Diplomantenseminar language English abstract The discussion about the role of multinational enterprises MNE which are transferring their technology to undeveloped and developed countries is one of the most interesting discussions in the international trade theory with its authors in the century of globalisation Multinational Enterprises are generating and transferring technology know how knowledge and innovations of products and processes over national borders to foreign countries for making research and development R D in especially chosen R D locations The focus of the following diploma thesis is to search what kind of role multinational enterprises play in a globalised and internalized world by focussing how they make research and development in foreign countries and especially in developing countries as the third world In the first main part of the following work it will be described what kind of role multinational enterprise play in the century of globalisation For a better understanding it follows a description what is exactly meant by the process of internalization of the markets and R D It will be discussed through theoretical analysis and models how the process to an internalization of R D function These will be explained through different theoretical approaches as the horizontal model of James R Markusen the vertical model of Helpman and a model of regression which used independent and dependent variables for the analysis At least in this chapter the specific features of a MNE will be explained by categorising multinational enterprises through different characteristics and afterward the role of MNE in the process of globalisation will be assumed for the international trade between different countries The second part will be searching what kind of m Global Goliaths James R. Hines, 2021-04-20 How multinationals contribute or don t to global prosperity Globalization and multinational corporations have long seemed partners in the enterprise of economic growth globalization led prosperity was the goal and giant corporations spanning the globe would help achieve it In recent years however the notion that all economies both developed and developing can prosper from globalization has been called into question by political figures and has fueled a populist backlash around the world against globalization and the corporations that made it possible In an effort to elevate the sometimes contentious public debate over the conduct and operation of multinational corporations this edited volume examines key questions about their role both in their home countries and in the rest of the world where they do business Is their multinational nature an essential driver of their profits Do U S and European multinationals contribute to home country employment Do multinational firms exploit foreign workers How do multinationals influence foreign policy How will the rise of the digital economy and digital trade in services affect multinationals In addressing these and similar questions the book also examines the role that multinational corporations play in the outcomes that policymakers care about most economic growth jobs inequality and tax fairness The Multinational Enterprise in Developing Countries Rick Molz,Catalin Ratiu,Ali Taleb,2013-06-25 A key distinctive feature of Multinational Enterprises MNEs as organizations resides in the fact that they span across borders This exposes them to dissimilar and often unfamiliar social and economic conditions as they venture in foreign countries MNEs from industrialized economies that are active in developing countries and emerging markets face particularly challenging hurdles due to both economic and institutional discrepancies between their home and host countries This book focuses on the uneasy interaction between the traditional logics of developing countries and the economic logic of MNEs The traditional logics of most developing countries are built around community based legitimacy and an intuitive but concrete epistemology Conversely the economic logic of MNEs from developed economies is built around technical and economic legitimacy and an abstract intellectual epistemology Unpacking the uneasy interactions between these two logics will help achieve MNEs objectives of competitiveness in developing countries as well as globally The Montreal Local Global Research Group is a well recognized research group in formulating and researching local and global issues in strategic management from the perspective of integrating divergent dominant logics into the strategy conceptualization process and this will be the first book to be dedicated to the study of the interaction between the traditional logic of developing country and the economic logic of Multinational Enterprise MNE The cultural diversity of the contributing authors and the multidisciplinary approach offers a fresh perspective from which to explore beneficial corporate and local strategies that promote long term economic growth consistent with local traditional and cultural norms This collection will be primarily of interest to scholars of international business international development and economics Furthermore this book is immediately relevant to decision makers in Multinational corporations NGOs and political decision makers that mediate the interaction between local actors and corporate agents in developing and transitional economies coercive actions This book contributes to the theorization of CSR by presenting the meaning of CSR in a clear and distinct manner giving the ongoing CSR debate a new direction anchored on a firm economic philosophy It reinforces the view of firms as social institutions as well as economic actors establishing CSR as a form of justice rather than philanthropy Articulating CSR as private governance of corporate externalities for the first time this book provides researchers with a new paradigm to translate knowledge into action and offers reflective managers an alternative framework in which to explore their corporate strategies and decisions
