Managing Construction Industry Development Lessons From Singapore's Experience:

Managing Construction Industry Development George Ofori, 1993 This study looks at how the construction industry of developing countries can be improved with special attention to the role and importance of a central agency in administering the industry's continuous development. The book first reviews the nature and problems facing the construction industry in developing countries and the recommendations commonly made which in turn show the need for action of a different nature. Part 2 then focuses on the Singapore experience over a 25 year period as it attempted to develop its industry without a central agency for construction development later set up as the CIBD of Singapore while Part 3 considers the circumstances behind the Board's formation and assesses its work. Lessons from Singapore's experience especially relating to the setting up and work of a central agency and factors contributing to the success of such an agency are discussed in the final part.

Policies and Measures for Small-contractor Development in the Construction Industry, 1996      Improving the Performance of Construction Industries for Developing Countries Pantaleo D. Rwelamila, Abdul-Rashid

Abdul-Aziz, 2020-12-21 This book documents the experiences, development and prospects of the construction industry in numerous developing countries. It will provide a strong base of reference for countries looking to improve their construction industries as part of their wider economic development programme. The opening chapter presents a strategic overview of the contents of the book and each country specific chapter is structured to consider the legal and policy frameworks, administrative infrastructure and procedures and implementation mechanisms as well as the experiences, current activities and future plans and programmes with respect to construction industry development in each country. The concluding chapter looks forward and considers the implications of future trends for the construction industries in developing countries and the actions which will be required to address them. Chapters cover India, Singapore, Chile, South Africa, Tanzania, Malaysia, Botswana, Ghana, Uganda, Indonesia, China, Croatia and Eswatini. Readers will learn about the wealth of comparable stories from global coverage from the detailed country specific cases. Building on important scholarly works in the field, this book is essential reading for academics, researchers and policy makers in built environments, economics, construction management, infrastructure management and the wider construction industry.      New Perspectives on Construction in Developing Countries

George Ofori, 2012-06-26 Developing countries face the challenge of maintaining economic growth and socio-economic development at the core of which sits the construction industry. Considerable research on construction in developing countries took place in the 1970s and 1980s but little since a gap which this book fills. Including contributions from prominent academics and practitioners in Australia, China, the Netherlands, Portugal, Singapore, South Africa, Switzerland and the UK, this is a truly international analysis of a subject of global interest. The most insightful and relevant of recent research on topics such as Millennium Development Goals, the informal construction sector, human resource development, technology, finance and social change are all addressed in the context of the construction industry in the developing world.

Also considered are other key aspects of construction industry development such as institution building nurturing of contractors and consultants and championing of industry development programmes While the challenge has grown and the needs have become even more pressing the research to date has rarely presented effective solutions Focussing on those aspects of the construction industry most crucial to development this is a much needed up to date study that sheds new light on a variety of concepts and issues This is essential reading for researchers professionals and students interested in the construction industry in developing countries Readers of this book will be interested in its companion volume Contemporary Issues of Construction in Developing Countries

Construction Quality and the Economy Low Sui Pheng, Lau Shing Hou, 2019-01-08 This book discusses the relationship between construction quality and the state of the Singapore national economy and describes how construction quality is affected as contracting firms strategically manage issues relating to profitability and survivability during economic boom and bust cycles Adopting a three pronged approach to explain the key issues the book first explains the effect of the state of the Singapore national economy boom or bust on the construction quality delivered by contracting firms Secondly it explains how contracting firms respond to the performance of the national economy through their dynamic bidding strategies leading to significant quality trade offs in some instances especially when there is imprecise market information Thirdly it recommends various strategic measures that key stakeholders and government policy makers can take to circumvent the quality trade off in the construction industry when faced with dynamic fluctuations in the performance of the national economy Although the book focuses on Singapore it appeals to a global audience since countries worldwide and their respective building related stakeholders face the same issues in terms of the time cost quality trade off decision making process involving the entire supply chain

Infrastructure Investments in Developing Economies Giang Dang, Low Sui Pheng, 2014-10-18 This book aims to provide knowledge on how infrastructure is planned and built in a typical developing country and what key variables are there in the system limiting the efficient use of public investments in infrastructure The book begins with a comprehensive literature review on construction and economic development and trade and economic development The focus of the book is on the case of Vietnam with lessons drawn for other developing economies The book employs the mixed use of data to provide a stronger basis for analysis and interpretation of related government policies Based on the research findings the book recommends significant capacity building work for Vietnam to develop capacities that would remove constraints on the efficient use of public investments in infrastructure The general principles of significant capacity building work which are useful for policy implications are introduced in the book Analysts academics public and private communities in developing countries can adopt the research findings as guiding principles to bring about changes in their current use of public investments in infrastructure thus supporting their trade and economic growth in the long term

