Bloch, Schoenberg, and Bernstein David Michael Schiller, 2003 David Schiller's study of three works of Jewish music Ernest Bloch's Sacred Service 1933 Arnold Schoenberg's A Survivor from Warsaw 1947 and Leonard Bernstein's Kaddish 1963 reveals how in the mid twentieth century the problem of assimilation was acutely felt as the unfinished business of European Jewry at a time when American Jewry was creating its own distinctive culture albeit with European roots He shows how the business of assimilating Jewish music is as much a process audiences themselves engage in when they listen to

Jewish music as it is something critics and musicologists do when they write about it He further asserts that this process of assimilation is performed by the music itself that Jewish music assimilates into the Western tradition of art music when it appears in the form of concert genres like the oratorio cantata and symphony In rethinking the Jewish works of Bloch Schoenberg and Bernstein as part of the legacy of assimilation David Schiller sheds new light on an important aspect of their cultural and aesthetic achievements The Cambridge Companion to Jewish American Literature Hana

Ashenburg began to explore the rich and endlessly inventive choreographies different cultures and times have devised to mark a universal and deeply felt plight Contemporary North American culture favors a mourning that is private and virtually invisible But as Ashenburg reveals the grieving customs of the past were so integrated into daily life that ultimately they gave rise to public parks and ready to wear clothing Our keepsakes prescribed bereavement garb resting places mourning etiquette and ways of commiserating from wakes to Internet support groups remain clues to our most elemental beliefs and our most effective means of restoring selves and communities unraveled by loss The Red Squad Esther
