Prehistoric Subsistence on the Southern

New England Coast David J. Bernstein, 2014-06-28 Prehistoric Subsistence on the Southern New England Coast examines long term trends in prehistoric subsistence in the Narragansett Bay region of Southern New England The results suggest that unlike other areas of Eastern north America specialized agricultural economies did not develop in this region prior to European contact The book is accessible to both the general reader as well as scholars and students interested in consulting the original data for their own research and analysis Incorporates original research in palynology and geomorphology in to an archaeological study Presents a study of modern shellfish growth that is used to interpret the archaeological remains found at Greenwich Cove Uses numerous animal species to determine site seasonality

The Prehistory of Missouri

Michael John O'Brien, W. Raymond Wood, 1998 The Prehistory of Missouri is a fascinating examination of the objects that were made, used and discarded or lost by Missouri's prehistoric inhabitants over a period of more than eleven thousand years. Missouri's numerous vegetation zones and its diverse topography encompassed extreme variations forcing prehistoric populations to seek a wide range of adaptations to the natural environment. As a result, Missouri's archaeological record is highly complex and it has not been fully understood despite the vast amount of fieldwork that has been conducted within the state's borders. In this groundbreaking account, Michael J. O'Brien and W. Raymond Wood explore the array of artifacts that have been found in Missouri, pinpointing minute variations in form. They have documented the ranges in age and distribution of the individual forms, explaining why certain forms persisted while others quickly disappeared. Organized by chronological periods such as Archaic, Woodland, and Mississippian, the book provides a comprehensive survey of what is currently known about Missouri's prehistoric peoples, often revealing how they made their living in an ever-changing world. The authors have applied rigorous standards of archaeological inquiry. Their main objective, demonstrating that the archaeological record of Missouri can be explained in scientific terms, is accomplished. With more than 235 line drawings and photographs, including 23 color photos, The Prehistory of Missouri will appeal to anyone interested in archaeology, particularly in the artifacts and the dates of their manufacture, as well as those interested in the dichotomy between interpretation and explanation. Intended for the amateur as well as the professional archaeologist, this book is sure to be the new standard reference on Missouri's prehistory, fulfilling current needs that extend beyond those met by Carl Chapman's earlier classic The Archaeology of Missouri.

Archaeological Survey E.B. Banning, 2012-12-06 This text reviews the theory, concepts and basic methods involved in archaeological analysis. Its aim is to familiarize both students and professionals with the principles that underlie many kinds of archaeological analysis, to encourage sound laboratory practice and to demonstrate some of the common theoretical issues that different kinds of analyses all share. Banning opens with a discussion of the nature and presentation of and the errors in data and briefly reviews archaeological systematics, database and research design, sampling and quantification, modeling data and basic artifact handling and conservation. Chapters on lithics, pottery, faunal, botanical and soil remains follow, and chapters on seriation, interpreting dates and archaeological illustration close out the book. Intended as a text for students in upper division undergraduate and graduate level courses as well as a manual for professional researchers and cultural resource management practitioners, the book is abundantly illustrated and references and includes a glossary of key terms. Suggested laboratory exercises are available on the author's university webpage: <http://homes.chass.utoronto.ca/banning/ARH312/312labs.htm>

Prehistoric Occupations of Black Lake, Northern Saskatchewan Sheila Joan Minni, 1976-01-01 Black Lake was occupied on a discontinuous basis from approximately 6000 B.C. to the historic period by cultures originating from a number of different physiographic zones. An economical model outlines the historic and late prehistoric dependence of the Chipewyan on the barren ground caribou herds. Published in English

Archaeology of Communities Marcello-Andrea Canuto,Jason Yaeger both at,2012-11-12 Wide range of approaches and settings unlike other books on similar topics International appeal on America centered courses Appeal for courses such as landscape studies and settlement Some contributors with enormous reputations in this collection Joyce Isbell Marcus Preucel Paleoethnobotany of the Kameda Peninsula Jomon Gary W. Crawford,1983-01-01 In this volume author Gary W Crawford presents archaeological data he gathered on plant utilization by Jomon populations in southwestern Hokkaido Using this data he examines the adaptations of the Initial through Middle Jomon a period from 8000 BP to 4000 BP He also considers the success of the Jomon adaptation in northeastern Japan in general

