Mother Love Mother Hate The Power Of Maternal Ambivalence:

Mother Love/mother Hate Rozsika Parker, 1995 Many a loving mother has had fleeting feelings of hatred toward her children the desire to hurl a howling baby out the window or to lock a teenager out of the house In this provocative book Rozsika Parker argues that these ambivalent feelings not only are common but can actually have a creative impact on mothering Mother Love Mother Hate boldly illustrates how a mother's desire for devotion coexists with the impulse to hurt and desert Parents will find Parker's insight into the conflicts that beset them illuminating and deeply reassuring Reversing the conventional psychoanalytic approach in which maternal ambivalence has been understood chiefly from the point of view of the child this book gives precedence to the mother's perspective Drawing on interviews with mothers clinical material from her practice as a psychoanalytic psychotherapist and a wide range of psychoanalytic and literary sources including Virginia Woolf Anne Tyler Simone de Beauvoir D W Winnicott Melanie Klein and John Bowlby Parker explores experiences of maternal ambivalence in a culture painfully and profoundly uneasy about its very existence BOOK JACKET Title Summary field provided by Blackwell North America Inc All Rights Reserved

Textual Mothers/Maternal Texts Elizabeth Podnieks, Andrea O'Reilly, 2011-04-07 Textual Mothers Maternal Texts focuses on mothers as subjects and as writers who produce auto biography fiction and poetry about maternity International contributors examine the mother without child with child and in her multiple identities as grandmother mother and daughter The collection examines how authors use textual spaces to accept negotiate resist or challenge traditional conceptions of mothering and maternal roles and how these texts offer alternative practices and visions for mothers Further it illuminates how textual representations both reflect and help to define or re shape the realities of women and families by examining how mothering and being a mother are political personal and creative narratives unfolding within both the pages of a book and the spaces of a life The range of chapters maps a shift from the daughter centric stories that have dominated the maternal tradition to the matrilineal and matrifocal perspectives that have emerged over the last few decades as the mother's voice moved from silence to speech Contributors make aesthetic cultural and political claims and critiques about mothering and motherhood illuminating in new and diverse ways how authors and the protagonists of the texts read their own maternal identities as well as the maternal scripts of their families cultures and nations in their quest for self knowledge agency and artistic expression

Mothering and Ambivalence Brid Featherstone, Wendy Hollway, 2002-09-11 Children's rights lone motherhood and the breakdown of families are all issues at the forefront of current social debate in the West with little agreement on what constitutes good parenting or how the needs of both mother and child are best met The feminist contribution to this debate is particularly important in keeping in view the diverse identities of all those who provide mothering The psychoanalytic contribution is often undervalued and misunderstood Mothering and Ambivalence brings together authors from therapeutic academic and social work backgrounds to discuss dependency anxiety and gender relations within families Drawing on extensive professional experience the contributors combine a psychoanalytic and feminist approach to mothering which transcends the polarized and simplistic political debate about women's and children's needs. They also show how such an approach can inform and improve professional practice.

The Monster Within Barbara Almond, 2010. Whether it is uncertainty over having a child, fears of pregnancy and childbirth, or negative thoughts about one's own children, mixed feelings about motherhood are not just hard to discuss; they are a powerful social taboo. In this beautifully written book, Barbara Almond draws on her extensive clinical experience to bring this highly troubling issue to light. In a compelling portrait of the hidden side of contemporary motherhood, she finds that ambivalence of varying degrees is a ubiquitous phenomenon, yet one that too often causes anxiety, guilt, and depression. Weaving together case history and theory, Almond offers a fresh perspective on the Japanese ceremony performed to bring solace to those who have experienced miscarriage, stillbirth, or abortion. Showing how old and new forms of myth, symbol, doctrine, praxis, and organization combine and overlap in contemporary mizuko kuyo, Smith provides critical insight from many angles: the sociology of the family, the power of the medical profession, the economics of temples, the import of ancestral connections, the need for healing in both private and communal ways, and perhaps above all, the place of women in modern Japanese religion. At the heart of Smith's research is the issue of how human beings experience the death of a life that has been and remains precious to them. While universal, these losses are also personal and unique. The role of society in helping people to heal from these experiences varies widely and has changed enormously in recent decades. In examples of grieving for these kinds of losses, one finds narratives not only of deep sorrow but of remarkable dignity.

Italian Motherhood on Screen Giovanna Faleschini Lerner, Maria Elena D'Amelio, 2017-10-14. This book is the first scholarly analysis that considers the specificity of situated experiences of the maternal from a variety of theoretical perspectives. From Fertility Day to Family Day, the concept of motherhood has been at the center of the public debate in contemporary Italy, partly in response to the perceived crisis of the family, the economic crisis, and the crisis of national identity provoked by the forces of globalization and migration, secularization, and the instability of labor markets. Through essays by an international cohort of established and emerging scholars, this volume aims to read these shifts in cinematic terms. How does Italian cinema represent, negotiate, and elaborate changing definitions of motherhood in narrative, formal, and stylistic terms? The essays in this volume focus on the figures of working mothers, women who opt for a child-free adulthood, single mothers, ambivalent mothers, lost mothers, or imperfect mothers who populate contemporary screen narratives.

