Landscape and Vegetation Ecology of the Kakadu Region, Northern Australia C.M. Finlayson, Isabell von Oertzen, 2012-12-06 The Kakadu region of northern Australia is swarming over the landscape with their meters steeped in cultural history and natural grandeur and notebooks and a vast store of information Over the past few decades the rich cultural and was gathered This book is a summary of the natural heritage of this fascinating region has immense amount of information collected on the become increasingly known to more and more geobotanic features of the region The cultural people At the same time as the natural heritage of the traditional Aboriginal inhabitants the region was being recognised by conservation of the region and the diverse and populous fauna and tourists alike the mineral wealth was also investigated but both these subjects were being recognised by mining enterprises warrant their own separate volumes and are not Almost inevitably the mix of conservation and mining is treated here Throughout this period of intense scientific mining interests led to conflict that is still not completely resolved However much has happened interest in the very nature of the region has changed over the years and we now have a major park Besides changes in human habitation the physical and biological environment has come under national park that is largely leased from the Aboriginal traditional owners under a management challenge and even threat We now have more weed species We no longer have the large mammal agreement

Vegetation of Australian Riverine Landscapes Samantha

Capon, Cassandra James, Michael Reid, 2016-04-01 Vegetation communities in Australia's riverine landscapes are ecologically, economically and culturally significant. They are also among the most threatened ecosystems on the continent and have been dramatically altered as a result of human activities and climate change. Vegetation of Australian Riverine Landscapes brings together for the first time the results of the substantial amount of research that has been conducted over the last few decades into the biology, ecology and management of these important plant communities in Australia. The book is divided into four sections. The first section provides context with respect to the spatial and temporal dimensions of riverine landscapes in Australia. The second section examines key groups of riverine plants while the third section provides an overview of riverine vegetation in five major regions of Australia including patterns, significant threats and management. The final section explores critical issues associated with the conservation and management of riverine plants and vegetation including water management, salinity, fire and restoration. Vegetation of Australian Riverine Landscapes highlights the incredible diversity and dynamic nature of riverine vegetation across Australia and will be an excellent reference for researchers, academics and environmental consultants.

Australian Vegetation David A. Keith, 2017-06-15

Australian Vegetation has been an essential reference for students and researchers in botany, ecology and natural resource management for over 35 years. Now fully updated and with a new team of authors, the third edition presents the latest insights on the patterns and processes that shaped the vegetation of Australia. The first part of the book provides a synthesis of ecological processes that influence vegetation traits throughout the continent using a new classification of vegetation. New chapters examine the influences of climate, soils, fire regimes, herbivores and Aboriginal people on vegetation, in addition to completely revised chapters on evolutionary biogeography, quaternary vegetation history and alien plants. The book's second half presents detailed ecological portraits for each major vegetation type and offers data-rich perspectives and comparative analysis presented in tables, graphs, maps and colour illustrations. This authoritative book will inspire readers to learn and explore first-hand the vegetation of Australia.

