Putting Africa First The Making Of African Innovation Systems:

Putting Africa First Mammo Muchie, Peter Gammeltoft, Bengt-Åke Lundvall, 2010 Creating Systems of Innovation in Africa Mammo Muchie, Angathevar Baskaran, 2013-01-29 The most popularised concept in the economics of innovation literature has been the national system of innovation NSI It was in the late 1980s that the concept that Frederik List coined as the National Political Economy of Production took off again with different thinkers writing about the peculiarities and distinctions of the Japanese American British German East Asian Tigers and other varieties of system construction Freeman defines National System of Innovation as the network of institutions in the public and private sectors whose activities and interactions initiate import modify and diff use new technologies Richard Nelson defines it as a set of institutions whose interactions determine the innovative performance of national firms Lundvall defines the system of innovation as the elements and relationships which interact in the production diffusion and use of new and economically useful knowledge and are either located within or rooted inside the borders of a nation state The normative assumption is that those nations that succeeded in building economic strength relied on the science engineering technology and innovation capability that made them to achieve an innovation advantage to put them ahead in the world acquiring national or regional economic leadership as the case may be depending on what level of analyses is selected to look at particular failure success or progress they made In this volume we have a glimpse of how in different African economies from Ghana Uganda Kenya South Africa and Nigeria specific cases have been taken to explore how systems of innovation is evolving Challenges of African Transformation Mammo Muchie, Angathevar Baskaran, 2013-01-29 A brief overview of the African economic picture reveals a paradox where the continent that has rich mineral resources nearly a billion people and a land mass which includes the sizes of China USA India Western Europe Argentina together larger than the sum of these regions is in an unacceptable state of being an object of aid debt and loans despite the vast resources both known and yet to be explored Africa should have been a productive and innovation centre and not a charity and aid centre of the world where donorship has replaced African national ownership of not just Africas resources but even worse Africas own agency autonomy and independence to shape policy and direction to undertake African integrated national development by establishing a science engineering and technology based knowledge innovative learning and competent economy The chapters in this volume address the application of the innovation approach to a variety of problems in Africa Together they highlight the critical importance of the innovation systems approach in each of the issues the authors preferred to select and analyse In the African context the application of innovation goes beyond firms to the informal activities at grassroots level The boundaries and the range of actors and activities for innovation application are varied and not limited This variation is represented in this volume by the diverse issues that the authors dealt with in their research by applying as common the use and application of innovation The Evolution of the South African System of Innovation since 1916 Mario Scerri, 2009-05-27 In this book Mario Scerri provides the reader with a novel and sweeping rendition of South Africa's economic history from the early part of the twentieth century to the present. He applies a broad innovation systems approach to this history spanning the period from 1916 which saw the drafting of South Africa's first Science and Technology plan to the first fourteen years of the post-apartheid period. The introduction of the book lays out the scope of the work and its focus on the identification of continuities and ruptures in the economic history of South Africa. The first part of the book deals with the theoretical foundations of the approach. The first chapter in this section looks at the emergence of evolutionary economics and innovation systems theory as the basis for the main countervailing argument against the neoclassical neoliberal orthodoxy. In the course of this chapter the foundation is laid for the development of an alternative general theory of economics. The second chapter covers the main debates on the economic history of South Africa and looks at the several varieties of the liberal and Marxist renditions of this history. The theoretical section lays the foundation for the history that is covered in the four chapters which follow. These cover three broad periods since 1916. The first runs up to 1948 with the election victory of the National Party. The second covers the apartheid period and the last follows with an account of the post-apartheid political economy. An endnote provides the basis for the analysis of what may possibly be the emergence of a fourth main period in the evolution of the South African system of innovation. The Evolution of the South African System of Innovation since 1916 opens up a novel engagement with the complex phenomenon of apartheid, its genealogy and its aftermath. It will appeal to economists and economic historians who are interested in the economy of South Africa. It will be of particular interest to evolutionary economists who use the systems of innovation approach as an alternative to mainstream neoclassical economics in the analysis of dynamic economic systems. For this particular audience, this book will provide a welcome addition to the growing body of literature in this area, especially given the novelty of its historical approach.

Transformative Innovation in Times of Change Erika Kraemer-Mbula, Rebecca Hanlin, Rob Byrne, Chux Daniels, Ann Kingiri, 2024-10-04. A timely collection full of astute insights and critical analysis that helps to fill gaps in the literature on the dynamics and potential for innovation on the African continent. The COVID-19 crises brought into sharp focus the cross-cutting nature of science, technology, and innovation. STI Policy makers beyond those responsible for innovation policy were suddenly required to effectively mobilise STI for a whole range of functions. This included science for decision making as well as the identification and deployment of a wide range of innovations. The results of these efforts are mixed and explored in this volume in greater depth by a cohort of leading continental researchers. This collection is an essential primer for policymakers and researchers who wish to unlock transformative innovation for social and economic benefit. Imraan Patel, Deputy Director General, Research Development and Support Department of Science and Innovation, South Africa. This book provides a thought-provoking and rich analysis of what COVID-19 meant for Africa. It is very timely because the continent needs to prepare for future shocks. This book goes to the heart of the needed policy response. It is not just about resilience but about transformation about redirecting economies and societies towards addressing a wide range of economic social and environmental challenges It explores the role of innovation including technological social frugal and other forms of bottom up innovation A must read for academics and policy makers who care about the future of Africa and the world Prof Johan Schot Global History and Sustainability Transitions Utrecht Centre for Global Challenges Utrecht University and Visiting Professor University of Johannesburg

Reconfiguring Global Health Innovation Padmashree Gehl Sampath,2010-10-20 Reconfiguring Global Health Innovation presents the findings of multi year research contrasting experiences of different latecomer countries in building health innovation systems to cater to local needs It analyses the emerging industrial structures in health innovation as more and more latecomer countries are foraying into what is a highly difficult and technologically intensive sector with the aim of finding ways and means to balance these promising developments with public health needs worldwide The book presents empirical findings from six countries across Asia and Africa on health innovation namely India Bangladesh Vietnam Kenya Tanzania and Nigeria The book concludes that the growth of knowledge and the accumulation of capabilities influence the ability of a country to generate wealth
