Prehistoric Sussex:

Prehistoric Sussex Alex Vincent, 2023-10-15 A fascinating exploration of prehistoric Sussex from the Palaeolithic era to the Iron Age and the Roman invasion

Prehistoric Sussex Miles Russell, 2002 The story begins with Boxgrove Man the earliest human yet recovered in Britain and ends with the first named resident of Sussex one Tiberius Claudius Togidubnus Great King of the Britons and friend of the emperor Claudius Dr Russell examines the wealth of archaeological remains and discoveries from the 500 000 years that separate these two prehistoric people remains that include the earliest forms of neolithic monument such as Whitehawk Causewayed Enclosure and the flint mines of Cissbury and the impressive Iron Age hillforts of Hollingbury in Brighton and Mount Caburn near Lewes

Understanding the Neolithic Julian Thomas, 2002-02-07 This book employs contemporary theoretical perspectives to investigate the Neolithic period in southern Britain It is a fully reworked edition of the author's Rethinking the Neolithic 1991

The Neolithic Flint Mines of England Martyn Barber, David Field, Peter Topping, 2014-06-15 Only rarely in Europe do the surface remains of Neolithic flint mines remain so dramatically for all to see as those located along the South Downs and in the Breckland of England Even within England they represent a diminishing resource and only ten sites have been recorded with any certainty As examples of our earliest industrial heritage they represent archaeological sites of the first importance and have a special part to play in the history of technology However despite a lengthy history of archaeological investigation they have rarely been considered nationally as a class of monument Although some sites such as Grime's Graves are well known through excavation campaigns others are known only through obscure articles and unpublished archival material Many of those that survive as earthworks or cropmarks have never been surveyed previously or accurately planned Consequently English Heritage has compiled detailed plans of the surface areas of all of the known flint mines and investigated the sites of other potential examples Using a combination of field survey aerial photography and archival research this volume looks at each site in its own right as a major and important complex and for the first time offers a synthesis of the evidence to date

The Wandering Herd Andrew Margetts, 2021-03-23 The British countryside is on the brink of change With the withdrawal of EU subsidies threats of US style factory farming and the promotion of rewilding initiatives never before has so much uncertainty and opportunity surrounded our landscape How we shape our prospective environment can be informed by bygone practice as well as through engagement with livestock and landscapes long since vanished This study will examine aspects of pastoralism that occurred in part of medieval England It will suggest how we learn from forgotten management regimes to inform shape and develop our future countryside The work concerns a region of southern England the pastoral identity of which has long been synonymous with the economy of sheep pasture and the medieval right of swine pannage These aspects of medieval pastoralism made famous by iconic images of the South Downs and the evidence presented by Domesday mask a pastoral heritage in which a significant part was played by cattle This aspect of medieval pastoralism is traceable in the region's historic landscape documentary evidence and excavated archaeological remains Past scholars of the South East have been so concerned with the importance of medieval sheep and to a slightly lesser extent pigs that no systematic examination of the cattle economy has ever been undertaken This book represents a deep multidisciplinary study of the cattle economy over the longue dur e of the Middle Ages especially its importance within the evolution of medieval society settlement and landscape It explores the nature and presence of vaccaries a high status form of specialized cattle ranch They produced beef stock milk and cheese and the draught oxen necessary for medieval agriculture While they are most often associated with wild northern uplands they also existed in lowland landscapes and areas of Forest and Chase Nationally medieval cattle have been one of the most important and neglected aspects of the agriculture of the medieval period As part of both a mixed and specialized farming economy they have helped shape the countryside we know today Mining and Materiality Anne M.

Teather,2016-02-28 In this book Anne Teather develops a new approach to understanding the Neolithic flint mines of southern Britain Neolithic Landscapes Peter Topping,2002-12-01 Reprint of another classic Neolithic Studies Group volume It is a sign of the intellectual health of a specialist study group that its deliberations can generate collections of papers of general interest The topical issue of landscape is addressed although with the added complication of attempting to focus on the domestic as opposed to ceremonial aspects of Neolithic life The Ancient Burial-mounds of England L.V.

Grinsell,2014-10-24 First published in 1936 and rewritten in 1953 this book embodies the results of the author s extensive researches and fieldwork Part one considers types of barrows and dating their building and the cult of the dead from Palaeolithic to Saxon times A chapter is dedicated to maps and another to fieldwork in particular while the final bit of the introductory material discussed barrow digging from the time of the Romans to the twentieth century Part two is the regional surveys from Cornwall to Kent and northwards to the Scottish border Archaeology in England and Wales 1914 -

1931 T.D. Kendrick,C.F.C. Hawkes,2018-01-29 This survey of work carried out over a number of years synthesises the progress of archaeology showing at a glance the changes within less than quarter of a century on the interpretation of and reflection on knowledge in the area Entertainingly written this is a lasting introductory account of important finds in English and Welsh archaeology by two of the key researchers of the time Heavily illustrated this book showcases many artefacts as well as maps and plans offering a wealth of information Personifying Prehistory Joanna Brück,2019-01-31 The Bronze Age is frequently framed in social evolutionary terms Viewed as the period which saw the emergence of social differentiation the development of long distance trade and the intensification of agricultural production it is seen as the precursor and origin point for significant aspects of the modern world This book presents a very different image of Bronze Age Britain and Ireland Drawing on the wealth of material from recent excavations as well as a long history of research it explores the impact of the post Enlightenment othering of the non human on our understanding of Bronze Age society There is much to suggest that the conceptual boundary between the active human subject and the passive world of objects so familiar from our own cultural context was not drawn in this categorical way in the Bronze Age the self was constructed in relational rather than individualistic terms and aspects of the non human world such as pots houses and mountains were considered animate entities with their own spirit or soul In a series of thematic chapters on the human body artefacts settlements and landscapes this book considers the character of Bronze Age personhood the relationship between individual and society and ideas around agency and social power The treatment and deposition of things such as querns axes and human remains provides insights into the meanings and values ascribed to objects and places and the ways in which such items acted as social agents in the Bronze Age world

