Putting The Children First The Changing Face Of Newarks Public Schools:

Putting the Children First Jonathan G. Silin, Carol Lippman, 2003-01-01 Putting the Children First chronicles the educational struggle that took place in the city of Newark amidst years of political upheaval and economic neglect. It is a story of inspiration and hope as we come to understand what happened when educators, parents, and community members pulled together to turn education around in one of the most historically troubled cities in America. This volume tells the remarkable story of Project New Beginnings, a 7 year collaboration between the Newark Public Schools and Bank Street College to restructure early childhood education. Reporting from the front lines of urban schools, this important volume gives voice to the variety of people involved in effective school reform: teachers, principals, staff developers, superintendents, and foundation executives. It illustrates how one school change project kept its focus on the needs of individual teachers and classrooms while negotiating the many demands in contemporary urban schools and confronts the difficult constraints and many hurdles the Project overcame to emerge as a model for school-university collaboration.

Critical Issues in Early Childhood Education Nicola Yelland, 2005-04-16 This book is a valuable contribution to the creation of a more critical and theoretically diverse approach to early childhood policy and practice. Through many vivid examples and a varied cast list of authors, both academics and practitioners, it shows the potential of this approach for pedagogical work in early childhood institutions and the education of the early childhood workforce. Professor Peter Moss, Institute of Education, University of London, UK. In the era of 'No Child Left Behind' in the U.S., you might think that the landscape of educational research and practice has been transformed into a row of scientific models and unvarying curricular scripts. Nicola Yelland's volume will persuade you that in contrast, the landscape in early childhood education is varied and full of unconventional angles. The authors examine virtually every significant aspect of curricular practice and postmodernist theory while challenging readers to be skeptics themselves, to engage with risky ideas on the way to transformative actions.

Celia Genishi, Professor of Education, Teachers College, Columbia University, USA. This book challenges long-established beliefs about early childhood education. It offers readers the opportunity to think about the aspects of their profession that are fundamental to providing effective and equitable educational opportunities for young children in the 21st century. Well-known contributors explore issues that are not only critical in terms of being fundamental to early childhood education but also critical in that they present alternative ideas and use frameworks that are not traditional to the field. Organized in three parts, the book considers contemporary views of early childhood education and teaching; the rethinking of early childhood practices; the emergence of new technologies and multiliteracies. The chapters in the book focus on aspects of early childhood education that have for a long time been accepted as truisms or have been too hard to deal with and thus often ignored. For example, they include a consideration of issues that range from examining play that might be sexual in focus or learning how to cope with traumatic events in young children's lives to the ways in which popular culture and new literacies impact on what young children are interested in and how they can be engaged in learning with information and communications technology Essential reading for students in all early childhood studies programmes as well as early childhood practitioners who want to engage in more reflective practices around their work Contributors Yarrow Andrew Chelsea Bailey Mindy Blaise Elizabeth Brooker Sheralyn Campbell Gaile Cannella Richard Johnson Anna Kilderry Jackie Marsh Jeanette Rhedding Jones Leonie Rowan Sharon Ryan Jonathan Silin Jennifer Sumsion Daniel Walsh Nicola Yelland

Early Childhood, Aging, and the Life Cycle Jonathan G. Silin, 2018-01-08 In this book Silin maps the common ground between early childhood and the period sociologists call young old age Emphasizing the continuities that bind children and adults rather than the differences that traditional developmental psychology claims separate us he focuses on the themes we all manage across a lifetime Building on memoir and narrative Silin argues that when we recognize how the concerns of childhood continue to thread their way through our experience we look anew at the shape of our lives This book highlights the powerful generative acts through which people of all ages find new meanings and relationships to compensate for the Imagining Children Otherwise Michael O'Loughlin, Richard T. Johnson, 2010. This collection of articles is a sociolinguistic response to the recent explosion of scholarly interest in issues of identity. Identity is central to all human beings as we are all concerned with how to conceive of ourselves, present ourselves and comprehend our relationships with others. The book tackles the problem of how personal identity is made visible and intelligible to others through language and how this may be constrained.

Part One: Emblematic identities focuses on the construction of self-definitions based on various forms of group identities, including national and ethnic ones. Part Two: Multicultural Identities looks at negotiation of identities in multicultural contexts involving relations of power, drawing on examples from Europe and the Americas. Finally, Part Three: Emergent Identities collects empirical studies based on a close reading of texts in which identities are being articulated and negotiated.

Being Bad Crystal T. Laura, 2015-04-28. Being Bad will change the way you think about the social and academic worlds of Black boys. In a poignant and harrowing journey from systems of education to systems of criminal justice, the author follows her brother Chris, who has been designated a bad kid by his school, a person of interest by the police, and a gangster by society. Readers first meet Chris in a Chicago jail where he is being held in connection with a string of street robberies. We then learn about Chris through insiders' accounts that stretch across time to reveal key events preceding this tragic moment. Together, these stories explore such timely issues as the under-education of Black males, the place and importance of scapegoats in our culture, the on-the-ground reality of zero tolerance, the role of mainstream media in constructing Black masculinity, and the critical relationships between schools and prisons. No other book combines rigorous research, personal narrative, and compelling storytelling to examine the educational experiences of young Black males.

Book Features: The natural history of an African American teenager navigating a labyrinth of social worlds. A detailed concrete example of the school-to-prison pipeline phenomenon. Rare insights of an African American family making sense of and healing from school wounds. Suggested resources of reliable places where educators can learn and do more.

Other books have focused on the school-to-prison pipeline or the educational experiences of young African American males, but I know of none that bring the combination of rigorous research, up-close personal vantage point, and skilled storytelling provided by Laura in Being Bad. Gregory Michie, Chicago public school teacher, author of Holler If You Hear Me, senior research associate at the Center for Policy Studies and Social Justice, Concordia University, Chicago. Refusing to separate the threads that bind the oppressive fabric of contemporary urban life, Laura has crafted a story that is at once astutely critical, funny, engaging, and tearful.
