Women Who Made the News Marjory Lang, 1999-08-26 The first newspaperwomen were employed to attract female subscribers and advertising revenue Once hired they found themselves confined to a narrow range of specialties that catered to conventionally defined women's interests home making fashion and high society and most were patronized by their male peers But these women journalists did more than simply deliver female consumers to advertisers Some of them eventually made names for themselves as commercial reporters or political and even war correspondents By making news about women for women they created a distinctly female culture within the newspaper chronicling the increasing participation of women in public affairs Women Who Made the News is the story of the women who helped raise Canadian women's collective awareness of each other and of their achievements in the period leading up to World War II

The Satellite Sex Barbara M. Freeman, 2001-05-02 Citing a lack of strong feminist voices in contemporary Canadian media Freeman journalism Carleton U Ottawa was motivated to write this first book length analysis of news media coverage of women's issues in Canada The period 1966-1971 is seen as a critical period in Canadian feminist history during which time the Canadian government appointed a federal inquiry into women's issues the Royal Commission on the Status of Women Freeman examines the relationship between the Commission and the media the reporters' understandings of professional practice and the ways in which they covered issues from the hearings and the Commission's Report. She argues that an understanding of media coverage of gender issues in the past may lead to thoughtful and effective coverage now and in the future. Accessible to a general audience. c. Book News Inc. Beyond Bylines Barbara M. Freeman, 2012-08-01

Beyond Bylines Media Workers and Women's Rights in Canada explores the ways in which several of Canada's women journalists, broadcasters and other media workers reached well beyond the glory of their personal bylines to advocate for the most controversial women's rights of their eras. To do so, some of them adopted conventional feminine identities while others refused to conform altogether, openly and defiantly challenging the gender expectations of their day. The book consists of a series of case studies of the women in question as they grappled with the concerns close to their hearts: higher education for women, healthy dress reforms, the vote, equal opportunities at work, abortion, lesbianism and Aboriginal women's rights. Their media reflected their respective eras: intellectual magazines, daily and weekly newspapers, radio, feminist public relations, alternative women's periodicals and documentary film made for television. Barbara Freeman takes an interdisciplinary approach, combining biography, history and communication studies to demonstrate how their use of different media both enabled and limited these women in their ability to be daring advocates for gender equality. She shows how a number of these women were linked through the generations by their memberships in activist women's organizations. Paddling Her Own Canoe Veronica Strong-Boag, Carole Gerson, 2017-06-22

Frequently dismissed as a nature poet and an Indian Princess, E. Pauline Johnson (1861-1913) was not only an accomplished thinker and writer but a contentious and passionate personality who talked back to Euro-Canadian culture. Paddling Her Own Canoe is the only major scholarly study that examines Johnson's diverse roles as a First Nations champion, New Woman, serious writer and performer, and Canadian nationalist. A Native advocate of part Mohawk ancestry, Johnson was also an independent, self-supporting, unmarried woman during the period of first-wave feminism. Her versatile writings range from extraordinarily erotic poetry to polemical statements about the rights of First Nations. Based on thorough research into archival and published sources, this volume probes the meaning of Johnson's energetic career and addresses the complexities of her social, racial and cultural position. While situating Johnson in the context of the turn of the century Canada, the authors also use current feminist and post-colonial perspectives to reframe her contribution. Included is the first full chronology ever compiled of Johnson's writing. Pauline Johnson was an extraordinary woman who crossed the racial and gendered lines of her time and thereby confounded Canadian society. This study reclaims both her writings and her larger significance. Pierre Berton Brian McKillop, 2010-09-07

The first ever biography of one of Canada's best-known and most colourful personalities by an award-winning author. From his northern childhood on, it was clear that Pierre Berton (1920-2004) was different from his peers. Over the course of his eighty-four years, he would become the most famous Canadian media figure of his time in newspapers, magazines, radio, television and books, sometimes all at once. Berton dominated bookstore shelves for almost half a century, winning Governor General's Awards for Klondike and The Last

Spike among many others along with a dozen honorary degrees Throughout it all Berton was larger than life full of verve and ideas he approached everything he did with passion humour and an insatiable curiosity He loved controversy and being the centre of attention and provoked national debate on subjects as wide ranging as religion and marijuana use A major voice of Canadian nationalism at the dawn of globalization he made Canadians take interest in their own history and become proud of it But he had his critics too and some considered him egocentric and mean spirited Now with the same meticulous research and storytelling skill that earned him wide critical acclaim for The Spinster and the Prophet Brian McKillop traces Pierre Berton's remarkable life with special emphasis on his early days and his rise to prominence The result is a comprehensive vivid portrait of the life and work of one of our most celebrated national figures

Becoming Modern in Toronto Keith Walden, 1997-01-01 In Becoming Modern in Toronto Keith Walden shows how the Toronto Industrial Exhibition from its founding in 1879 to 1903 when it was renamed the Canadian National Exhibition influenced the shaping and ordering of the emerging urban culture

Undercover Reporting Brooke Kroeger, 2012-08-31 In her provocative book Brooke Kroeger argues for a reconsideration of the place of oft maligned journalistic practices While it may seem paradoxical much of the valuable journalism in the past century and a half has emerged from undercover investigations that employed subterfuge or deception to expose wrong Kroeger asserts that undercover work is not a separate world but rather it embodies a central discipline of good reporting the ability to extract significant information or to create indelible real time descriptions of hard to penetrate institutions or social situations that deserve the public's attention Together with a companion website that gathers some of
