keeping an eye on his nonna while he's away months at a time for work. A week in the Adirondacks is a piece of overly frosted cake. Besides, it's not as though he can have a real relationship when he's constantly on the move. Definitely not with the cute bookstore manager he can't stop thinking about. And a wedding war zone with two feuding families is not the time or place for flirting or sexy sneak-arounds. Everyone is watching whether it's during the pickleball tournament, the angry patriarch showdowns, or even the bull riding bachelorette party. This wedding is one slipped fauxcade away from catastrophe, and if Nora and Sebastian can't keep to their own sides of the aisle, they risk exposing the very secrets they're sworn to protect.

The Coach House Florence Osmund, 2012-04-26 1945 Chicago. Anything can happen, and for Richard Marchetti, it usually does. Marie Marchetti, however, doesn't know that about her husband. To her, they have the perfect life. Until little things start to pop up that put her on alert: late night phone calls, cryptic receipts hidden in the basement, and a gun in his desk drawer. When she learns he secretly attends a mobster's funeral, her feelings are confirmed. And when she inadvertently interrupts a meeting between Richard and his so-called business associates, he causes her to fall down the basement steps, compelling Marie to run for her life. Ending up in Atchison, Kansas, Marie quickly sets up a new life for herself. She meets Karen Franklin, a woman who will become her lifelong best friend, and rents a coach house apartment behind a three-story Victorian home. But her attempts at a new life are fraught with the fear that Richard will show up at any time, and who knows what he or his associates will do then. Ironically, it is the discovery of the identity of her real father and his ethnicity that unexpectedly changes her life forever. Deftly portraying a life in a terrifying transition, Osmund tears open layers of confusion, anger, fear, and shame that are universal to the human experience of catharsis and growth. With extraordinary insight into our most basic need for trust and connection, The Coach House expertly builds tension as it brings into the open our primal instincts for survival and community.

TERRORISM: Commentary on Security Documents Volume 105 Kristen Boon, Aziz Huq, Douglas Lovelace, 2010-02-25. Volume 105 of Terrorism Commentary on Security Documents. Narco Terrorism brings researchers up to date on U.S. and international efforts to stem terrorism related to drug trafficking. In the pages of this volume, readers will find both legal documents from criminal cases against narco terrorists and governmental reports on how to approach the problem on a broader level. After showing recent trends in combating narco terrorism globally, Volume 105 focuses on the rising drug crises in Colombia and Afghanistan. Researchers will find in this volume not just U.S. agencies' major reports on international drug trafficking but also similarly comprehensive reports from international organizations from NGOs to the U.N. These reports place a particular focus on the connection between terrorist activity and the global narcotics trade. The section on Colombia, while updating readers on the international struggle with that country's drug cartels, also includes an analysis of the political, diplomatic, and economic challenges in intervening there. The Afghanistan portion of the volume shows how the U.S. has tried to confront the heroin trade that has funded the Taliban, there including an example of how the U.S. government has used criminal prosecutions domestically to curb that trade. Narco-terrorism Kristen

Boon, Aziz Huq, Douglas Lovelace, 2010 Volume 105 Narco Terrorism explores the legal aspects of combatting narco terrorism domestically in the U S and through international endeavors in Colombia and Afghanistan This book serves as a one volume guide to the relationship between the drug trade and terrorism The volume s sections on Afghanistan and Colombia demonstrate the challenges faced by the international legal community in thwarting that relationship
