Managing Accounting Systems And People:

Managing Knowledge Steven Albert, Keith Bradley, 1997-10-02 Managing Knowledge reverses the status quo argument that organisational change is driven by the specific demands of large companies. Instead of viewing firms as the catalysts for gradual change, Albert and Bradley argue that expert professionals have fuelled a break away from the traditional organisational structure to an organisational structure at the heart of which is an agent and/or an agency system. The authors draw our attention to the growing phenomenon of atypical work manifested in workforce flexibility, mobility, the feminisation of professional employment and technological changes. They focus upon a group of knowledge-based employees, experts who increasingly have influence over work and wealth creation. Case studies are developed from companies including AT and T, the Hollywood film industry, London accounting firms and specialised agencies such as Labforce and Knowledge Net.

Management Accounting in Enterprise Resource Planning Systems Severin Grabski, Stewart Leech, Alan Sangster, 2009-05-16 Current evidence points to management accountants using traditional software such as spreadsheets for budgeting, ABC, balanced scorecards and other performance management techniques independent of rather than integrated with Enterprise Resource Planning (ERP) Systems. While there has been some limited research on the effects of ERP systems on management accountants, this report provides a comprehensive analysis of the consequences of implementation of ERP systems for management accountants. This report provides a theoretical basis for studying the impact of Enterprise Resource Planning (ERP) systems on management accounting and provides critical insights into the opportunities provided by ERP systems for the most efficient use of management accounting techniques. The seven UK case studies of ERP implementations reveal the correlation between the success of the system implementation and the development of the role of management accountants in business partners, thereby identifying the changes and skills required of management accountants. The book provides guidance to management accountants on the changes they need to make in order to achieve the most from an ERP system implementation.
