Drawing together diverse research perspectives and theoretical underpinnings, this handbook explores gender as a social category and examines cultural and social differences. Bringing together diverse perspectives from around the world including from Africa, Europe, the Middle East, the UK, and the USA, the volume sets out the gender and educational leadership and management field, providing a snapshot of the field as it stands, signalling its development and directions for future development. It offers focused reviews of empirical research on particular aspects of the field and presents new insights from research findings and methodological approaches. Monthly Catalog of United States Government Publications United States.

Superintendent of Documents, 1990. Management, Education and Competitiveness Rolv Petter Amdam, 2013-04-15. Globally, two processes are striking about modern management education. Firstly, management education is changing rapidly to meet new challenges from business and governments and to improve competitiveness. Secondly, management education has become one of the fastest growing areas in higher education. Management Education and Competitiveness provides a wide overview including studies by scholars in nine countries in Europe, Japan, and the United States. It examines how countries have developed different national courses in spite of strong influence from the American system of management education. It also examines the links between education and business. This collection of essays will be invaluable to managers and professionals in educational research and business administration. Economics Working Papers John Fletcher, 1978.

The Innovation Imperative: Contributing to Productivity, Growth and Well-Being OECD, 2015-10-14. And how can government itself be more innovative? The OECD Innovation Strategy provides a set of Social Capital and Local Water Management in Egypt Dalia M. Gouda, 2016-11-02. From the 1980s onward, billions of dollars were poured into irrigation improvement programs in Egypt. These aimed at improving local Nile water management through the introduction of more water efficient technology and by placing management of the improved systems in the hands of local water user associations. The central premise of most of these programs was that the functioning of such associations could rely on the revival of traditional forms of social capital.

social networks norms and trust for their success Social Capital and Local Water Management in Egypt shows how the far reaching social changes wrought at the village level in Egypt through the twentieth century rendered such a premise implausible at best and invalid at worst Dalia Gouda examines networks of social relationships and their impact on the exercise of social control and the formation of collective action at the local level and their change over time in four villages in the Delta and Fayoum governorates Outlining three time frames pre 1952 1952 73 and 1973 to the present and moving between multiple actors farmers government officials and donor agencies Gouda shows how institutional and technological changes during each period and the social changes that coincided with them yielded mixed successes for the water user associations in respect of water management Social Capital and Local Water Management in Egypt is essential reading for anyone working in the field of community based natural resource management in Egypt including policymakers and practitioners donor agencies and civil society organizations as well as anthropologists and sociologists
