Mornings Song:

Morning Song Joanne Lehman, 2005 Under and out from under the shadow of death Joanne Lehman writes in the emptiness between one breath and the next Her rural Ohio land scape is animated with rough and mild weather red wing blackbirds hayfields woodlands and the sweet and sometimes too tight lips and rhythms of sectarian life These poems speak simply and their mourning memory and healing are a balm for times when a little bit of quiet would do us all a world of good This is a fine first book as meditative wise and joyful as it is bound to local life on our turning earth Julia Kasdorf The Song of Louise in the Morning Patricia Joudry, 1960 THE STORY Louise married Stanley years before more in gratitude than in love after he had been badly injured in saving her life in a car accident Stanley in turn is psychotically obsessed with a smothering love for his wife and has become a compulsive liar intent on making himself the center of Louise s universe She is drawn away from contact with her family when her brother is accidentally killed in a quarrel with Stanley When their little boy is electrocuted on his third birthday by a live wire on the electric train Stanley had given him as a present Louise is thrown into a state of shock Stanley quits a promising job and a chance of promotion to stay by her side and nurse her As the play opens she has a job as nurse to someone else s little boy and her love for this child has blocked out the pain of her own loss But Stanley fearing her attachment for the child has grown too strong comes home that evening with the news that he had been promoted to manager of a branch store in Australia Louise is heartbroken at having to leave the boy The day they are to sail she learns that Stanley s story is a lie that in reality he has accepted a position at a much lower salary Angrily she confronts him with the truth and threatens to leave him Then in a sudden flash of understanding she realizes that all those accidents have not been accidents and she runs out What follows is a tragic and spine tingling ending Book 2. How often have I overheard alluring snatches of song only to be baffled by denial when I asked for more. Kindly black faces smile indulgently as at the vagaries of an imaginative child when I persist in pleading for the rest. Nawm honey I wa and n and t singing nothing nothing a tall. How often have I been tricked into enthusiasm over the promise of folk songs only to hear age-worn phonograph records but perhaps so changed and worked upon by usage that they could possibly claim to be folk songs after all or Broadway echoes or conventional songs by white authors. Yet cajolements might be in vain even though all the time I knew by the uncanny instinct of folklorists that there were folk songs there. And even when you get a song started when you are listening with your heart in your ear and the greed of the folklorist in your eye you may lose out. If you seem too much interested the song retreats, draws in like a turtle and its head and no amount of coaxing will make it venture back. And there is something positively fatal about a pencil. Songs seem to be afraid of lead poisoning. Or perhaps the pencil is secretly attached by a cord, a vocal cord to the singer and its tongue. It must be so for otherwise why has it so often happened that when I distrustful of my tricky memory to hold a precious song have sneaked a pencil out to take notes the tongue has suddenly jerked back and refused to wag again. Yet that is not always the case for sometimes the knowledge that his song is being written down inspires a bard with more respect for it and he gives it freely. I Can't Wait Till Sunday Morning! Ed Dunlop, 1997.
