Gunaratne, Mark Pearson, Sugath Senarath, 2015-02-11 This book aims to be the first comprehensive exposition of mindful journalism drawn from core Buddhist ethical principles as a fresh approach to journalism ethics It suggests that Buddhist mindfulness strategies can be applied purposively in journalism to add clarity fairness and equity to news decision making and to offer a moral compass to journalists facing ethical dilemmas in their work It comes at a time when ethical values in the news media are in crisis from a range of technological commercial and social factors and when both Buddhism and mindfulness have gained considerable acceptance in Western societies Further it aims to set out foundational principles to assist journalists dealing with vulnerable sources and recovering from traumatic assignments

Consciousness and the Ontology of Properties Mihretu P. Guta, 2018-07-20 This book aims to show the centrality of a proper ontology of properties in thinking about consciousness Philosophers have long grappled with what is now known as the hard problem of consciousness i.e. how can subjective or qualitative features of our experience such as how a strawberry tastes arise from brain states More recently philosophers have incorporated what seems like promising empirical research from neuroscience and cognitive psychology in an attempt to bridge the gap between measurable mental states on the one hand and phenomenal qualities on the other In Consciousness and the Ontology of Properties many of the leading philosophers working on this issue as well as a few emerging scholars have written 14 new essays on this problem. The essays address topics as diverse as substance dualism, mental causation, the metaphysics of artificial intelligence, the logic of conceivability, constitution, extended minds, the emergence of consciousness and neuroscience, and the unity and neural correlates of consciousness, but are nonetheless unified in a collective objective: the need for a proper ontology of properties to understand the hard problem of consciousness, both on non-empirical and empirical grounds.

The Soul's Upward Yearning Robert Spitzer, S.J., Ph.D., 2015-10-03. Western culture has been moving away from its Christian roots for several centuries, but the turn from Christianity accelerated in the 20th century. At the core of this decline is a loss of a sense of our own transcendence. Scientific materialism has so seriously impacted our belief in human transcendence that many people find it difficult to believe in God and the human soul. This anti-transcendent perspective has not only cast its spell on the natural sciences, psychology, philosophy, and literature; it has also negatively impacted popular culture through the writings of Richard Dawkins, Daniel Dennett, and many others. The warning signs of this loss of transcendence have been expressed by thinkers as diverse as Carl Jung, psychiatrist Mircea Eliade, historian of religion Gabriel Marcel, philosopher C.S. Lewis, and J.R.R. Tolkien. These warnings were validated by a 2004 study in the American Journal of Psychiatry which showed that the absence of religion alone was responsible for a marked increase in suicide rates, sense of meaningless, substance abuse, separation from family, and other psychiatric problems. Thus, the loss of transcendence is negatively affecting not only individuals' sense of happiness, dignity, ideals, virtues, and destiny, but also the culture. Ironically, the evidence for transcendence is greater today than in any other period in history. The problem is this evidence has not been compiled and propagated. Fr. Spitzer's book provides a bright light in the midst of this cultural darkness by presenting both traditional and contemporary evidence for God and a transphysical soul from several major sources. He also shows how human consciousness and intelligence are completely special and cannot be replicated by artificial intelligence or animal consciousness. We are transcendent beings with souls capable of surviving bodily death, self-reflective beings aware of perfect truth, love, goodness, and beauty. We are beings with an unrestricted capacity to know and create science, law, culture, art, music, literature, and so much more. The evidence reveals that we have the dignity of being created in the very image of God, and if we underestimate it, we will undervalue one another, underlive our lives, and underachieve our destiny. This work is the most comprehensive treatment of human transcendence available today.

Anatomy of Spirituality: Portrait of the Soul Chander Behl, 2015-04-27. The domain of spirituality, separated from its theological overburden believes in the existence of a spiritual self presumed to be distinctly separate from the psychological self The spiritual eternal self also known as the soul or spirit sometimes supported by an overarching Spirit is asserted to be operating behind the ephemeral self This book takes a contrarian stance it argues that the premise of the soul concept is obtained through the magic of language maintained through the marvel of the brain's biochemistry and sustained through the mirage of the psychological juggernauts of the brain The magic the marvel and the mirage together bring about subtle shifts as the linguistic brain suppresses many psychological details habitually applies mental templates such as inversions and dichotomies and enhances its language by coining religious and spiritual metaphors The consequence of these changes is that the usual flickering self begins to be impressed by itself believing it is buttressed by something transcendental and eternal within the soul or the spirit The self although indoctrinated during its formative years also begins to assimilate and accept the opinion that the overwhelming weight of religious doctrines and dogmas the overburden signifies as the legitimate proof for the eternal soul

Studies in No-Self Physicalism Feng Ye, 2022-12-12 This book demonstrates how a radical version of physicalism No Self Physicalism can offer an internally coherent and comprehensive philosophical worldview It first argues that a coherent physicalist should explicitly treat a cognitive subject merely as a physical thing and should not vaguely assume an amorphous or even soul like subject or self This approach forces the physicalist to re-examine traditional core philosophical notions such as truth analyticity modality apriority because our traditional understandings of them appear to be predicated on a cognitive subject that is not literally just a physical thing In turn working on the assumption that a cognitive subject is itself completely physical namely a neural network based robot programmed by evolution hence the term No Self the book proposes physicalistic theories on conceptual representation truth analyticity modality the nature of mathematics epistemic justification knowledge apriority and intuition as well as a physicalistic ontology These are meant to show that this No Self Physicalism perhaps the most minimalistic and radical version of physicalism proposed to date can accommodate many aspects that have traditionally interested philosophers Given its refreshingly radical approach and painstakingly developed content the book is of interest to anyone who is seeking a coherent philosophical worldview in this age of science

Constructing the Self Valerie Gray Hardcastle, 2008-08-28 Constructing the Self analyzes the narrative conception of self filling a serious gap in philosophy and grounding discussion in other disciplines It answers the questions What are the connections between our interpretations selfhood and conscious phenomenal experience Why do we believe that our interpretations of our life defining events are narrative in nature From the myriad of thoughts actions and emotions which constitute our experiences how do we choose what is interpretively important the tiny subset that composes the self By synthesizing the different approaches to understanding the self from philosophy of mind developmental psychology psychopathology and cognitive science this monograph gives us deeper insight into what being minded being a person and having a self are as well as clarifies the difference and relation between conscious and unconscious mental states and normal and abnormal minds The explication also affords new perspectives on human development and human emotion Series A
