Lynching in American Literature and Journalism Yoshinobu Hakutani, 2024-04-08. Lynching in American Literature and Journalism consists of twelve essays investigating the history and development of writing about lynching as an American tragedy and the ugliest element of national character. According to the Tuskegee Institute, 4,743 people were lynched between 1882 and 1968 in the United States, including 3,446 African Americans and 1,297 European Americans. More than 73 percent of the lynchings in the Civil War period occurred in the Southern states. The lynchings increased dramatically in the aftermath of the Reconstruction after slavery had been abolished and free men gained the right to vote. The peak of lynching occurred in 1882 after Southern white Democrats had regained control of the state legislatures. This book is a collection of historical and critical discussions of lynching in America that reflects the shameful, unmoral policies and explores the topic of lynching within American history, literature, and journalism.

Sensational Modernism Joseph B. Entin, 2012-09-01. Challenging the conventional wisdom that the 1930s were dominated by literary and photographic realism, Sensational Modernism uncovers a rich vein of experimental work by politically progressive artists. Examining images by photographers such as Weegee and Aaron Siskind and fiction by writers such as William Carlos Williams, Richard Wright, Tillie Olsen, and Pietro di Donato, Joseph Entin argues that these artists drew attention to the country's most vulnerable residents by using what he calls an aesthetic of astonishment focused on startling, graphic images of pain, injury, and prejudice. Traditional portrayals of the poor depicted stoic, passive figures of sentimental suffering or degraded but potentially threatening figures in need of supervision. Sensational modernists sought to shock middle-class audiences into new ways of seeing the nation's impoverished and outcast populations. The striking images these artists created often taking the form of contorted or disfigured bodies drawn from the realm of the tabloids, pulp magazines, and cinema represented a bold, experimental form of social aesthetics. Entin argues that these artists created a willfully unorthodox brand of vernacular modernism in which formal avant-garde innovations were used to delineate the conditions, contradictions, and pressures of life on the nation's fringes.
