Politics Of Domestic Consumption Critical Readings:

The Politics of Domestic Consumption Stevi Jackson, Shaun Moores, 2014-06-06 This Reader brings together a broad range of critical work on the everyday practices and power relations of domestic consumption drawing on material from sociology women's studies and media and cultural studies The book is divided into five main sections on economics food and clothing leisure and media reception household technologies and the construction of home and its selected contributions examine the social dynamics of gender generation class and ethnicity

Modernity And Consumption: Theory, Politics, And The Public In Singapore And Malaysia Antonio Leopold Rappa, 2002-03-25 The Enlightenment theorists involved in the public private debate exposed the logical fallacies of theology and the philosophical weaknesses of metaphysics but left little room for understanding contemporary modes of consumption What does it mean to be a consumer in the early 21st century Do modern markets provide real choices for consumers in neoliberal capitalist democracies Or are consumers ironically slaves to their own patterns of consumption Rejecting Habermas conceptualizations in The Structural Transformation of the Public Sphere 1991 Rappa offers an examination of modernity and consumption with a non Marxist modernity Resistance theoretical frame

He argues that late modernity the ethos experience and consciousness of global and technological transformation today is not about the fusion of public and private spaces Rather modernity and consumption involves the deep penetration of private space by public space to the extent that private space becomes dependent conditional and decrepit The Private has become contingent on the Public Decisions about what to consume no longer reflect the mindful choices of private interest seeking and wealth maximizing individuals but reveal a new kind of public control through foundational images of success failure horror violence and hope

The Oxford Handbook of the History of Consumption Frank Trentmann, 2012-03-22 The term consumption covers the desire for goods and services their acquisition use and disposal The study of consumption has grown enormously in recent years and it has been the subject of major historiographical debates did the eighteenth century bring a consumer revolution Was there a great divergence between East and West Did the twentieth century see the triumph of global consumerism Questions of consumption have become defining topics in all branches of history from gender and labour history to political history and cultural studies The Oxford Handbook of the History of Consumption offers a timely overview of how our understanding of consumption in history has changed in the last generation taking the reader from the ancient period to the twenty first century It includes chapters on Asia Europe Africa and North America brings together new perspectives highlights cutting edge areas of research and offers a guide through the main historiographical developments Contributions from leading historians examine the spaces of consumption consumer politics luxury and waste nationalism and empire the body well being youth cultures and fashion The Handbook also showcases the different ways in which recent historians have approached the subject from cultural and economic history to political history and technology studies including areas where multidisciplinary approaches have been especially fruitful

Domestic Cultures Joanne Hollows, 2008-02-16 Although home is central to most people's experience of everyday life the meaning of home is often taken for granted In this accessible and student friendly introduction to domestic cultures Joanne Hollows surveys current thinking and approaches to demonstrate why home is so central to our lives Domestic Cultures examines which meanings and values have been associated with home and demonstrates how these have been transformed and reworked in different historical contexts The book shows that while certain meanings of domestic culture are frequently produced for us these can be negotiated and resisted through everyday home making practices She demonstrates how elements of domesticity have been dislocated and mobilized within public life This wide ranging text challenges a range of ideas about domestic culture It examines how the meanings of domestic life are produced across a range of discourses and practices from architecture lifestyle media and advertising to home decoration cooking and watching television The book demonstrates how domestic cultures are not only linked to particular ideas about gendered identities but how they are also differentiated by class race and sexuality Domestic Cultures is a key introductory text for media sociology and cultural studies students

Celebrity Chefs, Food Media and the Politics of Eating Joanne Hollows, 2022-08-11 Working across food studies and media studies Joanne Hollows examines the impact of celebrity chefs on how we think about food and how we cook shop and eat Hollows explores how celebrity chefs emerged in both restaurant and media industries making chefs like Jamie Oliver and Gordon Ramsay into global stars She also shows how blogs and YouTube enabled the emergence of new types of branded food personalities such as Deliciously Ella and BOSH As well as providing a valuable introduction to existing research on celebrity chefs Hollows uses case studies to analyse how celebrity chefs shape food practices and wider social political and cultural trends Hollows explores their impact on ideas about veganism healthy eating and the Covid 19 pandemic and how their advice is bound up with class gender and race She also demonstrates how celebrity chefs such as Jamie Oliver Hugh Fearnley Whittingstall Nadiya Hussain and Jack Monroe have become food activists and campaigners who intervene in contemporary debates about the environment food poverty and nation

