The Commerce of Vision Peter John Brownlee, 2018-08-14 When Ralph

Waldo Emerson wrote in 1837 that Our Age is Ocular he offered a succinct assessment of antebellum America's cultural commercial and physiological preoccupation with sight In the early nineteenth century the American city's visual culture was manifest in pamphlets newspapers painting exhibitions and spectacular entertainments businesses promoted their wares to consumers on the move with broadsides posters and signboards and advances in ophthalmological sciences linked the mechanics of vision to the physiological functions of the human body Within this crowded visual field sight circulated as a metaphor as a physiological process and as a commercial commodity Out of the intersection of these various discourses and practices emerged an entirely new understanding of vision The Commerce of Vision integrates cultural history art history and material culture studies to explore how vision was understood and experienced in the first half of the nineteenth century Peter John Brownlee examines a wide selection of objects and practices that demonstrate the contemporary preoccupation with ocular culture and accurate vision from the birth of ophthalmic surgery to the business of opticians from the typography used by urban sign painters and job printers to the explosion of daguerreotypes and other visual forms and from the novels of Edgar Allan Poe and Herman Melville to the genre paintings of Richard Caton Woodville and Francis Edmonds In response to this expanding visual culture antebellum Americans cultivated new perceptual practices habits and aptitudes At the same time however new visual experiences became quickly integrated with the machinery of commodity production and highlighted the physical shortcomings of sight as well as nascent ethical shortcomings of a surface based culture Through its theoretically acute and extensively researched analysis The Commerce of Vision synthesizes the broad culturing of vision in antebellum America

Illuminated Paris S. Hollis Clayson, 2019-05-16 The City of Light For many these four words instantly conjure late nineteenth century Paris and the garish colors of Toulouse Lautrec's iconic posters More recently the Eiffel Tower's nightly show of sparkling electric lights has come to exemplify our fantasies of Parisian nightlife Though we reflect longingly on such scenes in Illuminated Paris Hollis Clayson shows that there's more to these clichés than meets the eye In this richly illustrated book she traces the dramatic evolution of lighting in Paris and how artists responded to the shifting visual and cultural scenes that resulted from these technologies While older gas lighting produced a haze of orange new electric lighting was hardly an improvement the glare of experimental arc lights themselves dangerous left figures looking pale and ghoulish As Clayson shows artists' representations of these new colors and shapes reveal turn of the century concerns about modernization as electric lighting came to represent the harsh glare of rapidly accelerating social change At the same time in part thanks to American artists visiting the city these works of art also produced our enduring romantic view of Parisian glamour and its Belle époque
