Pest Management Programs for Deciduous Tree Fruits and Nuts D. J. Boethal,2013-11-11 Pest Management Programs for Deciduous Tree Fruits and Nuts attempts to present the current status of pest management programs in orchard ecosystems The book is a collection of papers from a symposium convened on the subject for the 1977 National Meeting of the Entomological Society of America and invitational papers on commodities not covered during the symposium In recent years books have appeared on integrated pest management IPM however most of these have concentrated on field crop IPM with an occasional chapter on fruits No publication presently exists which brings together information on the pest management programs currently being conducted on the major nut crops almonds pecans and walnuts Because it is the first treatment for almonds and walnuts the authors of these chapters have attempted not only to present the current IPM technology but the historical data which led to the contemporary programs Two chapters appear on pecan IPM The first concentrates on the development of a management program for the pecan weevil the key arthropod pest of pecans while the second discusses the implementation of pilot pecan IPM programs in two southeastern states The latter chapter illustrates that even with a limited data bank the pesticide load in pecan orchards can be reduced by the adoption of the IPM approach to pest control

Page's Engineering Weekly ,1918 CRM ,1994 Collaborating at the Trowel's Edge Stephen W. Silliman,2022-08-23 A fundamental issue for twenty first century archaeologists is the need to better direct their efforts toward supporting rather than harming indigenous peoples Collaborative indigenous archaeology has already begun to stress the importance of cooperative community based research this book now offers an up to date assessment of how Native American and non native archaeologists have jointly undertaken research that is not only politically aware and historically minded but fundamentally better as well Eighteen contributors many with tribal ties cover the current state of collaborative indigenous archaeology in North America to show where the discipline is headed Continent wide cases from the Northeast to the Southwest demonstrate the situated nature of local practice alongside the global significance of further decolonizing archaeology And by probing issues of indigenous participation with an eye toward method theory and pedagogy many show how the archaeological field school can be retailored to address politics ethics and critical practice alongside traditional teaching and research methods These chapters reflect the strong link between politics and research showing what can be achieved when indigenous values perspectives and knowledge are placed at the center of the research process They not only draw on experiences at specific field schools but also examine advances in indigenous cultural resource management and in training Native American and non native students Theoretically informed and practically grounded Collaborating at the Trowel s Edge is a virtual guide for rethinking field schools and is an essential volume for anyone involved in North American archaeology professionals students tribal scholars or avocationalists as well as those working with indigenous peoples in other parts of the world It both reflects the rapidly changing landscape of archaeology and charts new directions to ensure the ongoing vitality of the discipline Managing Multiple Uses on National Forests, 1905-1995 John Fedkiw,1998