Childhood, Mobile Technologies and Everyday Experiences E. Bond, 2014-06-25 This timely volume offers an in depth theoretical analysis of children's experiences growing up with mobile internet technologies Drawing on up to date research it explores the relationship between childhood as a social and cultural construction and the plethora of mobile internet technologies which have become ubiquitous in everyday life

EBOOK: Science, Technology and Culture David Bell, Joanne Hollows, 2005-11-16 Lifestyle media books magazines websites radio and television shows that focus on topics such as cookery gardening travel and home improvement have witnessed an explosion in recent years Ordinary Lifestyles explores how popular media texts bring ideas about taste and fashion to consumers helping audiences to fashion their lifestyles as well as defining what constitutes an appropriate lifestyle for particular social groups Contemporary examples are used throughout including Martha Stewart House Doctor What Not to Wear You Are What You Eat Country Living and brochures for gay and lesbian holiday promotions

The contributors show that watching make over television or cooking from a celebrity chef's book are significant cultural practices through which we work on our ideas about taste status and identity. In opening up the complex processes which shape our taste and forge individual and collective identities, lifestyle media demand our serious attention as well as our viewing, reading and listening pleasure. Ordinary Lifestyles is essential reading for students on media and cultural studies courses and for anyone intrigued by the influence of the media on our day to day lives.

Everyday Life in Russia Choi Chatterjee, David L. Ransel, Mary Cavender, Karen Petrone, 2015-01-29. A panoramic interdisciplinary survey of Russian lives and a must read for any scholar engaging with Russian culture. The Russian Review. In this interdisciplinary collection of essays, distinguished scholars survey the cultural practices, power relations and behaviors that characterized Russian daily life from pre-revolutionary times through the post-Soviet present. Microanalyses and transnational perspectives shed new light on the formation and elaboration of gender, ethnicity, class, nationalism and subjectivity. Changes in consumption and communication patterns, the restructuring of familial and social relations, systems of cultural meanings and evolving practices in the home, at the workplace and at sites of leisure are among the topics explored. Offers readers a richly theoretical and empirical consideration of the state of play of everyday life as it applies to the interdisciplinary study of Russia. Slavic Review. An engaging look at a vibrant area of research. Highly recommended. Choice. Volumes of such diversity frequently miss the mark but this one represents a welcomed introduction to and a must read for anyone seriously interested in the subject. Cahiers du Monde russe.

Media/Theory Shaun Moores, 2007-05-07. From an established author with a growing international profile in media studies, Media Theory is an accessible yet challenging guide to ways of thinking about media and communications in modern life. Shaun Moores draws on ideas from a range of disciplines in the humanities and social sciences and expertly connects the analysis of media and communications with key themes in contemporary social theory. Examining core issues of time and space, Moores also examines matters of interactions, signification and identity and argues that media studies is bound up in the wider processes of the modern world and not just about studying the media. This book makes a distinctive contribution towards rethinking the shape and direction of media studies today and for students at advanced undergraduate or postgraduate level.

Things of the House Marta Vilar Rosales, 2023-04-14. Discussing multiple aspects of material culture and domestic consumption, this book tackles the relationship between the trajectories and biographies of people families houses and objects and how they intertwine and produce each other Focusing on the life stories of a group of European and Catholic Brahmin Goan families of the colonial elite who left Mozambique after the country s independence in 1975 the book shows how material culture interferes with structuring dimensions of migratory experiences in the management of family memories ties and networks of belonging as well as in the social dynamics of positioning hierarchy and distinction Children and Social Change

Dorothy Moss,2011-10-13 Draws on international case studies including India South Africa and the Caribbean to explore everyday childhood in relation to employment religion policing war and migration Constructing the Beginning Simon

