretical debates in this increasingly important area of research Working with Parents Roy McConkey, 2025-08-05 In the 1980s working with parents in the education and care of their children was more often preached than practised by professionals However recent government committees and legislation both in the UK and USA at the time had repeatedly stressed the importance of parental participation This applied not only to children with special needs but to all children and indeed there was considerable evidence to suggest that parents wanted to be involved and that the child benefited as a result Originally published in 1985 Working with Parents aimed at professionals in training or newly qualified drew together for the first time many examples of how partnership with parents can evolve and be successful It not only gives detailed suggestions for working with parents on a one to one basis but also describes how to handle parent groups organise courses give effective talks and use video The author draws on his wide and well known experience to give specific instances such as his work on language with children with learning disabilities that illustrate general principles The book is written in a lively practical style and should still be of great value to teachers in both special and mainstream education and others such as speech therapists psychologists and community workers This book is a re issue originally published in 1985 The language used is a reflection of its era and no offence is meant by the Publishers to any reader by this re publication Improving Parental Involvement Garry Hornby, 2000-03-01 It is acknowledged that effective schools involve parents effectively This study describes how schools can achieve this aim and how to increase standards of achievement It covers the field from nursery to secondary schools and is aimed at teachers governors welfare workers advisers and PTAs Growing Up Jennie Lindon, 1996-01-01 Setting the experiences of 8 to 18 year olds within a practical framework this classic practical guide describes the main changes for children as they grow from middle childhood