The Rother Valley John Boardman,Ian Foster,2024-12-31 The valley of the western Rother lies within the South Downs National Park but has a special character based on its Cretaceous geology of sandstones and clays These give rise to soils that are ideal for agriculture but are extremely erodible Over the centuries the area has been exploited by humans and partially cleared of forest In this book the archaeological history of the Rother Valley is summarized with particular emphasis on the evidence for Mesolithic Bronze Age and Roman occupation Analysis of sediments in ponds adds to the evidence for changes that have happened over the last few hundred years A notable feature of the cultural landscape is the network of sunken lanes The Rother Valley contains unique chalk aquifer fed streams with rare and protected species such as sea trout and otter Heathland floodplain wet meadows and woodlands are interspersed with agriculture linked together by hedgerows and ditches The health of the river is threatened by polluting inputs from farming and sewage Past weather and hydrological records show the potential impact of climate change on the functioning of the river The impact of recent changes on water availability for irrigation and human consumption are explored in relation to ecosystem requirements Soil erosion is a significant problem with the resulting high river sediment concentrations requiring expensive cleaning for the water to be fit for human consumption and the runoff often causes flooding of roads and properties Mitigation measures aim to reduce the loss of soil on fields and interrupt connectivity between fields and the river system We identify sediment sources contributing eroded soil to the river the function of field edge sediment traps in stream weirs and major reservoirs on sediment storage and connectivity Finally the book considers the future of the unique landscape that is the Rother Valley including plans for restoration of the flood plain Contributors include planners researchers and managers of the large estates that are an integral part of the Rother landscape

Tracking the Neolithic House in Europe Daniela Hofmann,Jessica Smyth,2012-12-09 The Neolithic period is noted primarily for the change from hunter gatherer societies to agriculture domestication and sedentism This change has been studied in the past by archaeologists observing the movements of plants animals and people But has not been examined by looking at the domestic architecture of the time Along with tracking the movement of sedentism Neolithic houses are also able to show researchers the beginnings of cultural identity group representation through the construction and decoration of these structures Additionally as agriculture moved west and north in this era the architecture and material culture shows this change and its significance Chapters are arranged chronologically so that authors can address differences and similarities of their region to neighboring ones To ensure continuity authors have framed the chapters around the following considerations construction materials and architectural characteristics how houses facilitated or perpetua

Geoarchaeology, Climate Change, and Sustainability Antony G. Brown, Laura S. Basell, Karl W. Butzer, 2011-01-01 This volume provides a broad survey of recent advances in geoarchaeology with particular attention to environmental change The fourteen chapters include methodologically innovative research case studies valuable for teaching and the use of geological techniques to answer archaeological questions from lower Paleolithic hunting to the location of Homer's Ithaca Geoarchaeology Climate Change and Sustainability also includes a major position paper and unusually two papers on the management of the geoarchaeological resource Both the geographical and chronological coverage are broad ranging from the Lower Paleolithic lower Pleistocene to the Iron Age late Holocene and from rural Iran to urban Manhattan The research presented here clearly demonstrates the value and practical application of geoarchaeological techniques from sediment based dating to geographic information systems

Settlement in the Irish Neolithic Jessica Smyth, 2014-05-29 The Irish Neolithic has been dominated by the study of megalithic tombs but the defining element of Irish settlement evidence is the rectangular timber Early Neolithic house the numbers of which have more than quadrupled in the last ten years The substantial Early Neolithic timber house was a short lived architectural phenomenon of as little as 90 years perhaps like short lived Early Neolithic long barrows and causewayed enclosures This book explores the wealth of evidence for settlement and houses throughout the Irish Neolithic in relation to Britain and continental Europe More importantly it incorporates the wealth of new and often unpublished evidence from developer led archaeological excavations and large grey literature resources The settlement evidence scattered across the landscape and found as a result of developer funded work provides the social context for the more famous stone monuments that have traditionally shaped our views of the Neolithic in Ireland It provides the first comprehensive review of the Neolithic settlement of Ireland which enables a more holistic and meaningful understanding of the Irish Neolithic

The Publishers' Circular and Booksellers' Record, 1929 Land, Power and Prestige David T. Yates, 2007-08-01 A major phase of economic expansion occurred in southern England during the second and early first millennium BC accompanied by a fundamental shift in regional power and wealth towards the eastern lowlands This book offers a synthesis of available data on Bronze Age lowland field systems in England including a gazetteer of sites The research demonstrates the importance of large scale animal husbandry in the mixed farming regimes as evidenced in the design of the field systems which incorporate droveways stock proof fencing watering holes cow pens sheep races and gateways for stockhandling It is argued that the field systems represented a form of conspicuous production an intensification of agrarian endeavour or a statement of intent to be understood in relation to the maintenance display and promotion of hierarchical social systems involved in exchange with their counterparts across the English Channel