Mississippian Community Organization Michael J. O'Brien,2005-12-11 The Powers Phase Project was a multiyear archaeological program undertaken in southeastern Missouri by the University of Michigan in the late 1960s and early 1970s The project focused on the occupation of a large Pleistocene age terrace in the Little Black River Lowland a large expanse of lowlying land just east of the Ozark Highland between roughly A D 1250 and A D 1400 The largest site in the region is Powers Fort a palisaded mound center that ceived archaeological attention as early as the late nineteenth century Archa logical surveys conducted south of Powers Fort in the 1960s revealed the pr ence of numerous smaller sites of varying size that contained artifact assemblages similar to those from the larger center Collectively the settlement aggregation became known as the Powers phase Test excavations indicated that at least some of the smaller sites contained burned structures and that the burning had sealed household items on the floors below the collapsed architectural e ments Thus there appeared to be an opportunity to examine a late prehistoric settlement system to a degree not possible previously Not only could the spatial relation of communities in the system be ascertained but the fact that structures within the communities had burned appeared to provide a unique opportunity to examine such things as differences in household items between and among structures and where various activities had occurred within a house With these ideas in mind James B Griffin and James E Biographical Memoirs National Academy of Sciences, 2009-09-30 Biographic Memoirs Volume 90 contains the biographies of deceased members of the National Academy of Sciences and bibliographies of their published works Each biographical essay was written by a member of the Academy familiar with the professional career of the deceased For historical and bibliographical purposes these volumes are worth returning to time and again Human Paleontology and

Prehistory Assaf Marom, Erella Hovers, 2017-01-24 The aim of the book is to present original and though provoking essays in human paleontology and prehistory which are at the forefront of human evolutionary research in honor of Professor Yoel Rak a leading scholar in paleoanthropology The volume presents a collection of original papers contributed by many of Yoel's friends and colleagues from all over the globe Contributions from experts around the globe fall roughly into three broad categories Reflections on some of the broad theoretical questions of evolution and especially about human evolution the early hominins with special emphasis on Australopithecus afarensis and Paranthropus and the Neanderthals that contentious group of our closest extinct relatives Within and across these categories nearly every paper addresses combinations of methodological analytical and theoretical questions that are pertinent to the whole human evolutionary time span This book will appeal most to scholars and advanced students in paleoanthropology human paleontology and prehistoric archaeology

The Archaeology of Houses and Households in the Native Southeast Benjamin A. Steere, 2017-04-11 This book explores changes in houses and households in the southeastern United States from the Woodland to the Historic Indian Period ca 200 B C to A D 1800 Most studies of domestic architecture in the Southeast have been conducted at the single site scale As a result broader spatial and temporal patterns of variation in houses and households are not well understood To address this problem Steere constructed a database that catalogues the architectural features of 1 258 structures from 65 sites in the Southern Appalachian region and surrounding areas Significant trends identified by this comparative study include changes in the size and spacing of houses changes in architectural investment and a secular trend toward the increasing segmentation of houses Using a theoretical framework developed from household archaeology and anthropology Steere argues that certain aspects of this architectural variation can be explained by changes in household economics and household composition symbolic behavior status differentiation and settlement patterning More generally he proposes that large scale patterns of diachronic and synchronic variation in domestic architecture are best explained by changes in social organization Provided by publisher Archaeology of the Mississippian Culture Peter N. Peregrine, 2013-04-11 First published in 1996 In recent years there has been a general increase of scholarly and popular interest in the study of ancient civilizations Yet because archaeologists and other scholars tend to approach their study of ancient peoples and places almost exclusively from their own disciplinary perspectives there has long been a lack of general bibliographic and other research resources available for the non specialist This series is intended to fill that need Archaeology of Frontiers & Boundaries J J ROBINSON, 2014-06-28 Archaeology of Frontiers Boundaries
