Abstract

Objective: Early motherhood and its impact on mothers, children, families and communities is a prevalent health challenge in developing countries that needs to be urgently explored. The aim of this study was exploring the challenges encountered by Iranian adolescent mothers during the transition to motherhood.

Materials and methods: Inductive conventional content analysis approach was used in this qualitative study. Face to face in-depth semi-structured interviews were conducted with 16 Iranian teenage mothers in the Kerman province of Iran from March to December 2016. Data collection continued until the point of data saturation and MAXQDA software was utilized in the analysis of the data.

Results: Six main categories increasing burden of responsibility, experiencing physical problems, receiving insufficient support, inefficiency in maternal role, emotional and mental distress; and role conflict and 18 sub-categories were extracted from the data analysis.

Conclusion: The findings of this study showed that adolescent mothers experience many physical, psychological, mental and social challenges. Therefore, it is expedient that special attention and care support is made available to them by health care providers. A comprehensive understanding of the challenges encountered by adolescent mothers, will aid the development of culturally appropriate health promotion guidelines and strategies.

Transitions Theory Afaf Meleis, Afaf I. Meleis, 2010-02-17 It is very exciting to see all of these studies compiled in one book. It can be read sequentially or just for certain transitions. It also can be used as a template for compilation of other concepts central to nursing and can serve as a resource for further studies in transitions. It is an excellent addition to the nursing literature. Score 95 4 Stars Doody's. Understanding and recognizing transitions are at the heart of health care reform and this current edition with its numerous clinical examples and descriptions of nursing interventions provides important lessons that can and should be incorporated into health policy. It is a brilliant book and an important contribution to nursing theory. Kathleen Dracup RN DNSc Dean and Professor School of Nursing University of California San Francisco. Afaf Meleis the dean of the University of Pennsylvania School of Nursing presents for the first time in a single volume her original transitions theory that integrates middle range theory to assist nurses in facilitating positive transitions for patients, families and communities. Nurses are consistently relied on to coach and support patients going through major life transitions such as illness, recovery, pregnancy, old age and many more. A collection of over 50 articles published from 1975 through 2007 and five newly commissioned articles. Transitions Theory covers developmental, situational, health and illness, organizational and therapeutic transitions. Each section includes an introduction written by Dr. Meleis in which she offers her historical and practical perspective on transitions. Many of the articles consider the transitional experiences of ethnically diverse patients, women, the elderly and other minority populations. Key Topics Discussed: Situational transitions including discharge and relocation; hospital to home; stroke recovery and immigration; transitions psychological adaptation and impact of migration on family health; Educational transitions including professional transitions from RN to BSN and student to professional; Health and illness transitions including self care post heart failure, living with chronic illness, living with early dementia and accepting palliative care; Organization transitions including role transitions from acute care to collaborative practice and hospital to community practice; Nursing therapeutics models of transition including role supplementation models and debriefing models. shows that having a mother as a role model even for graduates of top universities does not predict daughters progressing in their own careers. It finds that mothers with careers whilst highly influential in their daughters' choice of career path rarely mentor their daughters as they progress. This is partly explained by quiet ambition, the tendency of women to be modest about their achievements. Bigger issues are the twin pressures from contemporary motherhood and workplace culture that ironically lead career women's daughters to believe that being a good mother means working part time. This stalls career progress. Based on a large cross generational qualitative sample, this book offers a timely and original perspective on the debate about gender equality in leadership positions.
