Wani,K. V. Raju,2020-01-22 This book focuses on developing an integrated holistic approach for harnessing the potential of rain fed agriculture In this approach rainwater management through harvesting and recharging the groundwater is used as an entry point activity for increasing the productivity for farmers through enhanced water use efficiency To provide the holistic and integrated solutions the approach of consortium through building partnerships with different stakeholders eg different research institutions State National and International development departments eg Department of Agriculture Department of Animal Husbandry etc Non Government Organizations NGOs Farmers Organizations Community based Organizations CBOs along with market linkages through private companies Advances in Soil Science ,2012-12-06 The world population in 1950 was 2.5 billion and is more than 5 billion today The agriculture community however has responded remarkably well to meeting the increased need for food and fiber While the population growth during this period averaged almost 2% annually the production of grain increased at an even faster rate From 1950 to 1973 grain production increased 3.1% annually but slowed to about 2% from 1973 to 1984 There fore as a whole the world has more grain per capita available today than ever before Several countries that were food importers just a few years ago are food exporters today The world carry over stocks today are the highest in years While the major concern just a few years ago was whether the world could produce adequate food the problem for many countries today is how to export their surpluses Although the world as a whole has surplus food supplies there are millions of people without adequate food to exist and there are additional millions who have a bare subsistence diet at best The average daily calorie supply for the developed countries is more than 3,300 per person while the average for the developing countries is only about 2,200 The major global food production problems have shifted from Asia to Africa where malnutrition poverty and starvation are attracting world attention Agriculture in Dry Lands I. Arnon,2012-12-02 Throughout history man has by over use consistently reduced the productive capacity of dry lands This degradation of one third of the land area of the globe is unfortunately increasing In recent years world interest has turned to the problems of pollution of the environment and the impending food shortage as world population grows explosively Thus the attention of international and other agricultural bodies has turned to the need for preserving and developing more effectively the agricultural potential of these areas This book provides a comprehensive review of present knowledge of the agriculture of dry lands with special emphasis on measures for conserving their natural resources Management practices are described which aim at optimizing productivity of rainfed and irrigated agriculture without adverse effects on sustainability Land use in the dry regions and its evolution throughout history is described and analysed and the lessons to be learnt from destructive technologies are stressed In particular current proposals for an alternative agriculture are discussed and their justification is questioned This is a generalist work which specialists can also find interesting not only in their own discipline but as a concise way of acquainting themselves with the state of the art in associated fields Increasing specialisation with each discipline using its own vocabulary leads inevitably to communication problems and the need for multi disciplinary teams makes inter discipline communication indispensable Sustainable Development of Dryland Agriculture in India R.P.
