Materializing the Nation Robert J. Foster, 2002-10-24 Foster shows us how seemingly banal activities like making a phone call chewing betel nut watching a Coke commercial may give important insights into the ways in which the nation is constructed materialized or contested Orvar L. Fagren author of On Holiday A History of Vacationing Why in the current era of globalization does nationality remain an important dimension of personal and collective identities In Materializing the Nation Robert J Foster argues that the contested process of nation making in Papua New Guinea unfolds not only through organized politics but also through mundane engagements with commodities and mass media He offers a thoughtful critique of recent approaches to nationalism and consumption and an ethnographic perspective on constructs of the nation found in official policy documents letters to the editor school textbooks song lyrics advertisements and other materials This volume will appeal to readers interested in the links among nationalism consumption and media in Melanesia and elsewhere

A Nation Among Nations Thomas Bender, 2006-12-12 An original ambitious and consistently provocative book that should change the way we study and teach American history Eric Foner Columbia University In this major book Thomas Bender recasts the developments central to American history by setting them in a global context and showing both the importance and ordinariness of America's international entanglements over five centuries Bender focuses on five major themes beginning with 1492 and the age of discovery when people everywhere first felt the transforming effects of oceanic trade He asks us to see our Revolution as one of several similar rebellions around the globe and the Civil War as part of a larger history associating the new meaning of nationhood with freedom He also examines the American commitment to empire from Jefferson's presidency to our own time and makes it clear that America's responses to capitalist industrialization and urbanization were part of a worldwide conversation

War, Revolution, and Nation-making in Lithuania, 1914-1923 Tomas Balkelis, 2018 In this book Tomas Balkelis explores how the Lithuanian state was created and shaped by the Great War from its onset in 1914 to the last waves of violence in 1923 As the very notion of independent Lithuania was constructed during the war violence is seen as an essential part of the formation of Lithuanian state nation and identity War was much more than simply the historical context in which the tectonic shift from empire to nation state took place It transformed people policies institutions and modes of thought in ways that would continue to shape the nation for decades after the conflict subsided In telling the story of the post WWI conflict in Lithuania War Revolution and Nation Making in

Lithuania 1914 1923 focuses on the soldiers and civilians involved in the conflict rather than the strategies and acts of politicians generals or diplomats The volume s two main themes are the impact of military social and cultural mobilizations on the local population and different types of violence that were so characteristic of the region throughout the period The actors in this story are people displaced by war and mobilized for war refugees veterans volunteers peasant conscripts POWs paramilitary fighters and others who took to guns not diplomacy to assert their power This is the story of how their lives were changed by war and how they shaped the society that emerged after war

Tonic to the Nation: Making English Music in the Festival of Britain Nathaniel G. Lew, 2016-07-01 Long remembered chiefly for its modernist exhibitions on the South Bank in London the 1951 Festival of Britain also showcased British artistic creativity in all its forms In Tonic to the Nation Nathaniel G Lew tells the story of the English classical music and opera composed and revived for the Festival and explores how these long overlooked components of the Festival helped define English music in the post war period Drawing on a wealth of archival material Lew looks closely at the work of the newly chartered Arts Council of Great Britain for whom the Festival of Britain provided the first chance to assert its authority over British culture The Arts Council devised many musical programs for the Festival including commissions of new concert works a vast London Season of almost 200 concerts highlighting seven centuries of English musical creativity and several schemes to commission and perform new operas These projects were not merely directed at bringing audiences to hear new and old national music but to share broader goals of framing the national repertory negotiating between the conflicting demands of conservative and progressive tastes and using music to forge new national definitions in a changed post war world

Soviet Nation-Building in Central Asia Grigol Ubiir, 2015-09-16 The demise of the Soviet Union in 1991 resulted in new state led nation building projects in Central Asia The emergence of independent republics spawned a renewed Western scholarly interest in the region s nationality issues Presenting a detailed study this book examines the state led nation building projects in the Soviet republics of Kazakhstan and Uzbekistan Exploring the degree forms and ways of the Soviet state involvement in creating Kazakh and Uzbek nations this book places the discussion within the theoretical literature on nationalism The author argues that both Kazakh and Uzbek nations are artificial constructs of Moscow based Soviet policy makers of the 1920s and 1930s This book challenges existing arguments in current scholarship by bringing some new and alternative insights into the role of indigenous Central Asian and Soviet officials in these nation building projects It goes on to critically examine post Soviet official Kazakh and Uzbek historiographies according to which Kazakh and Uzbek peoples had developed national collective identities and loyalties long before the Soviet era This book will be a useful contribution to Central Asian History and Politics as well as studies of Nationalism and Soviet Politics      Commonsense Constructivism, or the Making of World Affairs Ralph Pettman, 2015-04-29 Fully accessible to students and scholars alike this engaging book introduces the constructivist approach to understanding world affairs In a highly readable and witty way it shows how people and their social relations are the basis for everything around us International Relations included      First World, First Nations Gunter Minnerup, Pia Solberg, 2010-10-21 Collects essays on the Indigenous peoples of Australia and Northern Europe exploring the similarities and differences between the Indigenous experiences in the Nordic countries and Australia      The Law of Nations Emer de Vattel, 1760      The Monthly Review , 1905      Narratives of Nation in the South Pacific Ton Otto, Nicholas Thomas, 1997 A collection of essays which focuses upon local perceptions of the state efforts to ground nationhood in tradition the character of national narratives and recent transformations of the Pacific nationalism Case studies are included from Papua New Guinea Vanuatu Samoa and the Cook Islands      Niles' National Register , 1819      Water, Technology and the Nation-State Filippo Menga, Erik Swyngedouw, 2018-05-15 Just as space territory and society can be socially and politically co constructed so can water and thus the construction of hydraulic infrastructures can be mobilised by politicians to consolidate their grip on power while nurturing their own vision of what the nation is or should become This book delves into the complex and often hidden connection between water technological advancement and the nation state addressing two major questions First the arguments deployed consider how water as a resource can be ideologically constructed imagined and framed to create and reinforce a national identity and secondly how the idea of a nation state can and is materially co constituted out of the material infrastructure through which water is harnessed and channelled The book consists of 13 theoretical and empirical interdisciplinary chapters covering four continents The case studies cover a diverse range of geographical areas and countries including China Cyprus Egypt Ethiopia France Nepal and Thailand and together illustrate that the meaning and rationale behind water infrastructures goes well beyond the control and regulation of water resources as it becomes central in the unfolding of power dynamics across time and space      Making Things International 1 Mark B. Salter, 2015-05-01 Building on recent debates in critical social theory and international relations Making Things International I Circuits and Motion presents twenty five essays that engage the global the local and the international through the lens of objects It represents the first substantial new materialist intervention in global politics and international relations offering a diverse and provocative set of reflections on how different objects create sustain complicate and trouble the international Problematizing the stuff of global life Making Things International focuses on contemporary materialist scholarship on the international realm The first of two volumes these original contributions by both new and established scholars examine how war diplomacy trade communication and mobile populations are made by things weapons vehicles shipping containers