Infant Observation Frances Thomson-Salo, 2018-05-11. Seminal and representative papers have been chosen to illustrate the vital importance of infant observation in psychoanalytic training, tracing influences on the practice of infant observation and contemporary developments. The book outlines the thinking that has evolved since Esther Bick's introduction of this innovative component in Tavistock child psychotherapy and British Psychoanalytical Society training.

unlikely to have been shaped by women's maternal experiences during their production. Once produced, however, their beholders would have included women who were mothers and potential mothers, thus opening a space between the sculptures' intended meanings and other meanings liable to be produced by these women as they brought their own interests and concerns to these works of art. Building on theories of reception and response, this book focuses on interactions between women as beholders and a range of sculptures made in France in the twelfth through sixteenth centuries, aiming to provide insight into women's experiences of motherhood. Particular sculptures considered include the Annunciation and Visitation from Reims cathedral, the femme aux serpents from Moissac, the transi of Jeanne de Bourbon, Vendôme, the Eve from Autun, and a number of French Gothic Virgin and Child sculptures. Marian Bleeke is Associate Professor of Art History and Chair of the Department of Art and Design at Cleveland State University. Keeping The Baby In Mind Jane Barlow, P.O.

Svanberg, 2009-03-04 Keeping the Baby in Mind builds on the expanding evidence pointing to the crucial importance of parents in facilitating their baby's development and brings together expert contributors to examine a range of innovative psychological and psychotherapeutic interventions that are currently being used to support parents and their infants. It not only provides an overview of the many projects that are now available but also makes recommendations for future practice and the way in which children's services are organised. The book brings together interventions and ways of working that can be used both universally to support parents during the transition to parenthood and with high risk groups of parents where, for example, there may be child protection concerns or parents experience severe mental health problems. Each chapter describes the evidence supporting the need for such interventions and the approach being developed and concludes with a description of its evaluation. Keeping the Baby in Mind marks a new and exciting phase in the development of interventions to support infant mental health and will be of interest across a wide range of disciplines from primary and community care to early years and Children's Centre settings. Macchiavellian Intelligence Dario Maestripieri, 2008-09-15

Judged by population size and distribution, homo sapiens are clearly the most successful primates. A close second, however, would be rhesus macaques, who have adapted to and thrived in such diverse environments as mountain forests, dry grasslands, and urban sprawl. Scientists have spent countless hours studying these opportunistic monkeys, but rhesus macaques have long been overshadowed in the public eye by the great apes, who, because of their greater intelligence, are naturally assumed to have more to teach us, both about other primates and about humans as well. Dario Maestripieri thinks it is high time we shelve that misperception and, with Macchiavellian Intelligence, he gives rhesus macaques their rightful turn in the spotlight. The product of more than twenty years studying these fascinating creatures, Macchiavellian Intelligence caricatures a society that is as much human as monkey, with hierarchies and power struggles that would impress Machiavelli himself. High status macaques, for instance, maintain their rank through deft uses of violence and manipulation, while altruism is almost unknown and relationships are perpetually subject to the cruel laws of the market. Throughout this eye-opening account

Maestripieri weds his thorough knowledge of macaque behavior to his abiding fascination with human society and motivations The result is a book unlike any other one that draws on economics as much as evolutionary biology politics as much as primatology Rife with unexpected connections and peppered with fascinating anecdotes Macchiavellian Intelligence has as much to teach us about humans as it does about macaques presenting a wry rational and wholly surprising view of our humanity as seen through the monkey in the mirror

Dancing in the Flames Linda Byrd Cook, 2009-05-13 This book examines Lee Smith's novel length fiction and its powerful reflection of her personal search for and journey toward spiritual reconciliation The protagonists of Smith's novels feel estranged from any sense of feminine sacredness as they struggle for a belief system that offers them hope and validation. Chapters describe how Smith has retrieved in her fiction a source of transformative power: the power of the sexual, maternal, feminine, divine. In hopes of creating a new image of the total sacred female whose sexuality, creativity, spirituality, and maternity can reside comfortably in the bodies of everyday heroines.

Psychosocial Studies Kath Woodward, 2015-02-26

There is expanding global interest in the relationship between the psychological and the social. The bringing together of affect, emotion, and feeling with social, political, and cultural forces offers a creative, innovative, and rich set of ways of understanding what Charles Wright Mills called the links between personal troubles and public issues. This book is an introduction to psychosocial studies. Drawing on different approaches to the field, the book introduces the main theoretical influences on psychosocial studies and their development and impact through, for example, concepts such as the unconscious self and identity, affect, emotion, and the cultural and social unconscious. It explores the theoretical frameworks of psychosocial studies and psychosocial research methods. The book offers examples of case studies which illustrate the diversity of psychosocial studies and what makes it distinctive. It asks what is social about the inner worlds of the psychological. What is psychological and psychic about social worlds and social life? This clear, accessible introduction will be of interest to students and researchers across the social sciences and humanities, in particular in sociology, psychology, cultural geography, social policy, and politics and cultural studies.
