Role Of Legumes In The Farming Systems Of The Mediterranean Areas:

The Role of Legumes in the Farming Systems of the Mediterranean Areas A.E. Osman, M.M. Ibrahim, M.A.

Jones, 1990-01-31 Legumes are an important source of protein for humans and animals. They provide nutritionally rich crop residues for animal feed and play a key role in maintaining the productivity of soils particularly through biological nitrogen fixation. They are therefore of immense value in rainfed farming systems. The International Center for Agricultural Research in the Dry Areas (ICARDA) has a responsibility for research on food, pasture and forage legumes. The Center also has the broad objective of improving livestock production in rainfed farming systems. Although food legumes have been known and grown by farmers in the WANA region for a long time, their productivity has remained low and variable. Forage legumes on the other hand are not so well known by farmers of the region and their role in the farming systems is not so well understood. Thus we need to develop the concept of using forage legumes as crops and to fit them into cropping systems. In its efforts to increase the productivity of food legumes and develop the legume based crop-livestock systems, ICARDA has established a network of scientists in the different National Agricultural Research Systems in the region. To further strengthen this network, ICARDA convened a workshop on 'The Role of Legumes in the Farming Systems of Mediterranean Areas' in Tunis, Tunisia, 20-24 June 1988. This workshop was co-sponsored by UNDP, who also contributed funds for this publication.

Plant Genetic Resources of Legumes in the Mediterranean Nigel Maxted, Sarita Jane Bennett, 2013-03-14 Genetic erosion that is the loss of native plant and genetic diversity has been exponential from the Mediterranean Basin through the Twentieth century This careless eradication of species and genetic diversity as a result of human activities from a hot spot of diversity threatens sustainable agriculture and food security for the temperate regions of the world Since the early 1900s there has been a largely ad hoc movement to halt the loss of plant diversity and enhance its utilisation The Convention on Biological Diversity and Food and Agriculture Organisation of the United Nations International Undertaking on Plant Genetic Resources both highlight the need to improve conservation methodologies and enhance utilisation techniques It has been argued that the most important component of biodiversity is the genetic diversity of crop and forage species used to feed humans and livestock These cultivated and related wild species provides the raw material for further selection and improvement Leguminosae species are of major economic importance peas chickpeas lentils and faba beans as well as numerous forage species and provide a particularly rich source of protein for human and animal foods Their distribution is concentrated in the Mediterranean region and therefore the improvement of their conservation and use in the region is critical This text is designed to help ensure an adequate breadth of legume diversity is conserved and to help maximise the use of that conserved diversity The subjects of conservation and use of legume diversity the Mediterranean ecosystem and taxonomy of legumes are introduced Generic reviews of the taxonomy centre of diversity ecogeographic distribution genetic diversity distribution conservation status conservation gaps and future research needs are provided along with a discussion of the importance of rhizobia to the maintenance of legume diversity Current ex situ and in situ conservation activities as well current legume uses are reviewed In conclusion future priorities for ex situ and in situ plant genetic conservation and use of Mediterranean legumes are highlighted All contributors look forward rather than simply reviewing past and current activities and therefore it is hoped that the identification of genetic erosion location of taxonomic and genetic diversity and promotion of more efficient

Elkan, R.G. Upchurch, 2012-12-06 In the 100 years since the legume Rhizobium symbiotic nitrogen fixation interaction was first described interest in this field has grown rapidly The types of studies have been cyclical in nature involving a cross section of disciplines The availability of cheap nitrogenous fertilizers caused much of the biological nitrogen fixation research to become more theoretical in the developed world The high cost of energy coupled with environmental concerns and the interest in sustainable agriculture has stimulated research in symbiotic nitrogen fixation The development of modern genetic techniques has resulted in interdisciplinary research on plant microbe interactions controlling nitrogen fixation This has resulted in a better understanding of environmental factors influencing the nodulation process chemical signalling between the symbiotic partners and the nature of the specificity between host plant and microsymbiont This volume summarizes the diverse research efforts in biological nitrogen fixation

The Significance and Regulation of Soil Biodiversity Harold P. Collins, G. Philip Robertson, Michael J.

Klug, 2012-12-06 The sustainability of both natural and managed ecosystems is strongly influenced by soil biological processes A major question in soil biology and ecosystem ecology is the extent to which these processes are affected by the function and structure of the soil's biotic community The Significance and Regulation of Soil Biodiversity presents the discussions of a group of soil biologists and ecosystem ecologists in which they synthesize available information present innovative methodologies and develop cross taxa and cross habitat collaborations to advance our understanding of soil biodiversity The volume addresses the extent and regulation of soil biodiversity and describes initial approaches to the linking of soil biodiversity and ecosystem function Audience Researchers and students in a wide range of environmental scientific disciplines
