Rhode, 2013-08-02 No occupation in America supplies a greater proportion of leaders than the legal profession yet it has done little to prepare them for this role Lawyers sit at the helm of a vast array of powerful law firms businesses governmental and nonprofit organizations Two of the last three presidents have been lawyers And yet almost no occupation rouses greater public distrust This paradox raises two important questions Why do we look to lawyers to lead and why do so many of them prove to be so ill prepared for that role In Lawyers as Leaders eminent law professor Deborah Rhode not only answers these questions but provides an invaluable overview for attorneys who occupy or aspire to leadership positions in public and private practice settings Drawing on a broad range of interdisciplinary research biographical profiles and empirical studies she covers everything from decision making conflict management and communication to ethics and diversity in leadership and what lawyers can do to advance both their professional development and the public interest Rhode contends that the legal profession attracts many people with the ambition and analytic capabilities to be leaders but often fails to develop other qualities that are essential to their effectiveness Successful lawyers need to be confident competitive and even combative but possessing such qualities often results in a lack of interpersonal sensitivity emotional intelligence and resilience the soft skills that both legal education and the reward structure of legal practice consistently undervalue The most successful leaders Rhode argues are those who can see past their own ambitions and retain a capacity for critical reflection on their performance The first serious work on leadership and law Lawyers as Leaders will prove essential to law students law faculty and lawyers holding or seeking governance positions

MASTERING DATA QUALITY MANAGEMENT Sandeep Rangineni, 2023-12-20 Lacking coherence and ambiguity Product information drives up the cost of compliance slows down the time it takes to bring a product to market creates inefficiencies in the supply chain and results in market penetration that is lower than anticipated Lacking coherence and ambiguity in addition to obscuring revenue recognition posing dangers causing sales inefficiencies leading to ill advised marketing campaigns and causing consumers to lose loyalty consumer information Due to the fact that the data from suppliers is inconsistent and fragmented there is a greater likelihood of exceptions from suppliers there is less efficiency in the supply chain and there is a negative impact on the attempts to manage spending Product Customer and Supplier are only few of the significant business entities that are included in Master Data There are many more important business entities as well Master data is the queen when it comes to the analytical and transactional operations that are necessary for the operation of a business The purpose of Master Data Management MDM which is a collection of applications and technology that consolidates cleans and augments this data is to achieve the aim of synchronizing this corporate master data with all of the applications business processes and analytical tools As a direct result of this operational efficiency effective reporting and decision making that is founded on facts are all significantly improved Over the course of the last several decades the landscapes of information technology have seen the proliferation of a multitude of new systems applications and technologies A significant number of data problems have surfaced as a consequence of this disconnected environment
