Sacred Time A Novel:

Time and the Novel Patricia Drechsel Tobin, 2015-03-08 Formalist criticism of the modern novel has concentrated on its spatial aspects Patricia Tobin focuses instead on the modern novel's temporal structure She notes that the genealogical imperative that dominated the nineteenth century novel in which one event gave birth to another has broken down in the twentieth century novels she studies Further she draws parallels between this collapse of linear narrative and the current challenge to linearity from many other areas of modern thought Beginning with Mann's Buddenbrooks as a family chronicle novel that fully embodies the classical genealogical structure the author extends her analysis to include distortions of the linear perspective in Lawrence's The Rainbow Faulkner's Absalom Absalom Nabokov's Invitation of a Beheading and Marquez's One Hundred Years of Solitude She finds that in these novels about family relationships the continuity of time family and story has dissolved so that past present and future have lost their distinctions sins against the dynastic family are not only recognized but celebrated and literary and existential meanings are suspended in unlikely juxtapositions irrational metamorphoses and proliferating possibilities Professor Tobin suggests that the disappearance of the genealogical imperative in the contemporary world's sense of reality may account for much of what appears to be anonymous peripheral and excessive in post modern fiction Originally published in 1979 The Princeton Legacy Library uses the latest print on demand technology to again make available previously out of print books from the distinguished backlist of Princeton University Press These editions preserve the original texts of these important books while presenting them in durable paperback and hardcover editions The goal of the Princeton Legacy Library is to vastly increase access to the rich scholarly heritage found in the thousands of books published by Princeton University Press since its founding in 1905

In Search of Sacred Time Jacques Le Goff, 2014-02-23 How The Golden Legend shaped the medieval imagination It is impossible to understand the late Middle Ages without grasping the importance of The Golden Legend the most popular medieval collection of saints' lives Assembled for clerical use in the thirteenth century by Genoese archbishop Jacobus de Voragine the book became the medieval equivalent of a best seller By 1500 there were more copies of it in circulation than there were of the Bible itself Priests drew on The Golden Legend for their sermons the faithful used it for devotion and piety and artists and writers mined it endlessly in their works In Search of Sacred Time is the first comprehensive history and interpretation of this crucial book Jacques Le Goff one of the world's most renowned medievalists provides a lucid compelling and unparalleled account of why and how The Golden Legend exerted such a profound influence on medieval life In Search of Sacred Time explains how The Golden Legend an encyclopedic work that followed the course of the liturgical calendar and recounted the life of the saint for each feast day worked its way into the fabric of medieval life Le Goff describes how this ambitious book was carefully crafted to give sense and shape to the Christian year underscoring its meaning and drama through the stories of saints' miracles and martyrdoms Ultimately Le Goff argues The Golden Legend influenced how medieval Christians perceived the passage of time of the individual atoning for a particular act and on a universal level of self abnegation dying for others In the end it is e s ethical concerns that win out as he turns to the children the inheritors of the future new men in a new age who will have the power and desire to redress the ills besetting the world today Essentially e is a moralist a novelist of ideas whose fiction is densely packed with references from Western thought and poetry This book is an important read for scholars of e Kenzabur s work and those studying Japanese Literature and culture more generally Feeling Time Amit S. Yahav,2018-03-19 Literary historians have tended to associate the eighteenth century with the rise of the tyranny of the clock the notion of time as ruled by mechanical chronometry The transition to standardized scheduling and time discipline the often told story goes inevitably results in modernity s time keeper societies and the characterization of modern experience as qualitatively diminished In Feeling Time Amit Yahav challenges this narrative of the triumph of chronometry and the consequent impoverishment of individual experience She explores the fascination eighteenth century writers had with the mental and affective processes through which human beings come not only to know that time has passed but also to feel the durations they inhabit Yahav begins by elucidating discussions by Locke and Hume that examine how humans come to know time noting how these philosophers often consider not only knowledge but also experience She then turns to novels by Richardson Sterne and Radcliffe attending to the material dimensions of literary language to show how novelists shape the temporal experience of readers through their formal choices Along the way she considers a wide range of eighteenth century aesthetic and moral treatises finding that these identify the subjective experience of duration as the crux of pleasure and judgment described more as patterned durational activity than as static state Feeling Time highlights the temporal underpinnings of the eighteenth century s culture of sensibility arguing that novelists have often drawn on the logic of musical composition to make their writing an especially effective tool for exploring time and for shaping durational experience Makers of Jewish Modernity Jacques Picard,Jacques M. No Place in Time Sharon B. Oster, 2018-11-12 An exploration of the temporal function that the Jew plays in literature No Place in Time The Hebraic Myth in Late Nineteenth Century American Literature examines how the Hebraic myth in which Jewishness became a metaphor for an ancient pre Christian past was reimagined in nineteenth century American realism The Hebraic myth while integral to a Protestant understanding of time was incapable of addressing modern Jewishness especially in the context of the growing social and national concern around the Jewish problem Sharon B Oster shows how realist authors consequently cast Jews as caught between a distant past and a promising American future In either case whether creating or disrupting temporal continuity Jewishness existed outside of time No Place in Time complicates the debates over Eastern European immigration in the 1880s and questions of assimilation to a Protestant American culture The first chapter begins in the world of periodicals an interconnected literary culture out of which Abraham Cahan emerged as a literary voice of Jewish immigrants caught between nostalgia and a messianic future outside of linear progression Moving from the margins to the center of literary realism the second chapter revolves around Henry James's modernization of the noble Hebrew as a figure of mediation and reconciliation The third chapter extends this analysis into the naturalism of Edith Wharton who takes up questions of intimacy and intermarriage and places the Jew at the nexus of competing futures shaped by uncertainty and risk A number of Jewish female perspectives are included in the fourth chapter that recasts plots of cultural assimilation through intermarriage in terms of time if a Jewish past exists in tension with an American future these writers recuperate the Hebraic myth for themselves to imagine a viable Jewish future No Place in Time ends with a brief look at poet Emma Lazarus whose understanding of Jewishness was distinctly modern not nostalgic mythical or dead No Place in Time highlights a significant shift in how Jewishness was represented in American literature and as such raises questions of identity immigration and religion This volume will be of interest to scholars of nineteenth and turn of the century American literature American Jewish literature and literature as it intersects with immigration religion or temporality as well as anyone interested in Jewish studies

Waverly Novels: count Robert of Paris Walter Scott,1897 Waverley Novels Walter Scott,1847 Deep Space and Sacred Time Jon G. itself becomes nomadic A comparison with theatrical performance Peter Brook s Mahabharata and Girish Karnad s theatre of roots serves to support the argument that in both theatre and fiction the concepts of performance and performativity transform classical Indian mythic poetics In the mythic symbiosis of performance and storytelling in Indian tradition within a cyclical pattern of estrangement from and return to the motherland and or its traditions myth becomes a liberating space of consciousness where rigid categories and boundaries are transcended The Greatest French Classics Of All Time
