Management Action Models Of Administrative Decisions:

Management Action Charles Edward Weber,1969 The Administration of Health Systems Martin Harrison,2017-07-05
In the late 1960s American society entered a period of rapidly accelerating social change Certainty that U S vast scientific and technical capability would be able to find solutions to all problems began to turn to concern as organizational efforts were unable to keep pace with new developments in a variety of areas The health field with its focus on the well being of individuals felt the impact of these changes particularly strongly Medicines became more focused on isolated health practices as the patient s needs were attended to within groups of unrelated biological systems The emerging thought represented in this collection pushes for the perception of health as a right rather than as something to be earned It argues that deprivation of life saving and life fulfilling opportunities to any populations should not be tolerated The editors also demand more awareness of the implications of isolated health activities and make the case for a comprehensive total health care system Health is no longer just a biological function quality of life is also a concern First published in 1971 by administrators of health agencies teachers and health personnel this work presents perspectives on problems and interpretations of forces and issues that are of continuing importance to health administrators The emphasis on the need to focus on the whole patient rather than just their illness and on providing them with a good life not just a disease free one is still as valid today as it was when this volume was initially published Management in the Human Service Organization United States. Woodside,2012-06-25 Market Driven Thinking provides a useful mental model and tools for learning about how executives and customers think within marketplace contexts When the need to learn about how executives and customer think is recognized a solution is usually implemented automatically with no thought given to the relative worth of alternative methods to learn fill the need Thus the dominant logics most often implemented methods to learn about thinking are written surveys and focus group interviews two research methods that almost always fail to provide valid and useful answers on how and why executives and customers think the way they do Through descriptive research MDT examines the actual thinking and actions by executives and customers related to making marketplace decisions The book aims to achieve three objectives Increase the reader's knowledge of the unconscious and conscious thinking processes of participants marketplace contexts Provide research tools useful for revealing the unconscious and conscious thinking processes of executives and customers Provide in depth examples of these research tools in both business to business and business to consumer contexts This book asks how we actually go about thinking examining this process and its influences within the context of B2B and B2C marketplaces in developed nations
