Probation, 2003 Punishing Juveniles Ido Weijers, R A Duff, 2002-09-06 The first special juvenile court was created in 1899 Since then juvenile justice has had a chequered history and is now more controversial than ever Should our treatment of young offenders differ in its aims or principles from that of adult offenders What role should ideas of punishment or retribution play Should our aims be rehabilitative and educative rather than punitive Should we divert young offenders from the criminal justice system altogether opting for restorative rather than retributive justice These questions are addressed in this inter disciplinary volume which brings together criminologists educationalists psychologists and philosophers Part I traces the history of juvenile justice identifying patterns and signs of what the future might hold Part II tackles fundamental normative issues of punishment moral education and restoration with particular emphasis on the role of communication Part

Reform in the Making Ann Chih Lin, 2002-06-10 Is it time to give up on rehabilitating criminals Record numbers of Americans are going to prison and most of them will eventually return to society with a high chance of becoming repeat offenders But a decision to abandon rehabilitation programs now would be premature warns Ann Chih Lin who finds that little attention has been given to how these programs are actually implemented and why they tend to fail In Reform in the Making she not only supplies much needed information on the process of program implementation but she also considers its social context the daily realities faced by prison staff and inmates By offering an in depth look at common rehabilitation programs currently in operation education job training and drug treatment and examining how they are used or misused Lin offers a practical approach to understanding their high failure rate and how the situation could be improved Based on extensive observation and over 350 interviews with staff and prisoners in five medium security male prisons the book contrasts successfully implemented programs with subverted abandoned or neglected programs those which staff reject or which do not teach prisoners anything useful Lin explains that staff and prisoners have little patience with programs aimed at long range goals when they must face the ongoing immediate challenge of surviving prison life Finding incentives to make both sides participate fully in rehabilitation is among the book's many contributions to improving prison policy *National Academy Press ...
