POSTMODERNISM

I. Introduction

Postmodernism is a cultural and intellectual movement that emerged in the mid- to late-20th century as a reaction against modernism. It is characterized by a rejection of modernist principles and a skepticism toward grand narratives or absolute truths. Modernism was generally based on idealism, a utopian vision of human life and society, and a belief in progress. It assumed that certain ultimate universal principles or truths such as those formulated by religion or science could be used to understand or explain reality. After World War II, postmodernism evolved in response to the perceived shortcomings of modernism, whose radical aesthetic endeavors had become connected with totalitarianism or had been incorporated into popular culture. The employment of postmodern ideas in political science is referred to as postmodernism. Many situations considered political in character, according to postmodernists, cannot be fully examined in standard realist and liberal approaches to political science. The fundamental characteristics of what is now known as postmodernism may be discovered as early as the 1940s, most notably in the work of Jorge Luis Borges. Most academics currently agree, however, that postmodernism began to compete with modernism in the late 1950s and surpassed it in the 1960s. Postmodernism has remained a dominating, if not unquestioned, influence in art, literature, film, music, drama, architecture, history, and continental philosophy since then.

Postmodernism emphasizes the importance of individual experience and subjectivity, as

Politics And Truth Political Theory And The Postmodernist Challenge:

Politics and Truth Theresa Man Ling Lee, 1997-08-28 The political momentum gathered by the postmodernist challenge to Enlightenment ideals has made the notion of truth more central than ever in politics Postmodernism maintains that the philosophical validation of ideas by way of truth is intrinsically linked to the legitimation of power In this political context Lee considers a series of related questions Why does it matter politically how truth is validated Does the claim to having truth necessarily imply a certain claim to authority by those who possess truth Is truth therefore power Is a foundationalist notion of truth antidemocratic by implication Is a contextualist notion necessarily democratic as the postmodernists suggest Politics and Truth examines the treatment of these problems in the work of thinkers ranging from Plato and Hobbes to Weber Foucault and Arendt The book concludes with a consideration of ideology in post Mao China that shows the elusive if not illusory openness of contextualism

Politics and Truth Theresa Man Ling Lee, 1997-08-28 Considers the contested concept of truth in contemporary politics in light of the postmodernist challenge to Enlightenment ideals and examines the treatment of truth in an unusual lineup of thinkers ranging from Plato and Hobbes to Weber Foucault and Arendt The Politics of Postmodernism Linda Hutcheon, 2003-12-16 Working through the issue of representation in art forms from fiction to photography Linda Hutcheon sets out postmodernism's highly political challenge to the dominant ideologies of the western world A Democratic Theory of Truth Linda M. G. Zerilli, 2025-04-25 A critique of the concept of truth presupposed by the post truth debate and a bold new vision for a more pluralistic citizenry We say that we live in a post truth era because disinformation threatens our confidence in the existence of a shared public world Affirming objective truth may therefore seem necessary to save democracy According to political theorist Linda M G Zerilli such affirmation can stifle political debate and silence dissent In fact Zerilli argues that the unqualified insistence on objective truth is as dangerous for democracy as denying it Drawing on Arendt Foucault and Wittgenstein A Democratic Theory of Truth challenges the concept of truth presupposed by the post truth debate It argues that we the people have an essential role in discovering and evaluating any truth relevant to the political realm The result is a striking defense of plurality dissent and opinion in contemporary democratic societies

Foucault and the Human Subject of Science Garðar Árason, 2018-10-29
 This book offers a clear analysis of Foucault's work on scientific knowledge and its relationship to individuals and society It suggests a way of using Foucault's tools for science criticism and resistance while avoiding the pitfalls of vulgar relativism or irrational anti science views Two cases of scientific conflict are considered The first considers left handers as subjects of science in particular studies which purport to show that left handers die on average younger than right handers The second case considers Icelanders as subjects of science in the context of a partly failed attempt to construct a genetic database encompassing the entire nation The book will be of interest to bioethicists and philosophers who are concerned with the interaction between science and its human subjects as well as scholars concerned with Foucault's work on science

International Politics and Inner Worlds Kurt Jacobsen, 2017-06-28
 This book takes radical aim at the conventional conduct of international relations analysis It reexamines the role of ideas the usefulness of psychoanalysis the rage for and at rational choice the influence of the public on foreign policy counterinsurgency evangelism and development orthodoxies at the national and genetic levels Drawing a bead on conceptual blind spots prevalent both inside and outside the academy the book urges scholars to reflect on how inner worlds shape the actions of their subjects and their own research analyses as well

Building Peace, Creating Conflict? Hanne Fjelde, Kristine Höglund, 2012-01-03

One of the most significant challenges facing the international community today is how to stabilize and rebuild societies emerging from civil wars and this book which includes both theoretical discussions and empirical applications considers the various factors of peacebuilding As it addresses several pertinent academic debates relating to international interventions and local ownership international and local conceptions of gender equality and the legal aspects of peace implementation this account demonstrates how some postwar countries have made significant strides towards peace and democracy while others have experienced a return to war A policy relevant topic Building Peace Creating Conflict will appeal to students and scholars of international relations and peace studies as well as to practitioners involved in peacebuilding efforts in war affected countries

Challenging Postmodernism David Detmer,2003-10 Presenting a discussion of the controversies surrounding the ideas of truth this book faults both the critics of postmodernism for entangling the philosophical discussion of truth with their disapproval of postmodernist political views and the postmodernist critics of objective truth for the defective logic and incoherence of their critique Publisher Traveling Back Susan McWilliams,2014-03 What does it mean to think globally Susan McWilliams argues that to understand politics in our new world we should revisit one of the oldest themes in political theory travel This title uncovers the rich travel story tradition of political theorizing and shows how it helps to answer today s toughest political questions

Inconceivable Effects Martin Blumenthal-Barby,2013-08-15 In Inconceivable Effects Martin Blumenthal Barby reads theoretical literary and cinematic works that appear noteworthy for the ethical questions they raise Via critical analysis of writers and filmmakers whose projects have changed our ways of viewing the modern world including Hannah Arendt Franz Kafka Walter Benjamin the directors of Germany in Autumn and Heiner M ller these essays furnish a cultural base for contemporary discussions of totalitarian domination lying and politics the relation between law and body the relation between law and justice the question of violence and our ways of conceptualizing the human A consideration of ethics is central to the book but ethics in a general philosophical sense is not the primary subject here instead Blumenthal Barby suggests that whatever understanding of the ethical one has is always contingent upon a particular mode of presentation Darstellung on particular aesthetic qualities and features of media Whatever there is to be said about ethics it is always bound to certain forms of saying certain ways of telling certain modes of narration That modes of presentation differ across genres and media goes without saying that such differences are intimately linked with the question of the ethical emerges with heightened urgency in this book
