The Art and Archaeology of Florida's Wetlands Barbara A. Purdy, 2017-12-06 Waterlogged archaeological sites in Florida contain tools art objects dietary items human skeletal remains and glimpses of past environments that do not survive the ravages of time at typical terrestrial sites Unfortunately archaeological wet sites are invisible since their preservation depends upon their entombment in oxygen free organic deposits As a result they are often destroyed accidentally during draining dredging and development projects These sites and the objects they contain are an important part of Florida s heritage They provide an opportunity to learn how the state s earliest residents used available resources to make their lives more comfortable and how they expressed themselves artistically Without the wood carvings from water saturated sites it would be easy to think of early Floridians as culturally impoverished because Florida does not have stone suitable for creating sculptures This book compiles in one volume detailed accounts of such famous sites as Key Marco Little Salt Spring Windover Ft Center and others The book discusses wet site environments and explains the kinds of physical chemical and structural components required to ensure that the proper conditions for site formation are present and prevail through time The book also talks about how to preserve artifacts that have been entombed in anaerobic deposits and the importance of classes of objects such as wooden carvings dietary items human skeletal remains to our better understanding of past cultures Until now this information has been scattered in obscure documents and articles thus diminishing its importance Our ancestors may not have been Indians but they contributed to the state s heritage for more than 10 000 years Once disturbed by ambitious dredging and draining projects their story is gone forever it cannot be transplanted to another location The Tutu Archaeological Village Site Elizabeth Righter,2003-09-02

Excavations at the Tutu site represent a dramatic chapter in the annals of Caribbean archaeological excavation The site was discovered in 1990 during the initial site clearing for a shopping mall in St Thomas U S Virgin Islands The site was excavated with the assistance of a team of professional archaeologists and volunteers Utilizing resources and funds donated by the local scientific communities the project employed a multidisciplinary sampling strategy designed to recover material for analysis by experts in fields such as anthropology archaeology palaeobotany zooarchaeology bioarchaeology palaeopathology and photo imaging This volume reports the results of these various applied analytical techniques laying a solid foundation for future comparative studies of prehistoric Caribbean human populations and cultures Bridging the Gap in Maritime

Archaeology: Working with Professional and Public Communities Katy Bell,2019-02-28 Proceedings of a conference session held at CIfA 2014 The session focused on ways in which it is possible to engage with a wider audience in the course of maritime archaeological work Papers offer a series of case studies exhibiting best practice with regard to individual maritime projects and examples of outreach to local communities A Life in Balkan Archaeology John Chapman,2021-10-13

This memoir is not really about research questions or main conclusions It tells the story of a boy growing up in Plymouth Devon getting excited about archaeology after visits to mainland Greece and Crete trying to get into Greek archaeology and relocating northwards into the Balkans where he spent a career in prehistoric research The chapters alternate between museum university experiences and my major research projects The experiences of working in that part of the world as the Third Balkan War was starting were dramatic and a history style chapter is devoted to these beginnings The Balkan prehistoric club in the west is a very small and select group so there is an intrinsic interest about how westerners did their archaeology there and how they interacted with local colleagues There is also a sense of a colonial relationship between westerners knowledgeable about theory and method with well stocked libraries and large research grants and easterners with little of the above On a basic level the memoir presents stories with implications for east west relationships that will soon disappear from living memory The ways that research projects originated and developed are strongly featured and there is a fund of anecdotes about prehistorians living and dead The publication of this memoir records those fragments of the discipline s history that are in danger of being lost forever But my life story is not erased from this account which is not an anthropological work but rather a participant account with a modicum of relevant personal details The book providing the archaeological results is the publication Forging identities in the prehistory of Old Europe Dividuals individuals and communities 7000 3000 BC a synthesis of academic research in Balkan prehistory This memoir provides the insider story to the research results

The Excavation of the Prehistoric Burial Tumulus at Lofkend, Albania Lorenc Bejko, Sarah P. Morris, John K. Papadopoulos, Lynne A. Schepartz, 2015-12-31 The burial tumulus of Lofkend lies in one of the richest archaeological areas of Albania ancient Illyria home to a number of burial tumuli spanning the Bronze and Iron Ages of later prehistory Some were robbed long ago others were reused for modern burials few were excavated under scientific conditions Modern understanding of the pre and protohistory of Illyria has largely been shaped by the contents of such burial mounds What inspired the systematic exploration of Lofkend by UCLA was more than the promise of an unplundered necropolis it was also a chance to revisit the significance of this tumulus and its fellows for the emergence of urbanism and complexity in ancient Illyria In addition to artifacts the recovery of surviving plant remains bones and other organic material contribute insights into the environmental and ecological history of the region

Forensic Archaeology W. J. Mike Groen, Nicholas Márquez-Grant, Rob Janaway, 2015-02-17 Forensic archaeology is mostly defined as the use of archaeological methods and principles within a legal context However such a definition only covers one aspect of forensic archaeology and misses the full potential this discipline has to offer This volume is unique in that it contains 57 chapters from experienced forensic archaeological practitioners working in different countries intergovernmental organisations or NGOs It shows that the practice of forensic archaeology varies worldwide as a result of diverse historical educational legal and judicial backgrounds The chapters in this volume will be an invaluable reference to forensic archaeologists forensic anthropologists humanitarian and human rights workers forensic scientists police officers professionals working in criminal justice systems and all other individuals who are interested in the potential forensic archaeology has to offer at scenes of crime or places of incident This volume promotes the development of forensic archaeology worldwide In addition it proposes an interpretative framework that is grounded in archaeological theory and methodology integrating affiliated behavioural and forensic sciences

General Issues in the Study of Medieval Logistics John Haldon, 2006-01-01 Logistics is a central concern for military strategists but the study of logistics in the past entails far more than merely military aspects The study of resources and their production distribution and consumption in pre modern societies of road networks and communications and of transportation is an essential precondition so that the study of logistics is also the study of pre industrial social economic and spatial organisation This volume presents a series of papers dealing with the methodological technical and historical issues associated with the study of logistics in all its aspects and in particular demonstrates the value of modern computer modelling and of integrating archaeological historical and environmental research techniques and agendas into a common project

Clay in the Age of

Bronze Joanna Sofaer, 2015-07-15 Studies of creativity frequently focus on the modern era yet creativity has always been part of human history This book explores how creativity was expressed through the medium of clay in the Bronze Age in the Carpathian Basin Although metal is one of the defining characteristics of Bronze Age Europe in the Carpathian Basin clay was the dominant material in many areas of life Here the daily experience of people was therefore much more likely to be related to clay than bronze Through eight thematic essays this book considers a series of different facets of creativity Each essay combines a broad range of theoretical insights with a specific case study of ceramic forms sites or individual objects This innovative volume is the first to focus on creativity in the Bronze Age and offers new insights into the rich and complex archaeology of the Carpathian Basin A History of Research Into Ancient Egyptian Culture in Southeast Europe
