International Human Rights and Islamic Law Mashood A. Baderin,2003-09-11 This volume examines the important question of whether or not international human rights and Islamic law are compatible It asks whether Muslim States can comply with international human rights law whilst adhering to Islamic law The traditional arguments on this subject are examined and responded to from both international human rights and Islamic legal perspectives The volume engages international human rights law in theoretical dialogue with Islamic law facilitating an evaluation of the human rights policy of modern Muslim States International Human Rights and Islamic Law formulates a synthesis between these two extremes and argues that although there are differences of scope and application there is no fundamental incompatibility between these two bodies of law Baderin argues that their differences could be better addressed if the concept of human rights were positively established from within the themes of Islamic law rather than by imposing it upon Islamic law as an alien concept Each article of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights and the International Covenant on Economic Social and Cultural Rights as well as relevant articles of the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women are analysed in the light of Islamic law The volume concludes that it is possible to harmonise the differences between international human rights law and Islamic law through the adoption of the margin of appreciation doctrine by international human rights treaty bodies and the utilization of the Islamic law doctrines of maq sid al shar ah the overall objective of Shar ah and maslahah welfare by Muslim States in their interpretation and application of Islamic law respectively Baderin asserts that Islamic law can serve as an important vehicle for the guarantee and enforcement of international human rights law in the Muslim world and the volume concludes with recommendations to that effect

The New Muslim Brotherhood in the West Lorenzo Vidino, 2010-08-25 In Europe and North America networks tracing their origins back to the Muslim Brotherhood and other Islamist movements have rapidly evolved into multifunctional and richly funded organizations competing to become the major representatives of Western Muslim communities and government interlocutors. Some analysts and policy makers see these organizations as positive forces encouraging integration. Others cast them as modern day Trojan horses feigning moderation while radicalizing Western Muslims. Lorenzo Vidino brokers a third more informed view. Drawing on more than a decade of research on political Islam in the West, he keenly analyzes a controversial movement that still remains relatively unknown. Conducting in-depth interviews on four continents and sourcing documents in ten languages, Vidino shares the history, methods, attitudes, and goals of the Western Brothers, as well as their phenomenal growth. He then flips the perspective, examining the response to these groups by Western governments, specifically those of Great Britain, Germany, and the United States. Highly informed and thoughtfully presented, Vidino's research sheds light on a critical juncture in Muslim-Western relations. Muslim Britain Tahir Abbas, 2013-04-04. This edited collection is a cogent exploration of how the events of September 11 and the subsequent war on terror have impacted on the lived experiences of British South Asian Muslims in a number of important spheres, namely religious and ethnic identity, citizenship, Islamophobia, gender, and education, radicalism, media, and political representation. The contributors to this volume are specialists in the fields of sociology, social geography, anthropology, theology, and law. Each of the chapters explores the positions of South Asian Muslims from different analytical perspectives based on various methodological approaches. A number of the chapters carry primary empirical analysis, therefore making this one of the most pertinent compilations in this field. Other contributions are more discursive, providing valuable polemics on the current positions of British South Asian Muslims. Religion and Civil Society David Herbert, 2017-03-02. This book presents the first full-length study of the relationship between religion and the controversial concept of civil society. Across the world in the last two decades of the twentieth century, religions re-entered public space as influential discursive and symbolic systems, apparently beyond the control of either traditional religious authorising institutions or states. This differentiation of religion from traditional institutions and entry into secular public spheres carries both dangers and possible benefits for democracy. Offering a fresh interdisciplinary approach to understanding religion in contemporary societies, this book provides an invaluable resource for students and researchers in religious studies, sociology, politics, and political philosophy, theology, international relations, and legal studies. Part one presents a critical introduction to the interaction between religion, modernization, and postmodernization in Western and non-Western settings: America, Europe, the Middle East, and India, focussing on discourses of human rights, civil society, and the public sphere, and the controversial question of their cross-cultural application. Part two examines religion and civil society through case studies of Egypt, Bosnia, and Muslim minorities in Britain, and compares Poland as an example of a Christian majority society that has experienced the public reassertion of religion. Islam and Controversy A. Mondal, 2014-11-03. Was Salman Rushdie right to have written The Satanic Verses? Were the protestors right to have done so? What about the Danish cartoons? This book examines the moral questions raised by cultural controversies and how intercultural dialogue might be generated within multicultural societies