Hazards and the Built Environment Lee Bosher, 2008-05-06 Presenting a range of multi hazard adaptation issues this book illustrates that non structural as well as structural adaptations

need to be considered in order to reduce the threat and impact of disasters in the built environment

The Global Cement Industry Sui Pheng Low, Ong Bee Tan, 1993 Cement is one of the most basic building materials in the global construction industry. Nevertheless, although it occupies an important role in construction, its characteristics in the global sense are still relatively unknown. The findings in this book reveal, for example, that the manufacture of cement is predominantly capital intensive; that the production and distribution of cement is a highly vertically integrated trade; that the major cement producers resort to large scale price cutting when there are production surpluses; that geographical affinity can determine the flow of the global cement trade; and that the global demand for cement is erratic and more

Contemporary Issues in Construction in Developing Countries George Ofori, 2012-06-26 Economic growth and socio-economic development are particularly important for developing countries, and the construction industry plays a central role in driving both of these. Traditionally, the issues faced have been assumed to be merely offshoots of those encountered in industrialised nations and are usually discussed only in this context. In addition, research in construction management and economics has generally failed to take proper account of the unique or highly emphasised characteristics of the industries in developing countries or their economic and social environment. This volume challenges underlying assumptions and focuses on the distinct characteristics of construction in developing countries. In so doing, it considers the issues from the perspective of the developing countries themselves to present a strong contemporary picture for researchers. It forms a companion volume to New Perspectives on Construction in Developing Countries, which provides an update on the generic subjects relating to the construction industry in developing countries and covers new concepts and issues

Building Maintenance Technology in Tropical Climates Clive Briffett, 1995 The main objective of the book is to highlight the important problems in building maintenance technology, broadly defined as the application of scientific principles to the care and preservation of building assets, suggest how they may be overcome, with special reference to tropical climates, and encourage a greater participation of professionals in building maintenance work. The contents cover a wide range of problems mostly derived from the experience of the writers with buildings located in Singapore and the South East Asia region. These are dealt with under five general areas: 1. Structure and Roof Systems; 2. Finishing Systems; 3. Natural Systems; 4. Access Systems. Building professionals, property managers, developers, and others in the industry should find the book useful

Research Companion to Construction Economics Ofori, George, 2022-03-15 This innovative Research Companion considers the history, nature, and status of construction economics and its need for development as a field in order to be recognised as a distinct discipline. It presents a state-of-the-art review of construction economics, identifying areas for further research

Project Management - an Artificial Intelligent (Ai) Approach Kim Hin David HO, 2020-08-04 This book is a novel treatment of modern project management from artificial intelligence (AI), entailing data analytics, neural networks, fuzzy logic, genetic algorithms, and data visualisation, deploying agent-based modelling for the knowledge-based urban development (KBUD). The book can be adopted by design engineers urban planners project managers quantity and real estate surveyors public and private real estate developers architects and scholars Chapter 1 discusses that the traditional statistical method which needs a priori parametric knowledge of linear or non linear functions between the input and output variables Neural networks do not need such information to predict future possible outcomes Chapter 2 reiterates that new private office and residential supply like in Hong Kong depend on current market prices relative to the replacement or building costs The market should equate prices with replacement costs that include the cost of land Prices and costs may diverge because of lags and delays in the building process Chapter 3 discusses the specific tasks to be planned to develop life cycle models and metrics to analyse technology and innovation Such models can look into life cycle cost analysis LCA Chapter 4 draws attention to the trend that in a highly volatile world the best point estimate of classical DCF model is not a reliable indication of investment worth The fuzzy discounted cash flow DCF model offers a natural and intuitive way based on a set of fuzzy inputs The fuzzy net present value NPV for an office cum retail development is so estimated to provide the approximated evaluation of investment worth Chapter 5 discusses the fuzzy tactical asset allocation FTAA model incorporating intuitive decision making into the direct real estate project asset allocation process from the expert investor prospective The FTAA model improves the efficiency of asset allocation adopting fuzzy set theory and fuzzy optimization theory Chapter 6 reiterates that today's city planners see the KBUD strategy as a new form of urban renewal for industrial cities Planners believe KBUDs bring economic technological progress and sustainable socio spatial order to the contemporary city Chapter 6 addresses the need for an urban design criterion that aids in efficient land use planning for KBUDs
