Mapping the Deep: The Extraordinary Story of Ocean Science Robert Kunzig,2000-10-17 A vivid tour of the Earth s last frontier a remote and mysterious realm that nonetheless lies close to the heart of even the most land locked reader The sea covers seven tenths of the Earth but we have mapped only a small percentage of it The sea contains millions of species of animals and plants but we have identified only a few thousand of them The sea controls our planet s climate but we do not really understand how The sea is still the frontier and yet it seems so familiar that we sometimes forget how little we know about it Just as we are poised on the verge of exploiting the sea on an unprecedented scale mining it fertilizing it fishing it out this book reminds us of how much we have yet to learn More than that it chronicles the knowledge explosion that has transformed our view of the sea in just the past few decades and made it a far more interesting and accessible place From the Big Bang to that far off future time two billion years from now when our planet will be a waterless rock from the lush crowds of life at seafloor hot springs to the invisible jewel like plants that float at the sea surface from the restless shifting of the tectonic plates to the majestic sweep of the ocean currents Kunzig s clear and lyrical prose transports us to the ends of the Earth Originally published in hardcover as The Restless Sea

The Maritime Political Boundaries of the World Victor Prescott,Clive Schofield,2005-01-01 This book addresses the often vexed question of national maritime claims and the delimitation of international maritime boundaries The number of undelimited international maritime boundaries is much larger than the number of agreed lines The two boundaries that define the marine domain of coastal states are examined First the baselines along the coast may consist of low water lines or straight lines or a combination of both When straight lines are used they define the seaward limit of the state s internal waters Second the outer limits of claims to territorial seas contiguous zones and exclusive economic zones are measured from the baselines All states will have to delimit at least one international boundary with a neighbouring state whether adjacent or opposite In confined seas no state can claim the full entitlement and must negotiate international boundaries with all neighbours Many states bordering oceans can claim the full entitlement seawards although they will need to delimit national boundaries with adjacent neighbours
