Hansen,Hans Stubbe Solgaard,2006-04-18 Retailing and consumer patronage behavior constitute fascinating research areas within the field of marketing Retailing contributes to an increasing proportion of gross national products and employment but is however also faced with problems and opportunities like increased product complexity rapidly changing consumer expectations and the introduction of new technologies Also consumers are facing markets of increasingly complexity when making decisions on how to conduct their behavior primarily as a result of new technologies shorter products life cycles in general and higher complexity of products and services In this book we present and deal with various topics in relation to retailing and consumer patronage behavior Together these topics involve different problem settings and draw on different theories models and statistical techniques However it is common to all the results presented in the following chapters with the exception of chapter II that they in total or in part rest on a major survey which was conducted by the authors in 1999

Our now retired colleague Hans Engström participated in preparing this survey and did a great job in providing research ideas. For this and for many stimulating discussions we are highly grateful. The National Union Catalogs, 1963-1964
