controversy Carbaugh shows how listening to communication in cultural scenes like these can help reveal how deeply identity is situated in various communicative practices These include a ritual of play symbolic allusions to different classes of people a diversity in the forms of names used upon marriage the play between genders and gender neutral language and the relationship between language nature community and politics Concluding commentary links the studies to the contemporary American scene and shows how the focus on communication can integrate into community living both shared and separate identities Emerging from these studies is a view of communication as not only a situated expression of selves in American scenes but also an active contributor in constituting those very identities and scenes Desire and the Political