Australia's Peri-Urban Landscapes Melissa Kennedy, Andrew Butt, Marco Amati, 2016-03-22 In an era of rapid urbanization, peri-urban areas are emerging as the fastest growing regions in many countries. Generally considered as the space extending one hundred kilometres from the city fringe, peri-urban areas are contested and subject to a wide range of uses such as residential development, productive farming, water catchments, forestry, mineral and stone extraction and tourism and recreation. Whilst the peri-urban space is valued for offering a unique ambience and lifestyle, it is often highly vulnerable to bushfire and loss of biodiversity and vegetation along with threats to farming and food security in highly productive areas. Drawing together leading researchers and practitioners, this volume provides an interdisciplinary contribution to our knowledge and understanding of how peri-urban areas are being shaped in Australia through a focus on four overarching themes Peri urban Conceptualizations Governance and Planning Land Use and Food Production and Solutions and Representations Whilst the case studies focus on Australia they advance a variety of tools useful in discerning processes and impacts of peri urban change globally Furthermore the findings are instructive of the issues and tensions commonly encountered in rapidly urbanizing peri urban areas throughout the world from landscape valuation and biosecurity concerns to functional adaptation and social change Index Holmiensis: Dicotyledoneae Q,R,S Hans Tralau,1969 Year Book Australia, 1982 No. 66 ,2003 Savanna Woody Plants and Large Herbivores Peter Frank Scogings,Mahesh Sankaran,2019-07-25 Insights on current research and recent developments in understanding global savanna systems Increasingly recognized as synonymous with tropical grassy biomes savannas are found in tropical and sub tropical climates as well as warm temperate regions of North America Savanna Woody Plants and Large Herbivores examines the interactions between woody plants and browsing mammals in global savannas focusing primarily on the C4 grassy ecosystems with woody components that constitute the majority of global savannas and discusses contemporary savanna management models and applications This much needed addition to current research examines topics including the varying behavior of browsing mammals the response to browsing by woody species and the factors that inhibit forage intake Contributions from an international team of active researchers and experts compare and contrast different savanna ecosystems offering a global perspective on savanna functioning the roles of soil and climate in resource availability and organism interaction and the possible impacts of climate change across global savannas Fills a gap in literature on savanna management issues including biodiversity conservation and animal production Applies concepts developed in other biomes to future savanna research Complements contemporary books on savanna or large herbivore ecology Focuses on the woody component of savanna ecosystems and large herbivore interactions in savannas Compares tree mammal systems of savannas and other eco systems of temperate and boreal regions Provides numerous case studies of plant mammal interactions from various savanna ecosystems Savanna Woody Plants and Large Herbivores is a valuable addition to those in fields such as ecology wildlife and conservation biology natural resource management and environmental science Official Year Book of the Commonwealth of Australia No. 57, 1971 , Plant Competition in a Changing World Judy Simon,Susanne Schmidt,2017-06-22 Competitiveness describes a key ability important for plants to grow and survive abiotic and biotic stresses Under optimal but particularly under non optimal conditions plants compete for resources including nutrients light water space pollinators and other Competition occurs above and belowground In resource poor habitats competition is generally considered to be more pronounced than in resource rich habitats Although competition occurs between different players within an ecosystem such as between plants and soil microorganisms our topic focusses on plant plant interactions and includes inter specific competition between different species of similar and different life forms and intra specific competition Strategies for securing resources via spatial or temporal separation and different resource needs generally reduce competition Increasingly important is the effect of invasive plants and subsequent decline in biodiversity and ecosystem function Current knowledge and future climate predictions suggest that in some situations competition will be intensified with occurrence of increased abiotic e g water and nutrient limitations and biotic stresses e g mass outbreak of insects but competition might also decrease in situations where plant productivity and survival declines e g habitats with degraded soils Changing interactions climate change and biological invasions place new challenges on ecosystems Understanding processes and mechanisms that underlie the interactions between plants and environmental factors will aid predictions and intervention There is much need to develop strategies to secure ecosystem services via primary productivity and to prevent the continued loss of biodiversity This Research Topic provides an up to date account of knowledge on plant plant interactions with a focus on identifying the mechanisms underpinning competitive ability The Research Topic aims to showcase knowledge that links ecological relevance with physiological processes to better understanding plant and ecosystem function

Routledge Handbook of Landscape and Food Joshua Zeunert, Tim Waterman, 2018-02-02 Since the turn of the millennium there has been a burgeoning interest in and literature of both landscape studies and food studies Landscape describes places as relationships and processes Landscapes create people s identities and guide their actions and their preferences while at the same time are shaped by the actions and forces of people Food as currency medium and sustenance is a fundamental part of those landscape relationships This volume brings together over fifty contributors from around the world in forty profoundly interdisciplinary chapters Chapter authors represent an astonishing range of disciplines from agronomy anthropology archaeology conservation countryside management cultural studies ecology ethics geography heritage studies landscape architecture landscape management and planning literature urban design and architecture Both food studies and landscape studies defy comprehension from the perspective of a single discipline and thus such a range is both necessary and enriching The Routledge Handbook of Landscape and Food is intended as a first port of call for scholars and researchers seeking to undertake new work at the many intersections of landscape and food Each chapter provides an authoritative overview a broad range of pertinent readings and references and seeks to identify areas where new research is needed though these may also be identified in the many fertile areas in which subjects and chapters overlap within the book
