The Real German War Plan, 1904-14 Terence Zuber,2011-10-21 The Real German War Plan 1904 14 fundamentally changes our understanding of German military planning before the First World War On the basis of newly discovered or long neglected documents in German military archives this book gives the first description of Schlieffen's war plans in 1904 and 1905 and Moltke's plans from 1906 to 1914. It explodes unfounded myths concerning German war planning, gives the first appraisal of the actual military and political factors that influenced it, proves conclusively that there never was a Schlieffen Plan, and reveals Moltke's strategy for a war against Russia from 1909 to 1912. Tracing the decline in the German military position and the recognition by 1913 that Germany would be forced to fight outnumbered on both the eastern and western fronts, it is an essential read for anyone with an interest in the First World War.

They assess implications for U.S. interests and present ways that Washington could work to improve its relations with Moscow. Board of Trade Journal of Tariff and Trade Notices and Miscellaneous Commercial Information, 1901.

Russian-English Translators Dictionary, Mikhail G. Zimmerman, 2013-11-21. Afghanistan and the Anglo-Russian Dispute and History of the War in Afghanistan \(Complete\), Various Authors, 2020-09-28. By a coincidence of singular interest in Central Asian affairs, the completion of the Orenburg-Tashkent railway occurred simultaneously with the evacuation of Lhasa by the troops of the Tibetan Mission. The two events, measuring in a manner the character of the policies pursued by the respective Governments of Great Britain and Russia in Mid-Asia. Moreover, if consideration be given to them and the relation of each to contemporary affairs, appreciated, it becomes no longer possible to question the causes which have determined the superior position now held in Asia by our great opponent. If this situation were the result of some sudden cataclysm of nature by which Russia had been violently projected from her territories in Europe across the lone wastes of the Kirghiz steppe into and beyond the region of the Pamirs or over the desert sands of the Kara Kum to the southern valleys of the Murghab river, our periodic lament at the mastery of Central Asia by Russia would be more comprehensible. But unfortunately the forward advance of Russia to the borders of Persia along the frontiers of Afghanistan to the north-eastern slopes of the Hindu Kush has been gradual so gradual indeed that as each successive step became accomplished we have had time to register recognition of the fact in bursts of indignant chatter accompanied as is not unusual with us by a frothy clamour of empty threats. Unluckily noisy outcry has been mistaken for action, but from the moment when Russia first moved into Trans-Caspian territory there appears to have been nothing but vague realisation of the acute possibilities with which the situation in Central Asia from that hour became impressed. As time passed and the several phases vanished, our indifference and supineness have increased until no chapter in the history of our Imperial affairs offers more melancholy reading than that which deals with the period covering the peaceful penetration of Asia by Russia. In order to secure sufficient momentum for her descent, railways were needed, and while the line so lately completed between Orenburg and

Tashkent is a more material factor in the situation than hitherto has been recognised the laying of the permanent way between Samarkand and Termez Askhabad and Meshed approximately gauges the duration of the interval separating Russia from the day when she will have rounded off her position in Mid Asia Just now therefore and for ten years to come strategic requirements should alone be permitted to influence the arrangement of our policy in High Asia Commercial developments within the vexed sphere of the Russian and British territories in this region should be regulated by circumstances which actually inherent in our Asiatic position have been too long ignored No question of sentiment no considerations of trade influenced the creation of railway communication between Orenburg and Tashkent the construction of the Murghab Valley line or the extension of the Trans Caspian system from Samarkand to Osh Strategy steely and calculating required Mid Russia to be linked with Mid Asia the irresistible expansion of empire following not so much the line of least resistance as the direction from which it would be placed in position for the next move Continents have been crossed kingdoms annihilated and provinces absorbed by Russia in her steady inimical progression towards the heart of Central Asia until there is nothing so important nor so intimately associated with our position in Afghanistan to day as the intricate perplexities which have emanated from this untoward approach From time to time attempts have been made to effect an adjustment of the points at issue The result has been unsatisfactory since the patchwork application of pen and paper has come as a rule in response to some accomplished coup upon the part of our astute opponent Indeed there is nothing in the result of any of these compromises which can be said to do credit to our knowledge of the existing situation Indifference coupled with a really lamentable ignorance distinguishes the conditions if not the atmosphere under which these rectifications of frontier and modifications of clauses in previously accepted treaties have been carried out But now that we have witnessed the joining of the rails between Orenburg and Tashkent let us put an end to our absurd philandering and appraising properly the true position of affairs let us be content to regard all further extension of the Russian railway system in Mid Asia as the climax of the situation To do this we must understand the points at issue and to day in Central Asia there are many causes which of themselves are sufficient to direct attention to them

Women and the Birth of Russian Capitalism Irina Mukhina, 2014-07-15 Little has been known acknowledged or studied about the shuttle trade one of the major manifestations of new Russian life of the 1990s The term itself seems to suggest something of a rather small scale Indeed the amount of each transaction in this trade was miniscule Individual peddlers traveled to near abroad with their bulging bags and brought back home for resale only as many goods as they could personally carry in their enormous suitcases The phenomenon hidden behind the term shuttle trade was by no means insignificant or small in scale By the mid 1990s it constituted the backbone of Russian consumer trade and was a substantial source of revenue The primary participants in the shuttle trade were women and in this enlightening study Mukhina assesses the reasons why women were attracted to this business the range of the personal experiences of female shuttle traders and the social impact of women s involvement in this sort of economic activity By analyzing the social and gendered dimensions of the shuttle trade the reader can begin to understand more broadly how gender shaped the transition period associated with the end of communist regimes in Eastern Europe Moreover the difficulties that these women faced highlight the gap between the rhetoric of free market economy and the actual market practices These women traders had to create and shape the physical market an open air space for their goods without the basic legislative and other provisions of market economies The shuttle trade became an avenue of female suffering but also of survival and even empowerment during the time that most Russians now call the wild 1990s
