in China Yihong Liu,2022-01-13 This book explores how China's political system responds to crisis. A crisis is an episode whose impact cannot be controlled merely by astute on-the-ground incident management particularly in cases involving widespread doubt about the legitimacy of established policy paradigms or the political order as a whole. Crisis can create political windows for advocacy groups challenging established policies in pluralist democracies. The political battle between competing definitions of an uncertain and ambiguous situation among the various actors provides them with crisis-induced opportunity space for dramatic policy change. However, the process of crisis-induced policy change mainly by crisis framing in non-west regimes like China has not been adequately addressed. As China's leadership foregrounds legitimacy in victory over COVID-19 and a new era of climate change disasters begins, this dynamic model of crisis and recuperation will offer food for thought for scholars of Chinese and global politics. Opinion, Policy Responses, and Party Politics under the COVID-19 Pandemic Masahiro Yamada,2023-12-06 The outbreak of the COVID-19 pandemic silently started in early 2020, and no one was prepared for it. Unlike the outbreak of SARS in 2002-2003, a similar coronavirus, it was less contagious than COVID-19 but tended to be more deadly. The COVID-19 virus is much more contagious with a relatively lower chance of causing death. Nevertheless, it is still one of the most dangerous viruses in human history. Studies of COVID-19 have attracted tremendous attention from academia and governments. However, they tend to focus on the fields of biology, virology, public health, and psychology instead of the politics, policies, and political attitudes related to the pandemic. Of course, it is critical to understand the nature of this virus and seek proper policy remedies to stop the pandemic and help citizens to regain their everyday lives, but how the pandemic has affected the public and their views toward politics is equally important, as it will determine political outcomes in the near future. We compare the impact of the

The Politics of Crises - The Crisis of Politics in Central and Eastern Europe Fanni Tanács-Mandák, Csaba Erdős, 2025-08-18. The field of political science has been significantly shaped by the crises of the last decade, particularly in Central and Eastern Europe. The migration crisis of 2014-2015, the COVID-19 pandemic of 2020-2021, and the ongoing conflict between Russia and Ukraine have each posed unique challenges to nation-states, altering the dynamics of political institutions and actors. These crises have highlighted the varying responses of European national governments, from the welcoming Willkommenskultur to the construction of border fences during the migration crisis, to the diverse legal frameworks adopted during the pandemic. The escalation of the Russian-Ukrainian conflict has further complicated these dynamics, prompting different governmental responses. Despite these varied approaches, a common thread is the necessity for political institutions to interpret and respond to crises, often requiring a departure from traditional decision-making processes. Current research has begun to explore these responses, yet there remains a gap in understanding the full impact of these crises on inter-institutional relations and the recalibration of policy-making within political systems.
