Management Of Higher Education:

Higher Education Management Warner, David, Palfreyman, David, 1996-08-01 Many higher education institutions are like small towns meeting the needs of their members by providing not only specialist teaching and research activities but also residential accommodation catering telecommunications counselling sports facilities and so on The management of these institutions is very complex requiring both generalist and specialist knowledge and skills and the move to formal strategic planning means that it is no longer acceptable for higher education managers to be aware only of their own relatively narrow areas of expertise All new managers would benefit from an holistic perspective on managing a whole institution As such individuals are promoted such helicopter vision becomes a precondition of their and their institution s success Higher Education Management provides the first comprehensive account of non academic higher education management contributions from distinguished practitioners of university management a key resource for all aspiring trainee and practising managers in higher education

Changing Governance and Management in Higher Education William Locke, William K. Cummings, Donald Fisher, 2011-06-01 External drivers are pressing for a more privatized approach to higher education and research a greater reliance on technology and the more efficient use of resources This book analyzes recent changes in institutional governance and management in higher education and their impact on the academy and academic work It draws on findings from an international study based on a survey of academics in eighteen countries It opens with a chapter outlining the key issues drivers and challenges that inform contemporary discourse around academic work and the profession in general It then focuses on national case studies comparing changes in the top tier with the lower tiers of national systems public and private institutions and other differentiating factors appropriate in each country which include mature and emerging higher education systems It concludes by proposing a series of generalizations about the contemporary status of governance and management of institutions of higher education