Locke,2014-04-04 In Constructing the Beginning Simon Locke offers a new approach to considering the enigma of creation science using the perspective of discourse analysis Using the publications of the British Creation Science Movement to perform a detailed analysis of the creationist case Locke demonstrates that the discourses and rhetorics used by natural and social scientists are also employed by non scientists Out of this study a view of science as a cultural resource develops questioning the adequacy of perceived sociological wisdom that sees science as the source and emmbodiment of cultural rationalization As a case study of the use of science as a discursive resource in everyday life Constructing the Beginning speaks to scholars of discourse analysis constructionism rhetorics and the public understanding of science It will also be of great interest to scholars in the areas of cultural studies sociology of scientific knowledge and of religion postmodernism and sociological theory Additional Copy Creation science is the target of much attack these days from both within and outside of the orthodox scientific community This book however takes a different approach It is not an attack on creationism nor is it a defense The author s interest is not in creationism at all but rather it is in the questions of the role and significance of science in modernity or the public understanding of science Locke s approach to this issue is a discursive and rhetorical one Creationism is treated as a case study of the argumentative engagement between science and non science which in his view is as central to the commonsense lifeworld of modernity as much as it is to the lives of its intellectuals An important dimension of the public meaning of science in modernity is its limits and its relations with other modes of thought and belief which continue to survive as discourses in the wider culture Creationism is merely one example of this general feature The book begins with a discussion of the current issues in the public understanding of science in relation to traditional sociological views of the impact of science on modernity This is examined through rationalization and the contrasting view derived from the sociology of scientific knowledge which points to the likelihood of a much more complex and variable relationship than rationalization proposes It continues with an argument and detailed analysis that focuses on three main points the problem of a competing account of reality the world in the form of evolution the problem of competing accounts of the Bible the Word in the form of different versions of Christianity and the realization that both of these problems must be managed together in such a way that creationists own version s of the world and of the Word are compatible a compatibility achieved through a discursive syncretism The final chapter brings together the strands of the argument to further develop the implications of the dilemma of science for the public understanding of science through the idea of science as a cultural resource and its possible relation to other such cultural resources within modernity such as Christianity It is suggested that much so called anti science could be made sense of in these terms and proposes further research in this direction

Rebellious Families Jan Kok,2002-12-01 Why do people rebel This is one of the most important questions historians and social scientists have been grappling with over the years It is a question to which no satisfactory answer has been found despite more than a century of research However in most cases the research has focused on what people do if they rebel but hardly ever why they rebel The essays in this volume offer an alternative perspective based on the question at what point families decided to add collective action to their repertoires of survival strategies In this way this volume opens up a promising new field of historical research the intersection of labour and family history The authors offer fascinating case studies in several countries spanning over four continents during the last two centuries In an extensive introduction the relevant literature on households and collective action is discussed and the volume is rounded off by a conclusion that provides methodological and theoretical suggestions for the further exploration of this new field in social history

Conceptualising Home Lorna Fox O'Mahony,2006-12-01 It is difficult to overstate the everyday importance of home in law Home provides the backdrop for our lives and is often the scene or the subject of legal disputes In addition in recent decades there has been growing academic interest in the meaning of home which has prompted empirical studies and theoretical exploration in a wide range of disciplines Yet while the authenticity of home as a social psychological cultural and emotional phenomenon has been recognised in other disciplines it has not penetrated the legal domain where the proposition that home can encapsulate meanings beyond the physical structure of the house or the capital value it represents continues to present conceptual difficulties This book focuses on the competing interests of creditors who lend money against the security of the property and the occupiers who dwell in the property in the context of possession actions By mapping the concept of home as it has evolved in other disciplines against existing legal frameworks Conceptualising Home examines the possibilities for developing a coherent concept of home in law

