William Dean Howells Susan Goodman, Carl Dawson, 2005-05-01 Possibly the most influential figure in the history of American letters William Dean Howells 1837 1920 was among other things a leading novelist in the realist tradition a formative influence on many of America s finest writers and an outspoken opponent of social injustice This biography the first comprehensive work on Howells in fifty years enters the consciousness of the man and his times revealing a complicated and painfully honest figure who came of age in an era of political corruption industrial greed and American imperialism Written with verve and originality in a highly absorbing style it brings alive for a new generation a literary and cultural pioneer who played a key role in creating the American artistic ethos William Dean Howells traces the writer s life from his boyhood in Ohio before the Civil War to his consularship in Italy under President Lincoln to his rise as editor of Atlantic Monthly It looks at his writing which included novels poems plays children s books and criticism Howells had many powerful friendships among the literati of his day and here we find an especially rich examination of the relationship between Howells and Mark Twain. Howells was as Twain called him the boss of literary critics; his support almost single handedly made the careers of many writers including African Americans like Paul Dunbar and women like Sarah Orne Jewett. Showcasing many noteworthy personalities, Henry James, Edmund Gosse, H. G. Wells, Stephen Crane, Emily Dickinson and many others, William Dean Howells portrays a man who stood at the center of American literature through the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries.

Downwardly Mobile Andrew Lawson, 2014-05-22. Downwardly Mobile explores the links between a growing sense of economic precariousness within the American middle class and the development of literary realism over the course of the nineteenth century as it examines works by Rebecca Harding Davis, William Dean Howells, Henry James, Hamlin Garland and others.

American Autobiography Paul John Eakin, 1991. The first four essays review the major historical periods of American autobiography, placing the classic texts of American autobiographical literature from Captain John Smith to Malcolm X in the illuminating context of lesser known contemporary narratives. Daniel B. Shea writes on colonial America, Lawrence Buell on the American Renaissance, Susanna Egan on the years after the Civil War and Albert E. Stone on the twentieth century. The second part of American Autobiography shows the diversity of voices, forms, audiences and modes of identity in the literature of American autobiography. Provocative essays by William Boelhower and Sau Ling Cynthia Wong on immigrant autobiography discuss the changes in the sense of self that occur when strangers come to a strange land. Arnold Krupat writes about how American Indians conceptualize the self and about the relationship between oral and written discourse. William L. Andrews evaluates the strong body of critical theory that has grown up around African American autobiography, showing how both the genre and its criticism have responded to contemporary historical pressures. Carol Holly explores the model of personal identity that underlies nineteenth century women's autobiographies and Blanche Gelfant examines the narrative and political strategies of Emma Goldman's autobiography, especially her use of popular romance and melodrama. The last essay offers a more personal perspective on contemporary autobiography, a dialogue between Robert and Jane Coles about how they developed their method of eliciting first person oral narratives for their famous Children of Crisis and Women of Crisis series. These essays raise theoretical issues that are examined in Paul John Eakin's incisive introduction. How do we define a literary genre of protean shape and perplexing cultural multiplicity? How do we approach the special problems created by documents that are both historical and literary texts, ones that pose difficult questions about truth and representation? Most important, how is the canon of American autobiography to be constructed and how is its history to be written? Tracing that critical history, Eakin explains how changing ideas about the mainstream and the marginal have revitalized our retrospective view of American autobiography and opened up new and exciting prospects for today's reader

The Slain Wood William Boyd, 2015-11-05 The paper industry rejuvenated the American South but took a heavy toll on its land and people When the paper industry moved into the South in the 1930s it confronted a region in the midst of an economic and environmental crisis Entrenched poverty stunted labor markets vast stretches of cutover lands and severe soil erosion prevailed across the southern states By the middle of the twentieth century however pine trees had become the region's number one cash crop and the South dominated national and international production of pulp and paper based on the intensive cultivation of timber In The Slain Wood William Boyd chronicles the dramatic growth of the pulp and paper industry in the American South during the twentieth century and the social and environmental changes that accompanied it Drawing on extensive interviews and historical research he tells the fascinating story of one of the region's most important but understudied industries The Slain Wood reveals how a thoroughly industrialized forest was created out of a degraded landscape uncovers the ways in which firms tapped into informal labor markets and existing inequalities of race and class to fashion a system for delivering wood to the mills investigates the challenges of managing large papermaking complexes and details the ways in which mill managers and unions discriminated against black workers It also shows how the industry's massive pollution loads significantly disrupted local environments and communities leading to a long struggle to regulate and control that pollution

Copyright Entries Library of Congress. Copyright Office, 1914 Catalog of Copyright Entries, 1913 The Pacific Unitarian, 1912 Gender, Fantasy, and Realism in American Literature Alfred Habegger, 1982 In this study of the 19th century American novel the author demonstrates the imaginative continuity between sentimental and realistic fiction and sets out to establish that realism is the central and preeminent literary type in America a mode grounded in the tradition of women s popular fiction which shaped the nation s reading habits in the mid 19th century He examines this feminine literature with its common technique of symbolizing deeper social conflicts through patterns of courtship marriage and gender roles Contends that Howells and James owe much of their fictional domain to the often disparaged household dramas of these female precursors
