Management Science for Decision Makers Larry M. Austin, Parviz Ghandforoush, 1993      Management Science Decision Makers Austin, 1993-01-01      Management Science Hans Daellenbach, Donald McNickle, Shane Dye, 2017-09-16

Management Science provides a comprehensive accessible overview of the subject incorporating a broad set of approaches and tools. The authors explore both soft and hard methodologies and highlight conceptual aspects rather than the mathematics of the techniques or computer methods. The book is therefore suitable for students and readers with a wide range of mathematical abilities at both the undergraduate and MBA level. The book bases management science within a clear systems thinking framework. Ideas and concepts are demonstrated with real life examples and case studies. Readers are shown how decision making over time under uncertainty and subject to constraints, multiple objectives and value and perception conflicts can be modelled all within this system thinking framework. The second edition of Management Science offers an emphasis on problem formulation indicating how management science and operational research techniques fit into the wider problem solving process. Revised chapters on queuing simulation and problem structuring methods, updated coverage of forecasting, linear and integer programming. New sections on the role of management science consultants. Improved pedagogy, navigation and design. Up to date coverage of software. Real world case studies encouraging the reader to apply the concepts studied. Management Science, DECISION MAKING STYLE: Social and Creative Dimensions DEV VERMA, 2009-12. As a leader or responsible person we often get stuck with decision making. It's our job to make decisions that are in the best interest of the whole organisation or to ourselves. We must consider the good of many, not of a few. This is a big responsibility and very often people don't appreciate our efforts. In fact, many times people get angry at us because of the decisions we make to help them. In this book we discuss decision making style, not the decision itself but style. We hope that readers will appreciate this effort.

Environmental Health Sciences Decision Making Institute of Medicine, Board on Population Health and Public Health Practice, Roundtable on Environmental Health Sciences, Research, and Medicine, 2009-01-08. Environmental health decision making can be a complex undertaking as there is the need to navigate and find balance among three core elements: science, policy, and the needs of the American public. Policy makers often grapple with how to make appropriate decisions when the research is uncertain. The challenge for the policy maker is to make the right decision with the best available data in a transparent process. The Environmental Health Sciences Decision Making workshop, the first in a series, was convened to inform the Roundtable on Environmental Health Sciences Research and Medicine on emerging issues in risk management, weight of evidence, and ethics that influence environmental health decision making. The workshop summarized in this volume included an overview of the principles underlying decision making, the role of evidence, and challenges for vulnerable populations and ethical issues of conflict of interest, scientific integrity, and transparency. The workshop engaged science interest groups, industry, government, and the academic sector.
