Undoubtedly a significant contribution to studies of labour processes, Burawoy's The Politics of Production (1985) is primarily a continuation of his previous book of 1979, Manufacturing Consent. Having already specified his object of study in his previous work, which is the shortcomings in Marx and Braverman's understanding of life inside the large modern, unionised, corporations with strong internal labour markets, Burawoy, in The Politics of Production, primarily looks at the conditions under which consent and coercion in the workers are produced in factory settings.

Braverman's Labour and Monopoly Capital (1974) indeed cast a long shadow over debates on the nature of work in the late twentieth and early twenty first centuries. Since its publication and mostly from the late 1970s, debates around the issue of the 'labour process' in capitalist society developed in many countries. Ever since, issues of control and management of the working class population in novel ways has been the subject of rigorous academic discourse, of which Burawoy's The Politics of Production is also a product of.

Retail Worker Politics, Race and Consumption in South Africa Bridget Kenny,2018-05-23 This book argues that we need to focus attention on the ways that workers themselves have invested subjectively in what it means to be a worker By doing so we gain an explanation that moves us beyond the economic decisions made by actors the institutional constraints faced by trade unions or the power of the state to interpellate subjects These more common explanations make workers and their politics visible only as a symptom of external conditions a response to deregulated markets or a product of state recognition Instead through a history of retailing as a site of nation and belonging changing legal regimes and articulations of race class and gender in the constitution of political subjects from the 1930s to present day Wal Mart this book presents the experiences and subjectivities of workers themselves to show that the collective political subject workers abasebenzi is both a durable and malleable political category From white to black women s labour the forms of precariousness have changed within retailing in South Africa Workers struggles in different times have in turn resolved some dilemmas and by other turn generated new categories and conditions of precariousness all the while explaining enduring attachments to labour politics

Confronting Historical Paradigms Frederick Cooper, 1993 Confronting Historical Paradigms argues that confrontation with major paradigms of world history has marked the fields of African and Latin American history during the last quarter century and that the process has dramatically restructured historical and theoretical understanding of peasantries labor and the capitalist world system Moreover it maintains the intellectual reverberations within and across the African and Latin American fields constitute a challenging and underappreciated counterpoint to laments that contemporary historical knowledge has suffered a splintering so extreme that it undermines larger dialogue and meaning The authors in their substantive essays synthesize order and evaluate the significance of the enormous resonating literatures that have come to exist for Africa and Latin America on the themes of the capitalist world system labor and peasantries They historicize these literatures by analyzing an entire cycle of critical dialogue and confrontation with historical paradigms and the professional upheavals that accompanied them They review the initial confrontations with frameworks of historical knowledge that erupted in the 1960s and the early 1970s the emergence of new dissident paradigms the outpouring of subsequent scholarship on peasants labor and capitalism that began to unravel the newly proposed paradigms by the 1980s and 1990s and the outlines of the new interpretive frameworks that tended to displace both the traditional and early dissident paradigms They also suggest possible outlines of a new cycle of Third World confrontations with paradigm anchored in themes such as gender and ethnicity Confronting Historical Paradigms employs a historicized awareness of intellectual networks conversations and history theory dialogues The result is a critical analysis and synthetic presentation of substantive advances that have preoccupied scholarship on Africa and Latin America in recent decades and a powerful challenge to notions that new fields of history have ended up destroying intellectual coherence and community     Routledge Handbook of International Human Rights Law Scott Sheeran, Sir Nigel Rodley, 2014-08-07 The Routledge Handbook of International Human Rights Law provides the definitive global survey of the discipline of international human rights law Each chapter is written by a leading expert and provides a contemporary overview of a significant area within the field As well as covering topics integral to the theory and practice of international human rights law the volume offers a broader perspective through examinations of the ways in which human rights law interacts with other legal regimes and other international institutions and by addressing the current and future challenges facing human rights Providing up to date and authoritative articles covering key aspects of international human rights law this book work is an essential work of reference for scholars practitioners and students alike Chapter 35 of this book is freely available as a downloadable Open Access PDF under a Creative Commons Attribution Non Commercial No Derivatives 3.0 license <https://www.routledgehandbooks.com/doi/10.4324/9780203481417.ch35>     The Capitalist Unconscious Hyun Ok Park, 2015-09-01 The unification of North and South Korea is widely considered an unresolved and volatile matter for the global order but this book argues capital has already unified Korea in a transnational form As Hyun Ok Park demonstrates rather than territorial integration and family union the capitalist unconscious drives the current unification imagining the capitalist integration of the Korean peninsula and the Korean diaspora as a new democratic moment Based on extensive archival and ethnographic research in South Korea and China The Capitalist Unconscious shows how the hegemonic democratic politics of the post Cold War era reparation peace and human rights have consigned the rights of migrant laborers protagonists of transnational Korea to identity politics constitutionalism and cosmopolitanism Park reveals the riveting capitalist logic of these politics which underpins legal and policy debates social activism and media spectacle While rethinking the historical trajectory of Cold War industrialism and its subsequent liberal path this book also probes memories of such key events as the North Korean and Chinese revolutions which are integral to migrants reckoning with capitalist allures and communal possibilities Casting capitalist democracy within an innovative framework of historical repetition Park elucidates the form and content of the capitalist unconscious at different historical moments and dissolves the modern opposition among socialism democracy and dictatorship The Capitalist Unconscious astutely explores the neoliberal present's past and introduces a compelling approach to the question of history and contemporaneity
