Moreschi The Last Castrato:

Moreschi Nicholas Clapton, 2004 Behind the extraordinary sound of the voice of the last castrato lies a strange and lonely life lived in the shadow of great events and institutions a personality glimpsed by inference and allusion Moreschi and the Voice of the Castrato Nicholas Clapton, 2008 Known as the Angel of Rome Alessandro Moreschi was the last surviving castrato singer of the Vatican choir and the only castrati whose voice was recorded Its ethereal haunting quality was highly prized for centuries in the papal basilicas and opera houses of Europe readers can request a copy on CD using details in the book The castrati tradition was established in Italy in the sixteenth century by Pope Clement VIII and by the seventeenth century had moved onto the secular operatic stage where castrato singers were feted as the pop stars of their day No other singers came close to matching their fame and notoriety By the nineteenth century however their very existence had become an embarrassment and when Moreschi himself joined the Sistine Chapel in 1883 there were only six castrati left in the choir and by 1903 they were officially no more The strange and lonely life of Alessandro Moreschi was lived in the shadows of great events and great institutions his personality glimpsed only by inference and allusion Written by the acclaimed musicologist and countertenor Nicholas Clapton this is a perceptive and informed study of the last survivor of a perennially intriguing part of Western cultural history Clapton addresses the complexities inherent in such a complicated and historically neglected subject establishing that castrato singers were an integral part of the lineage of Western music that should not be judged or condemned from the perspective of the twenty first century A professor of singing at the Royal Academy of Music Nicholas Clapton's career as a counter tenor has seen him particularly involved in performing the repertoire of the great castrati In 2006 he produced and presented a television documentary on the castrato voice for the BBC The Modern Castrato Patricia Howard, 2014-05-01 The Modern Castrato Gaetano Guadagni and the Coming of a New Operatic Age chronicles the career of the most significant castrato of the second half of the eighteenth century Through a coincidence of time and place Gaetano Guadagni was on the forefront of the heroic opera reform and many forward thinking composers of the age created roles for him Author Patricia Howard reveals that Guadagni may have been the only singer of the time fully able to understand the demands and opportunities of this reform as well to possess the intelligence and self knowledge to realize that it suited his skills limitations and temperament perfectly making him the first castrato to embrace the concepts of modern singing The first full length biography of this outstanding singer The Modern Castrato illuminates the everyday lives of eighteenth century singers while spotlighting the historic high points of the century Most famous for his creation of the role of Orpheus in Gluck's Orfeo ed Euridice his career ranged widely and brought him into contact with many progressive theorists and composers such as Traetta Jommelli and Bertoni Howard's focus on the development of Guadagni's career pauses on essential related topics along the way such as the castrato in society the eighteenth century revolution in acting and the remarkable evidence for Guadagni's marionette theater Howard also assesses Guadagni's surviving compositions

Burning in Blueness The Dark-Light of a Countertenor Maxine Handy, 2011-06-21 Burning in Blueness is a haunting memoir of the world's foremost countertenor James Bowman The author lyrically portrays and interprets her affinity with the great man and his music The text is in three parts covering a total of three decades to include James work with David Munrow Britten and Pears and as the voice of Robert King's five year Purcell series The account is not chronological but traces the creative contact between the author's literary interests and James Bowman's musical genius The book makes a valuable contribution to musical history as the famous and intensely private countertenor himself has always resisted the suggestion of a conventional biography Burning in Blueness is part of James legacy as he approaches his 70th birthday in 2011