The Migrants Table Krishnendu Ray,2004-09-16 To most of us the food that we associate with home our national and familial homes is an essential part of our cultural heritage No matter how open we become to other cuisines we regard home cooking as an intrinsic part of who we are In this book Krishnendu Ray examines the changing food habits of Bengali immigrants to the United States as they deal with the tension between their nostalgia for home and their desire to escape from its confinements As Ray says This is a story about rice and water and the violations of geography by history Focusing on mundane matters of immigrant life for example what to eat for breakfast in America he connects food choices to issues of globalization and modernization By showing how Bengali immigrants decide what defines their ethnic cuisine and differentiates it from American food he reminds us that such boundaries are uncertain for all newcomers By drawing on literary sources family menus and recipes for traditional dishes interviews with Bengali household members and his own experience as an immigrant Ray presents a vivid picture of immigrants grappling with the grave and immediate problem of defining themselves in their home away from home Food for the Ageing Population Monique Raats,2008-12-17 The world s ageing population is increasing and food professionals will have to address the needs of older generations more closely in the future This unique volume reviews the characteristics of the ageing population as food consumers the role of nutrition in healthy ageing and the design of food products and services for the elderly Chapters in part one discuss aspects of the elderly s relationship with food such as appetite and ageing ageing and sensory perception food and satisfaction with life and the social significance of meals The second part of the book reviews the role of nutrition in extending functionality into later years with chapters on topics such as undernutrition and conditions such as Alzheimer s disease bone and joint health and eye related disorders Concluding chapters address the issues of food safety and the elderly designing new foods and beverages for the ageing and nutrition education programmes With its distinguished editors and contributors Food for the ageing population is an essential reference for those involved in the research development and provision of food products for the older generation A unique review of the characteristics of the ageing population as food consumers Discusses aspects of the elderlys relationship with food including appetite ageing and sensory perception and the social significance of meals Examines the role of nutrition in extending functionality in later years focusing on undernutrition Alzheimers and bone and joint health Representing the Family Deborah Chambers,2001-08-09 Looking at how the family is represented by the media and by scrutinizing the manner in which it is regulated this book uncovers the ways in which academic research and welfare policy have colluded with political rhetoric and the popular media to re invent a mythical ideal family Representing the Family combines perspectives from a range of theories including media and cultural studies sociology and social history to show how certain types of family life are pathologised highlights the discrepancies between contemporary representations of the ideal family and lived experience and compares the British experience with that of the United States and Australia

Communications/Media/Geographies Paul C. Adams,Julie Cupples,Kevin Glynn,André Jansson,Shaun Moores,2016-09-19 Although there are human geographers who have previously written on matters of media and communication and those in media and communication studies who have previously written on geographical issues this is the first book length dialogue in which experienced theorists and researchers from these different fields address each other directly and engage in conversation across traditional academic boundaries The result is a compelling discussion with the authors setting out statements of their positions before responding to the arguments made by others One significant aspect of this discussion is a spirited debate about the sort of interdisciplinary area that might emerge as a focus for future work Does the already established idea of communication geography offer the best way forward If so what would applied or critical forms of communication geography be concerned to do Could communication geography benefit from the sorts of conjunctural analysis that have been developed in contemporary cultural studies Might a further way forward be to imagine an interdisciplinary field of everyday life studies which would draw critically on non representational theories of practice and movement Readers of Communications Media Geographies are invited to join the debate thinking through such questions for themselves and the themes that are explored in this book for example of space place meaning power and ethics will be of interest not only to academics in human geography and in media and communication studies but also to a wider range of scholars from across the humanities and social sciences

A Theory of Shopping Daniel Miller, 2013-06-10 A Theory of Shopping offers a highly original perspective on one of our most basic everyday activities shopping We commonly assume that shopping is primarily concerned with individuals and materialism But Miller rejects this assumption and follows the surprising route of analysing shopping by means of an analogy with anthropological studies of sacrificial ritual He argues that the act of purchasing goods is almost always linked to other social relations and most especially those based on love and care The ethnographic sections of the book are based on a year's study of shopping on a street in North London This provides the basis for a sensitive description of the issues the shopper confronts when making decisions as to what to buy Miller develops a theory to account for these observations arguing that shopping typically consists of three major stages which reflect the three key stages of many rites of sacrifice In both shopping and sacrifice the ultimate intention is to constitute others as desiring subjects Finally the book examines certain historical shifts in both subjects and objects of devotion in particular ideals of gender and love This treatment of shopping from the perspective of comparative anthropology represents a highly innovative approach to one of the most familiar tasks of our daily lives Written in a clear and accessible manner this book will be of interest to students and academics in anthropology sociology and cultural studies as well as anybody who wants to consider more deeply the nature of their own everyday activities
