Nolan, 2001-07-26. China has used industrial policies to try to build large corporations that can challenge those based in more advanced countries. By the late 1990s, the operational mechanism of China's large firms had seen large advances. Simultaneously, a revolution has taken place in global business systems, and China's large firms are even further behind the global leaders than when they began their reforms. The WTO will require China to operate rapidly on the global playing field in competition with the world's leading corporations, and this increased gap presents a deep challenge for China's business and political leaders. Peter Nolan presents here the first in-depth case studies of China's large corporations under economic reform, combined with systematic benchmarking of these firms against the world's leading corporations. The book is an unrivalled resource of information on Chinese businesses and also leads the reader to consider the impact of China's response to its current challenges, not only on China itself but on the wider global economy. The China Christian Advocate, 1914 Hobbies, 1975 British Books, 1898 Realities and Aspirations for Asian Youth Suzanne Naafs, Tracey Skelton, 2020-06-09. This comprehensive volume explores the remarkable expansion of higher education systems and institutions in Asia in recent decades, alongside changing forms of consumerism, mobility, and global economic conditions. It demonstrates how recent changes in training, education, and employment have sparked new aspirations for possible and desirable livelihoods among the younger generation while also generating fresh problems and tensions. The authors in this volume critically interrogate the links between education and employment, normative understandings about youth and adulthood, as well as personal, national, and regional level aspirations for economic success. Comparative chapters on Cambodia, China, Hong Kong, India, Indonesia, Japan, Laos, Nepal, Singapore, and Taiwan illustrate how young people are having to forge innovative pathways into the future while being confronted with ever-increasing insecurities. Offering important insights into the kinds of education and employment landscapes that Asian youth are navigating, reworking, or trying to avoid, this collection is an essential reference for students and scholars of Asian Studies.

Garden of the World Cecilia M. Tsu, 2013-06-01 Nearly a century before it became known as Silicon Valley the Santa Clara Valley was world renowned for something else the succulent fruits and vegetables grown in its fertile soil In Garden of the World Cecilia Tsu tells the overlooked intertwined histories of the Santa Clara Valley's agricultural past and the Asian immigrants who cultivated the land during the region's peak decades of horticultural production Weaving together the story of three overlapping waves of Asian migration from China Japan and the Philippines in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries Tsu offers a comparative history that sheds light on the ways in which Asian farmers and laborers fundamentally altered the agricultural economy and landscape of the Santa Clara Valley as well as white residents' ideas about race gender and what it meant to be an American family farmer At the heart of American racial and national identity in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries was the family farm ideal the celebration of white European American families operating independent self-sufficient farms that would contribute to the stability of the nation In California by the 1880s boosters promoted orchard fruit growing as one of the most idyllic incarnations of the family farm ideal and the lush Santa Clara Valley the finest location to live out this agrarian dream But in practice many white growers relied extensively on hired help which in the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries was largely Asian Detailing how white farmers made racial and gendered claims to defend their dependence on nonwhite labor how those claims shifted with the settlement of each Asian immigrant group and how Chinese Japanese and Filipinos sought to create their own version of the American dream in farming Tsu excavates the social and economic history of agriculture in this famed rural community to reveal the intricate nature of race relations there Chinese Aid and African Development D.
