New England Natives Sheila Connor, 1995-09 Taking us back to the birth of New England's forests Sheila Connor shows us these trees evolving amidst a succession of human cultures from the Archaic Indians who crafted canoes from white birch and snowshoes from ash to the colonists who built ships of oak and pine to the industrialists who laid railroad tracks on chestnut timber to the tanners who used hemlock bark to treat the leather required to shoe the Union army In this engaging narrative cultural history affords insights into forestry botany horticulture and ecology which in turn illuminate the course of human conduct in a wooded land Beautifully written and lavishly illustrated this book will delight readers with a special interest in the trees of the region as well as those who wonder what our American culture owes to nature Trees of New England Charles Fergus, 2025-07-01 Taking up where field guides leave off Trees of New England presents the natural history of the native and common non native tree species growing in New England It discusses how and when they reproduce themselves how their physical structure protects them from the elements how animals get food and shelter from them how people use them and how diseases insect pests and environmental degradation are affecting trees today A noted naturalist Charles Fergus communicates his love for trees in every description and gentle detail The splendidly written narrative is enhanced by beautiful line drawings of the leaves needles bark nuts and other features of the trees giving the book an additional function as an identification aid It also includes a range map for each species an index of scientific names and information about how Native Americans and colonists used trees for food and medicine and how trees have appeared in folklore and mythology Trees serve many valuable functions producing oxygen so other organisms can live absorbing carbon dioxide preventing erosion providing wood for countless products and producing fruit nuts and syrup This highly readable book will increase anyone's appreciation of the majestic trees that populate our landscape NEH Exhibitions Today National Endowment for the Humanities. Christoph Irmscher, 2019-09-08 Winner of the 2000 American Studies Network Prize and the Literature and Language Award from the Association of American Publishers Inc Early American naturalists assembled dazzling collections of native flora and fauna from John Bartram's botanical garden in Philadelphia and the artful display of animals in Charles Willson Peale's museum to P T Barnum's American Museum infamously characterized by Henry James as halls of humbug Yet physical collections were only one of the myriad ways that these naturalists captured catalogued and commemorated America's rich biodiversity They also turned to writing and art from John Edward Holbrook's forays into the fascinating world of herpetology to John James Audubon's masterful portraits of American birds In this groundbreaking now classic book Christoph Irmscher argues that early American natural historians developed a distinctly poetic sensibility that allowed them to imagine themselves as part of and not apart from their environment He also demonstrates what happens to such inclusiveness in the hands of Harvard scientist turned Amazonian explorer Louis Agassiz whose racist pseudoscience appalled his student William James This expanded full color edition of The Poetics of Natural History features a preface and art from award winning artist Rosamond Purcell and invites the reader to be fully immersed in an era when the boundaries between literature art and science became fluid

Native People of Southern New England, 1500-1650 Kathleen J. Bragdon, 1999-03-01 In this first comprehensive study of American Indians of southern New England from 1500 to 1650 Kathleen J Bragdon discusses common features and significant differences among the Pawtucket Massachusetts Nipmuck Pocumtuck Narragansett Pokanoket Niantic Mohegan and Pequot Indians Her complex portrait which employs both the perspective of European observers and important new evidence from archaeology and linguistics shows that internally developed customs and values were primary determinants in the development of Native culture Vermont History, 1994 Harvard Magazine, 1995

Sum of the Parts Kent C Ryden, 2011-04-01 Proponents of the new regional history understand that regional identities are constructed and contested multifarious and not monolithic that they involve questions of dominance and power and that their nature is inherently political In this lively new book writing in the spirit of these understandings Kent Ryden engagingly examines works of American regional writing to show us how literary partisans of place create and recreate attack and defend argue over and dramatize the meaning and identity of their regions in the pages of their books Cleverly drawing upon mathematical models that complement his ideas and focusing on both classic and contemporary literary regionalists Ryden demonstrates that regionalism in the cultural sense retains a great deal of power as a framework for literary interpretation For New England he examines such writers as Robert Frost and Hayden Carruth Mary E Wilkins Freeman and Edith Wharton and Carolyn Chute and Russell Banks to demonstrate that today's regionalists inspire closer more democratic readings of life and landscape For the West and South he describes Wallace Stegner's and William Faulkner's use of region to respectively exclude and evade or confront and indict For the Midwest he focuses on C J Hribal William Least Heat Moon Paul Gruchow and others to demonstrate that midwesterners continually construct the past anew from the materials at hand filling the seemingly empty midlands with history and significance Ryden reveals that there are many Wests many New Englands many Souths and many Midwests all raising similar issues about the cultural politics of region and place Writing with appealing freshness and a sense of adventure he shows us that place and the stories that emerge from and define place can be a source of subversive energy that blunts the homogenizing force of region inscribing marginal places and people back onto the imaginative surface of the landscape when we read it on a place by place landscape by landscape book by book basis
