Housing and Economic Development in Indian Country Robin Leichenko, 2018-01-16
Among America's most complex planning environments Indian country continues to face innumerable challenges to its community development. These factors are historic in nature creating an assemblage of complex problems in reservation land management, policy implementation, and the ability of tribes to access capital for community investment. This study explores the history and the land population economic and housing characteristics of Indian country. The authors' investigation includes reservations, Alaska Native villages, and other Census recognized areas of historical Native American settlement and tribal culture. They analyze the constraints to housing and economic development and develop strategies for addressing those constraints. This book also identifies uses and evaluates data sources relevant to the study of housing and economic development on tribal lands. The research in this book was funded by the Fannie Mae Foundation. In the Journal of the American Planning Association, Nicholas C. Zaferatos wrote that Housing and Economic Development in Indian Country is an essential desk reference for policymakers and planners working in Native American communities as well as for nontribal agencies and other planners who share a concern for the well-being of tribal nations. It also contains extensive appendices in an accompanying CD containing data for individual tribal areas.

Wilson,2013-05-01 The expansion of the British Empire during the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries created the greatest mass migration in human history in which the Irish and Scots played a central complex and controversial role The essays in this volume explore the diverse encounters Irish and Scottish migrants had with Indigenous peoples in North America and Australasia The Irish and Scots were among the most active and enthusiastic participants in what one contributor describes as the greatest single period of land theft cultural pillage and casual genocide in world history At the same time some settlers attempted to understand Indigenous society rather than destroy it while others incorporated a romanticized view of Natives into a radical critique of European society and others still empathized with Natives as fellow victims of imperialism These essays investigate the extent to which the condition of being Irish and Scottish affected settlers attitudes to Indigenous peoples and examine the political social religious cultural and economic dimensions of their interactions Presenting a variety of viewpoints the editors reach the provocative conclusion that the Scottish and Irish origins of settlers were less important in determining attitudes and behaviour than were the specific circumstances in which those settlers found themselves at different times and places in North America Australia and New Zealand Contributors include Donald Harman Akenson Queen s John Eastlake College Cork Marjory Harper Aberdeen Andrew Hinson Toronto Michele Holmgren Mount Royal Kevin Hutchings Northern British Columbia Anne Lederman Royal Conservatory of Music Patricia A McCormack Alberta Mark G McGowan Toronto Ann McGrath Australian National Cian T McMahan Nevada Graeme Morton Guelph Michael Newton Xavier P draig Siadhail Saint Mary s Brad Patterson Victoria University of Wellington Beverly Soloway Lakehead and David A Wilson Toronto
