Real World Economic Applications The Wall Street Journal Workbook:

Real World Economic Applications Michael B. Lehmann, 1994 Real World Economic Applications Michael B. Lehmann, 1992 Cheering for Self James S. Vass Jr., James Vass Jr., 2003-05-13 This book is a study of UW men's basketball fans during the 2001-2002 season and explores their proclivity to cheering for self during basketball events. The term basketball event is used rather than basketball game to make clear that everything connected to and seen heard or experienced before during and after a basketball game is included. The actual game itself is only part of the basketball event. An undercurrent runs throughout this participant observation mini ethnography dealing with access and the relative quality of that access to basketball events being affected by one's age class race and gender. The prominent role of advertising in shaping basketball events and helping to construct fans as consumers of products both commercial and institutional during the process of cheering for self is central to this idea. Cheering for self is the activity engaged in by individual fans after they find things to identify or connect with through personal investment. Fans cheer for self indirectly. Fans cheer for the team that they identify with. Through the process of cheering for self while attending the basketball event people are taught how to become fans to consume a UW product the basketball event and to consume advertisers products. People have a tendency to spend their entire life trying to impress others.

What is Good for General Motors? Thomas A. Crumm, 2010 Tom Crumm thinks the American auto industry can regain the world leadership it once enjoyed in design manufacturing and sales of world class quality vehicles and profitability. There are nearly a million American jobs at stake and when the ideas in this book spread to component and other industries it becomes fuel for discussion of a turnaround of America's industrial sector and a turnaround of the economy. General Motors' CEO Roger Smith was a visionary and fully realized that change was needed at GM. Tom Crumm played a vital role in the rethinking that was to help the company steer a new course as a strategic planner he was deeply involved in the creation of the Saturn project in 1985. Many lessons may be learned from Saturn's rise and fall that could be used to further the understanding of how the American manufacturing sector can be restored to its world class position. These include corporate culture and leadership or the lack of it the integration of technology and workers employee empowerment and labor relations supplier relations and vertical integration and sales philosophy and customer satisfaction. The biggest threat to a worker's job is an unprofitable company. Accordingly the adversarial relationship with the company was not in the best long term interest of union members. The union had to change as well as the company. This point and the whole discussion will be of compelling interest to all who want to know what happened to America's auto making capability. Others have recently tried to explain what went wrong in the auto industry. Crash Course by Paul Ingrassia for instance shows that the author had extraordinary access to behind the scenes meetings and conversations but he has little to say about engineering manufacturing or product development. This book addresses just those practical areas where productive change can be made.
