Inhospitable World Jennifer Fay, 2018-03-01 In recent years environmental and human rights advocates have suggested that we have entered the first new geological epoch since the end of the ice age the Anthropocene In this new epoch humans have come to reshape unwittingly both the climate and natural world humankind has caused mass extinctions of plant and animal species polluted the oceans and irreversibly altered the atmosphere Ironically our efforts to make the planet more hospitable to ourselves seem to be driving us toward our inevitable extinction A force of nature humanity is now decentered as the agent of history As Jennifer Fay argues this new situation is to geological science what cinema has always been to human culture Film like the Anthropocene is a product of the industrial revolution but arises out of a desire to preserve life and master time and space It also calls for the creation of artificial worlds unnatural weather and deadly environments for entertainment scientific study and devising military strategy Filmmaking stages quite literally the process by which worlds and weather come into being and meaning and it mimics the forces that are driving this new planetary inhospitality Cinema in other words provides an image of nature in the age of its mechanical reproducibility Fay argues that cinema exemplifies the philosophical political and perhaps even logistical processes by which we can adapt to these forces and also imagine a world without humans in it Whereas standard ecological criticism attends to the environmental crisis as an unraveling of our natural state this book looks to film from Buster Keaton to Jia Zhangke to films of atomic testing and early polar exploration to consider how it reflects upon the creation and destruction of human environments What are the implications of ecological inhospitality What role might cinema and media theory play in challenging our presumed right to occupy and populate the world As an art form film enjoys a unique relationship to the material elemental world it captures and produces Through it we may appreciate the ambitions to design an unhomely planet that may no longer accommodate us

Making Italian America Simone Cinotto, 2014-04-01 How do immigrants and their children forge their identities in a new land and how does the ethnic culture they create thrive in the larger society Making Italian America brings together new scholarship on the cultural history of consumption immigration and ethnic marketing to explore these questions by focusing on the case of an ethnic group whose material culture and lifestyles have been central to American life Italian Americans As embodied in fashion film food popular music sports and many other representations and commodities Italian American identities have profoundly fascinated disturbed and influenced American and global culture Discussing in fresh ways topics as diverse as immigrant women s fashion critiques of consumerism in Italian immigrant radicalism the Italian American influence in early rock n roll ethnic tourism in Little Italy and Guido subculture Making Italian America recasts Italian immigrants and their children as active consumers who since the turn of the twentieth century have creatively managed to articulate relations of race gender and class and create distinctive lifestyles out of materials the marketplace offered to them The success of these mostly working class people in making their everyday culture meaningful to them as well as in shaping an ethnic identity that appealed to a wider public of shoppers and spectators looms large in the political history of consumption Making Italian America appraises how immigrants and their children redesigned the market to suit their tastes and in the process made Italian American identities a lure for millions of consumers Fourteen essays explore Italian American history in the light of consumer culture across more than a century long intense movement of people goods money ideas and images between Italy and the United States a diasporic exchange that has transformed both nations Simone Cinotto builds an imaginative analytical framework for understanding the ways in which ethnic and racial groups have shaped their collective identities and negotiated their place in the consumers emporium and marketplace Grounded in the new scholarship in transnational U S history and the transfer of cultural patterns Making Italian America illuminates the crucial role that consumption has had in shaping the ethnic culture and diasporic identities of Italians in America It also illustrates vividly why and how those same identities incorporated in commodities commercial leisure and popular representations have become the object of desire for millions of American and global consumers
